THE GOSSARD LACES IN FRONT,

A CORSET ON NEW PRINCIPLES.

To speak of the "Gossard" as a Corset on new principles cannot fully convey all that this means in the way of improvement. Only wearers of the "Gossard" can realise its advantages. First, there is the convenience and improved appearance due to the lace-in-front principle. Then, again, there is the superior moulding of the "Gossard," ensuring the graceful lines which feature the modern styles of dress.

The "Gossard" provides for every type of figure, it does not seek to mould an entirely different shape, but rather to beautify each type, and render it more graceful. See the various styles in our Corset Showroom.

We are in readiness for the keen demand which sets in about this time for suitings of lighter tone and texture.

Our new season's shipment of materials is opened, and we can now supply patterns on request.

Among the numerous refined and distinctive designs we particularise the new browns and greys, which have been produced in very smart stripe effects.

GENEE — The Ideal of Our Age. — THE WORLD'S SUPREME DANCER.
GENEE — World Famous, not only for her wonderful dancing, but for her expressive Pantomime. — GENEE
M. ALEXANDER VOLININ,
M. ALEXANDER VOLININ,
Premier Danseur Classique, from the Imperial Theatre, Moscow; and the Celebrated
IMPERIAL RUSSIAN BALLET.
IMPERIAL RUSSIAN BALLET.
During the brief season the opportunity will be afforded of seeing the world's greatest dancer—the very Spirit of the Dance itself, of whom it has been said, "There is only one Genee"—in the most famous of the Ballets in which she has achieved her greatest triumphs.
In addition, there will be presented the principal Russian Male Dancer.
M. VOLININ,
whose Classic Dances have made him celebrated throughout Europe, and in England and America.
Another artist to make her first appearance in Sydney is MLLE. HALENA SCHMOLZ, of the Imperial Ballet, Warsaw. Mlle. Schmolz is noted throughout Europe as one of the most gifted of Premiere Danseuses.
THE IMPERIAL RUSSIAN BALLET
will be another note of novelty in the unique programme. This Corps of Dancers from the Imperial Opera House at St. Petersburg have created a sensation wherever they have appeared. They are not only remarkable dancers, but skilled actors and pantomimists.
Further variety and attractiveness will be added to the programme by the inclusion of an Operetta by Wolf Farrari, entitled
THE SECRET OF SUZANNE,
THE SECRET OF SUZANNE,
a delightful, charming, and piquant Musical Story of a jealous husband and a mischievous, but devoted, wife. In this operetta will be presented two prominent operatic artists—ELENA KIRMES (Lyric Soprano) and JOSEPH ROYER (Baritone). This "dewdrop of an opera" has been enormously successful wherever presented.
AN OPERATIC ORCHESTRA of FORTY INSTRUMENTALISTS will be conducted by M. CLASER, who for the past ten years has been associated with Mlle. Genee as Musical Director; while Mr. Frank Rigo will be Stage Manager, a position he filled with the Melba Company.
The whole performance has been transferred to Australia from the Metropolitan Opera House, New York.
PRICES: First Night—Dress Circle and Reserved Stalls, 10/6. Other Nights—Dress Circle and Reserved Stalls, 7/6.
Permanent First Nighters will be allotted their seats as usual.

These pictures tell, as words never can, of the desperate incessant strife between nature and the brave men who for Science's sake have penetrated the vast blizzard-swept solitudes of the Frozen South.
A substantial portion of the profits from these pictures goes towards sending a vessel to the relief of Dr. Mawson and his six companions who were left in the Antarctic by the "Aurora."

The Newmarket blood stock sales, which commenced on the first Tuesday in July, attracted a large number of British and Continental breeders and some of the choice lots submitted by Mr. Tattersall realised big prices, while the average all round was fairly good. On the opening day the top price—5200gns.—was paid by Mr. A. M. Singer for the three-year-old filly Taslett, by William the Third from Burgonet, by Morion, who ran second in the Two Thousand Guineas; and the same buyer gave 2600gns. for the four-year-old mare Preferment, by Velocity from Simony, by Common. The Continental breeder Count Scheibler secured Absolute, a four-year-old-son of Gallinule, and Cherry Lass, by Isinglass, for 2300gns.; Lord Penrhyn got the two-year-old colt Tom Firr, by Melton from Go Swiftly, by Orme, for 1300gns., and, at a similar figure, Hounam, a two-year-old colt, by Simon Square from Vicella, by Veles, fell to the nod of Captain Homfrey. Mr. J. A. Rothschild gave 1150gns for the three-year-old colt Claquement, by Spearmint (son of Carbine) from Claque, by Marden: and the only other to run into four figures was the three-year-old filly Devil's Dodge by Robert le Diable from Simony, by Common, who cost Sir Hugo Fitzherbert 1050gns.

On the second day, five lots ran into four figures. Mr. E. Dresden gave 2400gns. for a yearling colt by Your Majesty from Claque, by Marden, bred by the Duke of Devonshire, and 1500 for a yearling colt by Sundridge from Cordery, by Salisbury; Mr. Mantcheff, a Russian buyer, paid 2100 gns. for a yearling filly by Sundridge from Marsovia, by Marco; and Lord Derby got a yearling colt by Chaucer from Rhondda, by Royal Hampton, for 1200gns.

On the third day only three lots realised four figures, but a number were close up. Lord Zetland gave 1850gns. for the mare Homeward Bound, by Isinglass from Will Return; Mr. W. J. Lushington secured a yearling colt (brother to Chickweed), by Spearmint from Spring Chicken, by Gallinule, for 1750gns.; and Sir W. Cooke gave 1150gns. for a colt by Marcovil from Yarra.

NOTES.

Sire statistics for the season 1912-13, published in this weekly "Sydney Mail," show a list of over 300 stallions, whose progeny have won £250 and over in stakes, while 62 of them are over the £2000 mark. The defunct Ayr Laddie (imp.) (by Ayrshire), heads the list with 51 winners of 124 races, worth £25,016, towards which Jolly Beggar, Hartfell, Cider, and Sylvander were the principal contributors. Maltster follows with 80 winners, of 173 races, worth £22,973; then succeed Positano (imp.) (whose best representative was Piastre (Melbourne Cup winner), with 23 winners of 55 races, worth £18,144; Wallace (son of Carbine, of 6 winners of 43 races, worth £15,886; Flavus (imp.), 53 winners of 128 races, worth £15,372; Pistol (imp.), 44 winners of 101 races, worth £13,680; Prudent King (imp.), 23 winners of 45 races, worth £12,356 to which Cadonia was the principal contributor; Bobadil, 24 winners of 74½ races, worth £11,044; Multiform, 14 winners, of 32 races, worth £10,446; Grafton (imp.), 48 winners of 109 races, worth £9876; Simmer (dead), 35 winners of 832 races, worth £8778; and St. Alwyne (imp.), 24 winners of 59½ races, worth £8528.

Mr. J. E. O'Brien, who has recently acquired a suitable site for a stud farm in the Upper Hunter district, near Aberdeen, where he will engage in the breeding of thoroughbreds, with Malt King as first lord of the harem, has determined to give the great son of Maltster every opportunity to sire high-class stock, and with that object in view has recently purchased through the agency of Messrs. Wm. Inglis and Son in connection with their London agents, the British Blood Stock Agency, Ltd., half a dozen fashionably-bred fillies, who will be shipped during the current month, via the Cape, for Sydney. The sires represented in the draft are Your Majesty (son of Persimmon), whose turf successes include the St. James' Palace Stakes, Eclipse Stakes, St. George's Stakes, and the St. Leger, 1908, and whose winnings in stakes amount to £20,486½; Sundridge (son of Amphion) sire of Sunstar (Derby) and Jest (Oaks); Polymelus (son of the expatriated Cyllene, who went to Argentina at a cost of £31,500, sire of Polkerris, Maiden Erlegh, and other good horses, and the winner of over £16,000 in stakes; and Pride of Canny (son of Love Wisely), winner of £14,000 in stakes. One of the fillies, by Your Majesty from Pet Girl (half-sister to Delaunay, the fastest horse of his day, and winner of 14 races), by Jaquemast from Pet, by Peter (son of Hermit) from Gentle Zitella, by Blair Athol; while the other, by the same sire, is from Mouche d'Or, by Bend Or from Chrysalis, by Lecturer. Both fillies are two years old. The representative of Sundridge is a two-years-old, whose dam Rousseau's Dream, is by Saragead from Heloise (sister to St. Marguerite (One Thousand Guineas), by Hermit. The two-years-old filly, by Pride of Canny is from Eugenia, by Royal Hampton from Dingle (half-sister to Orme), by Glendale from St. Simon's sister, Angelica. The fillies by Polymelus are both three years old. One is half-sister to the Sundridge filly from Rousseau's Dream, stinted to Sunflower (son of Sundridge); and the other is from Our Lassie (Oaks), by Ayrshire from Yours (dam of Your Majesty), by Melton, and she has been stinted to Sir Geoffrey, a son of St. Angelo and La Vierge, by Hampton. The dominant strain in the pedigrees is that of Stockwell, and the draft will be a valuable addition to the blood stock of this State.

The annual reports and balance-sheets of both the Murrumbidgee Turf Club and the Wagga L. V. Race Club, which have just been issued to members, show that they have had very successful seasons (writes our Wagga correspondent). The membership of the M.T.C. had substantially increased during the year, a larger amount had been distributed in prize money than ever in the recent history of the club, and the improvements effected included new tea rooms at a cost of £970. The M.T.C. made provision for meeting the cost of the improvements by issuing debentures to the amount of £600, and the whole of these had been taken up by the L.V.R.C. This step was taken largely with the view of assisting the M.T.C., the L.V.R.C. having no costly improvements to provide for, or racecourse to maintain. The latter has also presented the M.T.C. with an up-to-date ambulance for use on the course. The net profit of the M.T.C. for the year was £809, and £1050 was distributed in prizes. The L.V.R.C. allotted prizes to the value of £800 during the year, and finished with a credit balance of £756. Last year the club donated £20 to the funds of the Wagga District Hospital, and this year the donation has been increased to £50.

The potency of the Musket blood was in evidence on Saturday last at Caulfield, when Ballista won the Australian Hurdle Race, Andelosia the Moondah Plate, and Atora the Mornington Handicap. Ballista, who is by Carbinier (son of Barley), gets his Musket strain through his dam Phyl, by Hova from Phyllis, by Trenton; Andelosia gets his infusion through his granddam Etra Weenie, by Trenton; while George Frederick, the sire of Atora, is by the renowned Carbine. Anartes, the three-year-old 14.2 gelding, who won the Nursery Handicap at Canterbury on the 26th ultimo, and followed up his success on Saturday in the Three-year-old Handicap at Moorefield, gets his Musket strain on his distaff side, for his dam, Antium, is by Fortunatus (imp.) from Millie, by Far Niente (imp.) from Galvina, a daughter of Trenton. Wirrilla, who annexed the Welter Handicap, at Moorefield, gets his Musket infusion from his sire, Havoc (son of Nordenfeldt, by Musket).

The Queensland Turf Club has increased the entrance fee for membership from 5 to 10 guineas.

GOLF.

COUNTRY WEEK.

A SUCCESSFUL CARNIVAL.

AUSTRALIAN CLUB CHAMPIONSHIP.

Country Week, 1913, is over, and though the attendance of country visitors was not up to the records of previous years, it was sufficient to make the events fairly representative of country golf. Many well-known faces were absent, amongst others those of J. Chirnside (Bombala), A. A. Burt (Albury), H. Payten, H. C. L. Ranken, and R. B. Entwisle (Goulburn), J. Burke, J. W. Greaves, J. R. Hooper, H. de V. Newton, and others, (of Newcastle), H. Lowcock (Tamworth), C. Suttor, N. Holmes, and G. W. Rutherford (Bathurst), and D. G. Pilcher and C. B. Howse (Orange). Against these there were players who had not previously visited Sydney for country week, and Sydney players were pleased to meet W. N. Kelman and E. Chapman (of Blayney), A. M'Lachlan (the Bathurst champion), Dr. Combes, and other well-known country golfers.

The programme opened with mixed foursomes at Manly, and with the course in good order a pleasant day was spent. The cards were not particularly good, the winners being L. R. Oswald Sealy and Mrs. M'Phail, and A. V. Hilliard and Miss Trevor Jones, who returned cards of 3 down.

On Friday a stroke competition was played at Rose Bay, the Royal Sydney G.C. having kindly lent the links for the occasion. Here the country players quite failed to accustom themselves to the putting greens, which, though true, were very fast, and poor cards were again in evidence. The majority of the country players are accustomed to chip or sanded greens, or rather "browns," and it takes them a day or two to get used to the turf with puzzling undulations which for the most part are unknown except on the more favoured seaside courses.

A Sydney player, L. J. Berckelman, headed the list with a poor card of 90—6=84. He was consistent in taking 45 strokes in each half of the round, and only on one occasion was more than one stroke more than bogey for a hole. E. Crisp, a regular visitor from Cooma, was second with 96—10=86. It was not a good card, and Crisp scarcely did himself justice. With a little more practice on the greens he should do much better. His long game was good enough, but bad putting lost him many strokes. L. W. Broughton was a long way from his best with 93—5=88, and the same may be said of J. Legh, of Cowra, whose card of 91 nevertheless won the trophy for the best scratch round by a country player. W. A. Purdom holed his tee shot at the third hole.

The serious business of country week started on Saturday, when the districts teams' championship was played at Concord. The north have an unbroken record of successes in this event, but, with J. A. Hooper, S. G. Clift, J. Burke, and others away, had rather a weak side. Of this opportunity south and west failed to take advantage, and were unable to place full teams of 10 in the field; and north, by victories over west in the morning and south in the afternoon, retained the championship.

A. A. Burke led the northern team against L. Legh, of the west. The pair are usually very well matched, but on this occasion Burke played the better golf, and scored a 4-up win. L. W. Broughton (W.) looked like a winner against J. Paton (N.), as at the turn he was 3 up; but the latter played up well, and halved the match on the last green. G. H. Newman was too strong on the day for W. N. Kelman, of Blayney, and scored a comfortable win for the north. H. Berkeley (N.) made a good recovery against E. Chapman, of Blayney, and, after being 3 down at the fourth, halved the match. Each player had a 2 on his card, Chapman at the fourth and Berkeley at the fifteenth. Dr. Combes (W) had a 5-holes victory over J. Clark. A. M'Lachlan finished 2 up on J. S. Lyons (of Grafton), and P. W. Vaughan (N.) had a similar margin over Eric Chapman. The delegates won comfortably against a weak southern team.

In the afternoon the north had little difficulty in defeating the south by 5½ matches to 2½, the majority of their matches being won by substantial margins, while the delegates scored an easy win over the western team, winning every match.

In the bogey competition J. M. Arnott (1) tied with A. R. Nott (12)—a curious coincidence so far as names are concerned. They each returned cards 1 up on the bogey. Arnott was all square at the turn, and gained his advantage on the home run; and Nott had a similar card. D. Wilson (10) was third with a card all square with bogey.

The country championships on Monday did not produce any surprising golf, every player finding it difficult to gauge the strength of the greens. John Legh, of Cowra, proved the winner with two indifferent rounds of 92 and 89, A. A. Bourke, of Newcastle, being a close second with 90 and 92. The figures are not nearly up to championship form, and did not by any means do the players justice. Both of them were very weak on the greens, three putts being a common occurrence. Dr. Combes, of Bathurst, returned the best card in the morning, a well-played 89, but could not sustain his form in the afternoon, and lost a good chance of the championship.

The morning stroke round was won by S. Hordern, with 100—27=73, closely followed by L. Deer with 95—20=75. F. H. Crouch, of Tamworth, had the best country card with 98—19=79. The afternoon competition was won by Eric Chapman with 95—19=76, his brother, E. Chapman, with 89—11=78, being a close second, while F. H. Crouch was third with 98—19=79.

The dinner on Saturday to the country players was a very successful function. The local items rendered by Messrs. M'Keown, Pullbrook, and Wilkie, and a Chinese sketch by Mr. Empson, were very cordially received, and the speeches were all in happy vein, and not too long. Special "local rules" had been passed for the occasion, and appeared on the menus.

After a great deal of consideration on the part of the Australian Golf Union, it has been decided to hold the Australian championship meeting at Sandringham (Melbourne), for the second year in succession, on the 29th instant. Entries will close on the 11th instant.

W. A. Windeyer lost his chance of becoming champion of the Australian Club by bad play in short approaches in the second round of the final, with P. S. Jones. In the morning round the latter, by winning the last hole, finished 1 up, after a good fight. He was round in 82, 41 each way, while Windeyer was 78 for 17 holes. In the afternoon Jones was out in 38, his figures being: 5, 5, 3, 3, 5, 5, 3, 5, 4—38. Windeyer was slack, and at the turn was 5 down, and losing more ground, was beaten by 7 up and 6 to play.

BOWLING.

CHATSWOOD CELEBRATION.

ASSOCIATION ITEMS.

The season of the westerly is with us, and bowlers find the operation of getting within reasonable distance of the "jack" a task of no mean difficulty. Greens are bare of grass, and the bowl seems to possess an infinity of running which requires the most delicate gauging. It will be remembered that Chatswood proved themselves the best club in the northern metropolitan division during the season, and were defeated by three points only by City in the pennant semi-final. The unfurling of the district flag received the usual measure of ceremony on Saturday, and lest any doubt as to Chatswood's strength might prevail, the members of that club settled whatever pretentions the visiting association team may have possessed. The total scores were 141 to 132, in favour of the home bowlers, who won in five rinks out of the eight, and tied in another. The rinks skipped by W. H. Gartrell, Forsyth, and Harding were primarily responsible for the surplus of nine points, but Hattersley and Woolnough also survived with more modest margins. Hattersley's quartet actually had one point the better of the champion rink of the State. On the other hand, Kuring-gai's rink under Alderson, and the Waverley four under Wahlberg, were easily the most successful of the invading forces. As on July 22, 1911, when Chatswood's pennant was unfurled, Mr. R. A. Bell performed the duty of congratulating the club on behalf of the Association, and his appropriate remarks were acknowledged by Mr. Harding, president of Chatswood. According to the rule of such occasions, the social feature predominated, and was considerably assisted by the presence of a large number of ladies.

ASSOCIATION ITEMS.

Mr. R. A. Bell, presiding at his last committee meeting prior to handing back the reins of government to Mr. John Spence, said that the excellent attendance of delegates at the close of the season was splendid evidence of the vitality of the sport. He thanked the members for their cordial co-operation during his term of responsibility, and the delegates, in recognition of his capable and impartial acting-presidency, joined in the "Long may he live" bowlers' chorus, which the touring New South Wales team introduced, and made so popular in the United Kingdom.

Some interesting business was transacted. In regard to the visit to Queensland next month, it was decided that nominators would be expected to make the trip north of Brisbane. At least one town in the Wide Bay and Burnett district would be visited, as promised to the Northerners when down here a few months back. Messrs. Morgan and Louden, who have had considerable experience as managers, related that the tendency was for members of teams to return to Sydney as soon as the test matches in Brisbane were over. The programme, which included engagements with private clubs in the capital or in other towns, was, as a rule, completed with the utmost difficulty. A solution of the problem was suggested by making the northern itinerary precede the test matches. There are arguments for and against the idea. Playing four or five matches together in proper rink order would undoubtedly improve the combination and give the team a much better chance in the tests with Queensland. On the other hand, it is urged that it would be unwise to run the risk of being beaten by club teams prior to the more important fixtures. In our opinion the benefits of the suggestion immensely outweigh the objections. It is as well for intending nominators to note that evidence of successful vaccination will be necessary, and that according to present arrangements the team will leave about Saturday, September 13—two days after the Association annual meeting.

In response to an enquiry from Bathurst, it was decided to reply that a shield would be provided for competition as before, and that the pennant committee would draw up conditions.

A letter from the Randwick Club, asking that the personnel of members chosen to play in Presidents' matches might cover a wider range was received. It was decided that the matter did not come within the province of the Association.

The secretary of the Northern Districts' Association wrote with the object of removing an impression which existed in certain quarters, viz., that the Northern body had ceased to exist. The letter was received, and a suitable acknowledgment decided upon. It was surprising that the matter should have been deemed worthy of notice by the N.D.B.A.

The quality and design of the hat-bands worn by interstate players was mentioned, and Messrs Wall, Leitch, and Gordon were appointed to inquire and report.

It was decided to hold a meeting on August 21 to consider the draft annual report, and the annual meeting was fixed for September 11.

A motion to recommend that the maximum annual contribution from country clubs be £2 2s was ruled out of order on the suggestion of Mr. Reeder, who pointed out that the proposed tribunal had no power to deal with the matter. Delegates who represented country clubs spoke in monotonous succession in favour of the suggestion, but Mr. H. A. Scott entered an emphatic protest against the folly of altering a rule which had been arrived at after an immensity of trouble, and for which alteration there had been no demand from those most concerned. A phase of the matter which escaped attention was the increasing responsibility of the game's government, and the consequent necessity for expansion rather than diminution of the association revenue.

For a like reason the motion for altering the pennant programme was deferred. It will come on again at a more opportune time, but a proviso that clubs shall enter a B team as well as a C team will need to be considered; otherwise a strong club, with an eye on the latter, might enter for A and C, omitting B.

Mr. Jesson, the Gladstone Park delegate, took the opportunity of appealing to the full meeting for more faithful fulfilment on the part of other clubs of engagements with Gladstone Park. He cited as an example that four rinks from a well-known club were expected a little while back, but only six players put in an appearance. The body which he represented comprised 35 members all told, yet they were never guilty of making visits with deficient numbers. In the recent John Young contest, they were drawn against the powerful City club, and the hopelessness of the task was pointed out to them. Nevertheless, they put their best team of six rinks into the field, a work of considerable difficulty, and were badly defeated, as anticipated. "But you beat Harry Thorpe," interjected a delegate, and in the ripple of merriment which accompanied the sally, it was hard to discern which had uppermost place—congratulation to Perdriau and his rink, or a spontaneous recognition of the ability of the crack City player.

It was decided that Mr. R. A. Bell should take a team composed entirely of association delegates to Ashfield for the purpose of unfurling the pennant flag with appropriate ceremony. Mr. John Spence, as president of the triumphant club, will receive the shield on their behalf, and it will probably be his first official function subsequent to return from his trip abroad. Mr. Spence is due at Adelaide on Saturday next.

A welcome home to the president in the form of a smoke concert at Aarons's Exchange is being arranged, and every bowler in the Metropolis at least may be accounted certain to attend. The trophies won in the season's championships will be presented, an item in itself which calls for universal enthusiasm and congratulation A committee, consisting of Messrs. Bell, Evans, H. A. Scott, Shadforth, Henry Weir, and Cohen, was appointed to carry out the arrangements, and due notice of the date will be available shortly.

NOTES.

On Saturday next, the City club will hold an interesting competition for members at Cook Park, in the shape of a rink tournament. Two prizes have been presented, one by a late member, valued at three guineas, and a second by Mr. E. J. Cato, valued at two guineas. It is requested by Mr. Charles Keech, honorary secretary, that intending competitors send in their names not later than Friday next.

A very enjoyable and largely attended dinner was held in the Hunter's Hill Town Hall last night, when the opening of the new club house, which has been generously presented to the members by Mr. J. R. Alston, was fittingly celebrated. The president, Mr. C. McClure, occupied the chair. Toasts appropriate to the occasion were duly honoured, and a splendid evening was completed by an excellent programme of song and story.

Of all the functions of the annual round, there is not one which approaches the Banks and Insurance, versus Waverley fixture on Bank holiday from a happy sociable standpoint. Each succeeding year appears to add to its popularity, and Monday's match was splendidly successful. Scores were published in our columns of yesterday, and the day was a triumph of management on the part of the Waverley Club. Dr. Lamrock made a capital host, and Messrs. W. L. Cohen and Ray Cummins spared no effort to make the company, which included a generous attendance of ladies, supremely contented. The big Eastern club entertained upwards of 100 at luncheon, and many congratulations were showered on the original promoters, Messrs. H. C. Evans and W. H. Goddard, on the growth of their enterprise. Waverley have now won 15 matches to the 7 of Banks and Insurance. The total number of points scored since the inception of the contests is—Waverley, 2281; B. and I., 2124; a majority for the former of 157. On Monday last Waverley won in 162 heads to their opponents' 138, and the half-hour scores, quoting Waverley's first, were—60—48, 104—115, 156—173, 228—210, 290—274. The best winners for Waverley were Sir J. H. Carruthers, 27—17; Barkell, 29—19; Dean, 28—19; and for B and I., W. Taylor, 30—19; and Copeland, 29—20.

LAWN TENNIS.

STRATHFIELD'S SUCCESSES.

NEW SERVICE LAW PROPOSED.

It was with a feeling of relief by all concerned that the interclub premiership was concluded in Sydney on Saturday. If the programme could have been adhered to, the event, which began on February 22 would have terminated on May 31, but so numerous were the postponements, due to wet weather and wet courts in the early stages, and to the effects of vaccination later on, that two extra months were required to finish it. Interest necessarily flagged, and would have died if it had not been that the system of playing semi-finals and finals was in vogue this year, a plan which should not be departed from in future competitions.

The Strathfield Club has at last achieved the much coveted honour of gaining the premiership, for this is the first time it has attained the highest position, though it has seldom, if ever, failed to compete since the interclub contests began in 1890. Such perseverance deserves the success which has now come to it. Equal credit must be given to the four brothers Anderson who constituted the winning team. It is unique in the history of lawn tennis in Australia, and probably elsewhere, for a team of four brothers to play throughout a competition of such importance and win it. Now that they have progressed so far, higher honours should be in store for the family, all the members of which seem to have acquired a stimulus in their play by the successes of the most youthful of them. The twins, R. O. and C. O. seemed destined for championship honours when they appeared as youthful prodigies at one of the Sydney tournaments a good many years ago, but lack of opportunities for practice and other factors have hindered their progress, so that while in the front rank, championship and interstate honours have not yet been associated with their names to the degree anticipated, but there is ample time yet for these to be secured.

Not only, has the Strathfield Club won the premiership, but it has also carried off the second-grade honours by winning the first division of B grade, though this is not such a novelty as the premiership. In effecting this win it was aided by a fifth Anderson, and Storey, Fitzhardings, and Wren. Like the seniors, this team went through the season undefeated, and its members should make their mark in higher fields.

The success of the club must be very pleasing to the hon. secretary, A. H. Bunting, who, incidentally, has established a record which is probably without parallel anywhere. He has taken part in the annual inter-club competitions since they were inaugurated by the New South Wales Association in 1890. That, in itself, is worthy of comment, but when the fact is added that he has taken his place in his team in every match which it has played throughout 24 competitions, the performance becomes astounding. It means that he must have appeared in about 200 matches in that time, and to do that without missing one suggests the possession of boundless enthusiasm and much good fortune. Not only in the interclub matches has such regularity been shown, for he has competed in every open tournament of the Strathfield Club, and there have been 21 of them. If ever long service medals for lawn tennis be introduced the first should surely be awarded to A. H. Bunting.

The footfaulting which appears to be ubiquitous has induced the international federation to promulgate a new rule which it to come on for consideration at next year's meeting. Meanwhile, it has been submitted to the national associations affiliated to the association in order that they may express their views upon it. The main feature in which the proposed rule differs from the one now in force is that it provides that if a foot be raised when serving, it must be replaced upon the ground behind the service line before either foot is placed on the court. Such a rule would probably be more easily interpreted and simpler for an umpire to decide upon than that now in force. It would probably bear no more harshly on the server than the present rule if that were strictly observed, which it seldom is. The Australasian Association has referred the matter to its constitutent associations, and, of these, Victoria, after taking the opinion of Brookes and others, has recommended that no change should be made, and New South Wales has replied approving of the suggested change.

To judge by the space devoted to the subject, the Americans were not more interested in Rice's play than in his knickerbockers. Hardly a paper has come to hand without some reference to them, and private letters also mention the sensation which their appearance created. Evidently the knickerbocker age is long since past in America, if it ever existed. It is the same in England. Here there are a few survivors of the knickerbocker era, but that race is almost extinct. Yet, in the early days they were quite "de rigueur." Several of the Victorians wore them in the first inter-colonial match, while the New South Wales men affected "longs." Then many of our men followed Victoria's example. Whether fashion or comfort caused the defeat of the "shorts" by the "longs," is hard to say. Rice has tried the latter, but considers that he is conceding a handicap of 15 or thereabouts by wearing them.

It was a happy idea of the British players who have made tours to America, Australasia, and South Africa in recent years to entertain the overseas players in London. Mr. Wallis Myers presided at the dinner, the Australian guests including A. B. Jones, H. M. Rice, and E. W. Hicks. Doust figured as one of the hosts, as he captained the British team in South Africa not long ago. It must have been pleasant to our men to have the toast of Australia proposed by C. P. Dixon, to which Rice responded. Gordon Lowe proposed New Zealand. At the functions in Australia, Lowe was usually the last of the British players to speak, but he would have ranked higher than fourth in order of merit.

It was Lowe's birthday, and he had just come from Queen's Club, where he had upheld the reputation of English lawn tennis by defeating Wallace Johnson, one of America's Davis Cup nominees, in the final of the single championship of London. It was a close thing, for Johnson, who had previously beaten Rahe, the German, by three sets to two, made a great run after losing the first two sets. He won the next two, and then pulled up to four all, after being behind at 4—2. Lowe, however, kept on with determination, and won the match.

ATHLETICS.

QUEENSLAND CHAMPIONSHIPS.

OPEN EVENTS.

The New South Wales athletes did remarkably well at the Queensland championship meeting last Saturday at the Exhibition Oval, Brisbane. As the majority of them not having arrived at Brisbane until Thursday and had very little rest before going on to the track. J. F. Bradley, of the South Sydney Harriers, was thought to possess an excellent chance of winning the 100yds championship, but after a splendid struggle with R. T. Renwick, holder of the title, he was beaten by one yard in the splendid time of 10 1-10s. Renwick, who is a member of the East Brisbane Harriers, unsuccessfully represented the northern State at the last Australasian championships, which were held at Wellington, New Zealand, in December, 1911.

Renwick has been credited with running 100 yards in even time. Bradley, who is recognised as the most brilliant sprinter in this State, has recorded many good performances, of which, probably, his best in Sydney was at last Eight-hour Day at the Agricultural Ground, when he easily won the 440yds open handicap from scratch in 51⅖s. His second to E. R. Cox in the last 100yds State championship is worthy of mention. He was beaten by inches in 10s. after arriving from Broken Hill a few hours before the race. Another event in which Bradley showed his quality was the 440yds championship of Victoria in 1912, when he won by 15yds in the good time of 51s.

J. W. Frazer, who is also a member of the South Sydney Harriers, was narrowly beaten in the 120yds hurdles championship by R. Gray, of the East Brisbane Harriers, the time being 16⅖s. Frazer has repeatedly recorded faster time than this, his best record being 15 9-10s, which he did in the Victorian championship in 1912. This event was won by J. L. Davis in 15 2-5s, which is the fastest done in the southern State, but was not passed as a record owing to the fall in the track. Frazer made amends later in the day by easily winning the 440yds hurdles championship from his club mate, T. R. Cole, and establishing a new Queensland record for this event, his time being 60 2-5s, the previous best being 61s.

A. W. Pickard, of the Police A.A.C., also a member of the Sydney Amateur Walkers' Club, won the three miles' walk championship by 10 yards, doing the distance in 24m 4s; Corrigan finished second, with S. Sheaves, of the South Sydney Harriers, in third place. This is Pickard's first win in a scratch event, his previous best performance being a win from scratch in the recent Rockdale to Sandringham open road handicap walk.

The three miles championship and teams' race was very disappointing to followers of athletics in Sydney. Representatives from the Redfern and South Sydney Harriers were competitors, but none occupied a prominent position. The first of them to finish was E. J. Manson, of the South Sydney Harriers, who was placed fifth. The men are prominent distance runners, and were all in good condition, but the reason of Cole and Sheaves not being placed at the finish may be because they competed in other events earlier in the afternoon. J. Garvin was the individual winner by a small margin of half a yard from W. Hamilton, F. Caldwell finishing third. East Brisbane Harriers won the teams race from Toowong. Molloy was awarded first prize in the pole vault championship, the winning height being 10ft; Lavers, his club mate, was second with the bar at 9ft 3in.

A good entry has been received for the South Sydney Harriers' annual Parramatta to Sydney open road race, which will be run on Saturday. As the event will begin punctually at 2.30 p.m., competitors must proceed from the Central Station to Parramatta not later than the 1.30 train.

Amateur athletes who are desirous of competing in the 10-miles championship of N.S.W., and teams race are reminded that entries are due next Saturday at the Sports Club. This event will be conducted by the South Sydney Harriers at the Victoria Park racecourse on Saturday, August 23. For the teams race affiliated clubs must nominate at least 10 men, of whom the first six to finish will count. The entry fee is £1, and any club nominating more than 10 men can do so for an extra 2s each. Distance runners who wish to compete for individual honours only, may do so for the usual championship fee of 2s 6d. Nominations also close on Saturday for the Newtown Harriers' open road race, to be run on the 16th inst.

Now that it has been decided that the American team of athletes is to visit Sydney, something should be done regarding the arrangements in connection with the visit. Although it has been said that the Australians will not have even a second chance against the Americans, we possess some very fine performers, especially in the jumping events. At this branch of field games the colonial records compare favourably with those of any other part of the world. In the pole vault, and running high jump, the chief reason why we have not done ourselves justice is the absence of the sand pit for the jumpers to land in. Another reason is that some of our jumpers lack method.

The pole-vaulter has suffered even more severely than the high jumper in this respect, for he must be a courageous man indeed who will essay a jump of, say, 10 feet or more with the knowledge that he is going to land on hard turf. With the exception of a few men, amongst them Kelly, of Victoria (holder of Australian record), and Bevan, the New South Wales champion, whose styles are almost entirely their own, the majority of our men adhere to the old scissors "jump," whereby the bar is approached from the side. This method is bad, as the body is kept upright, and the jumper's weight throughout is directly over the legs. The Americans have cultivated a perfect style, whereby the bar is approached directly from the front, in a somewhat similar manner to that in which Kelly and Bevan jump. Broad jumping is a sport that requires a great deal of practice before the athlete becomes expert.

The most attractive field event from the spectators' viewpoint is undoubtedly the hurdle race, as it combines with the excitement of a race the pleasure of watching the practice of an exact science. For many years it was thought that the best way to negotiate a hurdle was the English style—that was by gliding prettily over the obstacle with the leading leg neatly bent; but Kraenzlein, in 1900, taught the English hurdlers his famous "straight leg" method, which was rapidly taken up by the 'Varsities and other athletes, including Forrest-Smithson, who has since established a world's record by covering 120 yards over 3ft 6in hurdles in 15s.

The hurdle should not be jumped, but should, so far as is possible, be taken in one's stride, and the fact that the Australasian record for the sprint hurdles—15 3-10s—and all the New South Wales, Victorian, and New Zealand sprint hurdles championships are held by men who have adopted this style should be sufficient proof that it is the fastest way of negotiating the obstacles in the sprint events. However, it is not conducive to fast times in the 440 yards hurdles, where the men have to run on a circular track, as the stride does not always come in evenly, thus making it necessary for the competitor to lengthen or shorten his stride. In America the straight leg is used for the 440 yards hurdles, and their record for the distance is 60 3-5s. This time has been beaten in Sydney and Victoria on many occasions by men who utilise the old English method for the longer journey, and this is one of the events in which the Americans are almost sure to be beaten when they visit us at the end of the year. With the hurdlers J. L. Davies and I. B. Pender, the runners J. F. Bradley and E. R. Cox, and pole-vaulters and high jumpers of the calibre of Thompson, Kelly, and Bevan, we have the material to meet the Americans if the matter be taken up properly and at once.

If W. R. Applegarth keeps on improving at the present rapid rate, the long-looked-for boon in athletics may not be so far away. The little "Poly" boy, running at the National Territorial sports at Cardiff, simply astonished the denizens of the Welsh metropolis by his running. After taking his heat in evens he won the 100 final in 9 4-5s, equalling Patching's time in the last A.A.A. championship, and that of A. F. Duffy at Leicester; and let it be said that neither of these performances is as well supported as Applegarth's, for Patching had a breeze behind him, while in the opinion not only of the writer, but of others who were at Leicester on the day that Duffy "beat" record, the American sprinter never did evens, let alone 9 4-5s. At Cardiff everything appears to have been in order; there were four watch-holders, two of them—R. J. Brind and Z. Wheatley—being first-grade N.C.U. timekeepers, while the grass course was afterwards surveyed and found absolutely correct, and without any decline. Later in the afternoon Applegarth turned out again to attack Walker's 14 3-5s for 150 yards, and again he set up a great performance, covering the distance in 14 2-5s, a world's record; and, by the way, that 14 3-5s of Walker's is not one the best authenticated times in the list. For confirmation of this remark reference need only be made to the returns of the time in the sporting press, which were in every case 14 4-5s. Somebody must have blundered.—Chas. Otway in "Sporting Life" of June 30.

FIXTURES.

Saturday, August 9.—South Sydney Harriers' annual Parramatta to Sydney open road race, starting at 2.30 p.m. from the Parramatta Town Hall, and finishing at Pick's Hotel, Cleveland and Dowling streets, Moore Park. Entries close at the Sports Club for the Newtown Harriers' 10 miles open road race, also the 10 miles championship of N.S.W., and teams race, which will be conducted by the South Sydney Harriers on the 23rd instant.

BILLIARDS.

PAROCHIAL ALTERATIONS OF RULES.

The action of the committee of the suburban institutes in making snooker rules of their own for their championship, which commenced last evening, cannot be considered wise. Uniformity of laws should be a basic principle in all games, otherwise confusion is sure to follow. The committee made two changes from the rules which govern snooker all the world over. The first was to transpose the blue and pink balls in both position and value. Instead of the pink ball being placed at the apex of the pyramid, they have for some unexplained reason removed it to the centre spot, and such transposition can only bring about confusion. The rules of snooker are the result of the deliberations of some of the world's most experienced billiardists, who devoted much time and thought to the subject, and those rules are accepted throughout the English-speaking world. And rightly so, for, having a multitude of rules governing the game would be on all fours with a proposal that each district in the State should make their own rules for cricket, football, or other games.

The second alteration is in regard to the last black ball. The B.A. and B.C.C. rules specify that the game of snooker is concluded when the striker pots, goes in off, or misses the last black ball with the white ball. The idea of this decision is that the game may not be prolonged and become wearisome. But the institute committee again disagree with the experts, and intend, so it is given out, that the black shall be played on until it is holed.

It is stated that the proposed alterations do not find favour with many of the members of the institutes, who object to changes that cause confusion without benefiting the game in any way. Doubtless there are several rules governing the game of snooker which may appear harsh to the casual observer, but there is a proper tribunal to deal with such matters, and when alterations are made they become world-wide, and not parochial.

On Monday next the eighth contest for the Australasian amateur championship will start at Brisbane. As was the case at Melbourne last year, representatives from four States will compete—New South Wales, Victoria, South Australia, and Queensland, the players being—Messrs. L. L. Beauchamp (Vic.), holder of the title; G. B. Shailer (champion of New South Wales); A. W. Cooper (South Australia); and probably R. Kidson (Queensland).

The New South Wales Markers' Tournament, which was concluded on Monday evening, again proved the great advance which is being made in Australian billiards. In no previous tournaments have so many breaks over the century been made, nor by so many players. In a way, this advance is attributed to the popularity of the losing hazard play. Each player endeavoured to emulate George Gray, and one or two were eminently successful in their efforts. The bright star of the fixture was Frank Smith, junior, son of the New South Wales professional champion, who, from the scratch mark of "owe 125," vanquished opponent after opponent in brilliant fashion. Smith, who is the State's snooker champion, only requires to give some attention to top of the table play to develop into a great player. As a winning hazard striker he has few equals in the world, and as potting a ball is the great secret of the pot-cannon-pot method, Smith only requires to cultivate "touch" to make his name. He knows all that is necessary of red-ball play, and has a fair knowledge of angles.

During the hearing of an action at Melbourne last week, Mr. H. Gray, father of George Gray, stated that their visit to Australia had been a financial failure, and that this country did not give sufficient scope for a player like his son. The latter part of the statement cannot be accepted as being correct, for the reason that had Gray been prepared to meet all comers or play for the Australian championship, he would have found that the public appreciated good billiards even in a greater degree than in England. The reason why the public stayed away from the Gray exhibitions was obvious to those whose duty compelled them to be present. In addition to his game lacking variety, his cueing was crude and unorthodox. At times, too, whilst there was nothing wrong with his red ball play, his all-round form was very patchy, and it was felt that the games in which he participated were mere exhibitions, and not contests.

Fred. Lindrum was reported to have almost ended his billiard career last week by an accident to his playing arm. At first it was thought that a serious break had occurred, but on the X rays being brought into requisition all doubts were dispelled. He was evidently well enough to start a match against T. Aiken on Monday, so that the mishap cannot be as serious as reported.

FIXTURES.

August 6-9: R. Birkett v W. Abotomey, 3000 up, for £50 a side, at Heiron and Smith's rooms, at 8 o'clock.

August 11-16: Frank Smith, senr., v Alec. Taylor, 9000 up, at Heiron and Smith's rooms, afternoon and evening, at 3 and 8.

COURSING.

Coursers recognise that the season is on the wane, and that few opportunities remain to give their dogs a run. Mr. Dudley Webb, secretary N.C.A., reports that the Rooty Hill Bracelet Stakes, for 32 dogs, is over-subscribed, and that 15 out of the 16 nominations for the Limit Stakes have been received. One reason why the Bracelet Stakes filled so readily was owing to its being limited to dogs whose wins have not exceeded 3 guineas in one stake. Practically it is for dogs that may be chosen as outsiders. The dog winning the Bracelet may come from one of the crack kennels.

What is required is a novice owners' stake or a combined novice owner and novice dog stake. A competition of this kind would encourage the man who continues paying up for stakes without winning, and would keep out the strong man who has several classes of dogs.

The judge, as is generally known, delivers his decision by showing a small flag corresponding with the colour of the collar of the winning dog. A red flag is kept in one pocket of the judge's coat, and a white one in the other. Cases have been known where both flags have been placed in one pocket, and the wrong colour has been pulled out. As the decision cannot be reversed when once given, unpleasant mistakes may occur.

A Victorian coursing man has made the quaint suggestion that flags be dispensed with, and that one sleeve of the judge's coat be all white. The winning hand could be held up without the fuss of flag fumbling. The idea is not without points, though it would give a terrible shock to the traditions attached to the old English hunting coat. But lots of people, both here and in the old country, sneered at the Australian starting machine for racehorses.

"Dopes" are known to be in use with racehorses, and there is the slow dope, which is a sure stopper, and another one which stimulates speed. In the case of greyhounds, an "alcoholic stimulant" is allowed to be administered before a final course in the presence of an official of the club.

MOTORING FOR SPORT.

ON THE ROAD AND TRACK.

AUSTRALIA'S APATHY.

Australia is far behind the nations in the matter of automobile sports. She imports some £600,000 worth of motor cars per year—two-thirds of which at the least are used solely for pleasure purposes—and yet in the course of a twelve-month there is not a meeting or contest held within the boundaries of the Commonwealth at which more than a mere handful of the general public are present. The contests which are promoted by the several motoring bodies are of a social rather than a spectacular nature, and beyond providing what may be termed "a pleasant outing for club members" do not purport to be anything out of the way as regards a test of the capabilities of the cars or the prowess of the drivers. Luck rather than good judgment or good machinery enters largely into these competitions, and until such time as the contests are associated with a greater display of speed, skilful and daring driving, motoring as a sport will never become popular in this country.

It is man's insatiable craving for speed which has brought the automobile to the high state of perfection and popularity which it enjoys to-day, and it is the gist of competition for which the modern automobile road or track race is responsible which has placed the racing car and its idolised driver in a pre-eminent position in the pages of the world's sport. The sport-loving community of Australia have not yet tasted of its joys even in the mildest forms. Many people have travelled at high speeds for short distances, and have also experienced a thrill of excitement in overtaking and passing another car. It is quite possible that some have seen a once famous racer in his day lapping a racecourse track with much smoke and noise at a round speed of a mile a minute. But that is not the sport as it is known on the Indianapolis speedway, on the Ameri[illegible] circuit, or even at Brooklands. In these places the sport of automobolism has been reduced to a fine art, from both the racing and spectacular viewpoints, and the game is thoroughly understood by the manufacturer, the driver, and the public.

For months ahead of such an event as the Grand Prix race of France the progress of the work on the machines in the several factories is watched with the greatest interest by the whole of the automobile manufacturing world. The names of the drivers are household words among the public long before the men have accustomed themselves to their machines, and this, probably, is some 10 weeks before the day of the race. In the meantime, almost every municipality of [illegible] has been clamouring to the organising body with big monetary inducements to have the event held in their province. At the most the event will only last two days, but for six or eight months there will be an army of men employed by the promoters on the course grading the corners, cutting down trees, building colossal grand stands, and digging the necessary pits alongside the roads for the accommodation of the spare tyres, fuel, and attendants of the racing crews.

This is as it is in France. In America, perhaps, the arrangements are more complete. Considerably more money, certainly, is involved. A few months ago some [illegible] spectators—at 8s a head—assembled at the Indianapolis speedway to witness the 500-mile race for the International Grand Prize. [illegible] and were seated in the grand stands, the majority of this great throng could see the complete circuit of the glazed [illegible] slightly blackened at the corners, [illegible] straining cars—suddenly thrown [illegible] haunches, so to speak—scattered [illegible] smooth tiles. They could see the [illegible] the cream of the world's best, handled by the world's most famous drivers—passing lap after lap at speeds close on a 100 miles an hour. Time and again, five or six cars seemingly locked together, would approach a corner at that appalling speed. There would be a sudden silence, while a cloud of smoke from the [illegible] throttled engines the cars were apparently hurtling to destruction. But skill was [illegible] even as speed. Burman, with a double [illegible] which tore the rear tyres clean to the [illegible] had made the turn at full speed, and was straightening up on the outer edge of the track, the spectators meanwhile running for their lives. The more cautious Goux, with throttled engine and shrieking brakes, hugged the inner circle, passed the [illegible] other cars which were sliding in a body to the outer edge of the track, and then, with a great roar, set out in pursuit of Burman. An attendant dashed forward at the [illegible] scattered lime on the newly-sprinkled [illegible] dodged a flying car, sprang back to safety, and then the vast crowd breathed again for some eight hours under a blazing sun to the music of a dozen massed bands, the company were entertained, while on the track Joules Goux, alternately accelerating, throttling and braking, steadily won trophy after trophy until he had annexed seven thousand of the £10,000 available as prize money, broke records, and wrote his name large in every news sheet in the world.

Besides the story of this year's Grand Prix race of France, it would seem that from the spectators' view point, the most strenuous boat race, the most valiant struggle on a football field, or the most electrifying sprint of champions on the track pales into insignificance. Such events would be but incidents in the progress of the French classic. Imagine, for a moment, a stretch of white, or rather, gray, road of the smoothness of [illegible] and flanked in either hand with immense stands packed with an excitable throng just a half mile and an acute angle of the 20-mile triangular course of the Amiens circuit. Between the grand stands and the road are the repair pits, sunk trenches which contain all the speedy appliances and [illegible] necessary for the rapid filling of tanks and replacement of tyres.

The French idol, Goux, is in the race, and is leading, but by a narrow margin only. The crowd can see that instantly from the score board opposite. Down the straight he comes, leaving a thin, blue trail of smoke, but the mechanic's hand is raised and the crowd groans its disappointment—a tyre must be changed. With a deft turn of the wheel the car is swerved to the pit. The crowd looks at its watch. Five seconds. Driver and mechanic are out of the car. With lightning but accurate movements, Goux is unstrapping a used spare wheel; by the aid of a pneumatic jack his assistant is raising the chassis. Ten seconds. The wheel is unlocked, drawn from the axle, and thrown to the pit. 15 seconds. A new Rudge-Whitworth is being pushed home. 20 seconds. The men are separated, Goux securing another spare wheel to the body, the mechanic locking the road wheel "safe". 25 seconds.

A roar emanates from the crowd. A car is coming down the straight. Goux is in his seat half turned awaiting the signal. The jack is jerked from under the chassis. The mechanic springs erect, raises his hand, and with one movement springs into his seat. The engine roars, the car leaps forward, and Goux with one hand on the wheel, and the other drawing down his mask, swings round the bend not a minute too soon, for his adversary is upon him. But the end is towards the end of the day, when brakes are worn out and steering gears are loose, and, may be, strained. A long way from the corner the engine is cut out in a vain endeavour to slacken speed; the mechanic leans far out of his seat and tears at the reds, but without avail, for the car skids badly—almost turns completely round—and before it can be got under control again, Goux is away on the [illegible] circuit drumming along between the poplars at a hundred mile an hour clip.

Such is the game as played in France—and too, on the road at Milwaukee, Brescia, and elsewhere. It is small wonder that the country side ceases work to look on when the champions of the road don their goggles and with accelerator pedals flat with the floor set off in a pursuit match race with death. Some day perhaps the sports promoters in this country will turn their attention in this direction, and here, where a crowd of some thirty thousand will assemble in the dead of night to witness a bicycle race, or an even greater number sit for days in the scorching sun to watch the slow progress of an international game, it is not a hard matter to estimate the proportions of a crowd which would come from far and near to see such a race as the Grand Prix, conveniently staged within the confines of the State.

FOOTBALL.

THE RUGBY UNION GAME.

NEW SOUTH WALES PLAYS BRILLIANTLY.

Very few New South Wales representative teams have shaped in more brilliant fashion than that of last Saturday against Queensland at the University Oval. There was that complete understanding and combination, certainty of movement, pace, and spectacular play which were present in the best combinations that have appeared for this State in past contests with the Northerners. And it is a fact that few back divisions have played better Rugby. Their passing and running were delightful to watch, and at no time did it seem likely that the Queenslanders could stop them when once they got into their stride. Jones was the moving spirit in all the attacks, and the Newcastle centre has developed into a remarkably clever player. He, with the veteran half-back, Wood—who has seldom played in better form—were the star backs, but all shaped excellently, excepting Spratt, who is hardly yet at interstate standard, although he may develop into a fine exponent of full-back play. Carr received some fine opportunities after Jones had engineered the openings, and he made the most of them. His two tries were dashing, determined efforts that carried him past players just in the nick of time. Suttor did not get many chances, but he put in a fine run in scoring his try. Jones was again responsible for this try, as he drew the defence and then sent a long pass over Wogan's head to the Bathurstian, who had then only to use his pace. It was a masterpiece in head play on Jones' part, and reminiscent of the old three three-quarter game and the long pass to the wing. Every player in the back division scored, even Spratt, the full-back, who notched the only goal. This was the only occasion that a try has been converted for New South Wales this season, although 18 attempts have been made. In the circumstances, it was fortunate for Queensland that the score was not larger.

In the forwards this State has not often been represented by such a fine body of stalwarts as those that turned out on Saturday. All were big, clean-limbed, athletic men, and showed great strength and pace. They bunched together splendidly, and several showed much better form even than that on which they were selected. Watson and Walters were the best of a fine eight who dominated the position from kick-off to no-side. In the scrummages, line-outs, ruck and open they were always better than their opponents. Fahey, Duffy, and Wallach, were good in the open. George and O'Donnell secured the ball in the front row. Massie shaped better than in club games, but he was not as good as his comrades.

Although the Queenslanders were outclassed, they kept pluckily to their task. Early in the second half matters took a turn their way, and for a little while the forwards, led by P. Murphy, who has been to Sydney so often with the Northerners that he is now quite a veteran, outplayed our vanguard. It was only temporary, however, as Walters, Watson and company once more resumed command. In the backs McMahon shaped consistently, his kicking being particularly good. Flynn was not as happy at centre three-quarter as at half back. Carroll, the full-back, did not live up to the reputation which preceded him from Charters Towers. Melbusch had few chances, but he showed all his old dash in scoring his try. Manis was weak, as also was Russell. The latter by hanging on, spoilt many openings after making them. Larcombe played well, but the fact that the Blues secured the ball in the scrum limited his chances. With the exception of Murphy, none of the forwards were up to the form shown by the home team. Williams was fairly good, but the Charters Towers contingent were not seen to advantage. It is only fair to state that a number of the Queenslanders suffered from the effects of vaccination, and that Russell and Melbusch were both injured early in the game. However, it is generally admitted by the Maroons that the form of the Blues was too good for them.

The high standard of Rugby Union football in New South Wales was again shown in the game between the second fifteen of the State and Queensland on Monday. In the match last Saturday the home side had possession nearly all the afternoon, and thus the visitors were always on the defensive. Possession means a great deal, and there was a general feeling that the result might have been different if the Queenslanders had heeled instead of their opponents. However, on Monday the visitors had their share of the ball, but the margin in favour of the home side was still very large. The local men worked into a fine combination from a bunch of players who had never played together before, and who were very much astray during the first half. But once they understood one another there was no doubt as to the superiority of the local team, and points came at a great rate.

All this time the Queenslanders were getting the ball, and Flynn was doing his share, by starting the backs on rushes towards goal, but the other backs were not good enough, and Melbusch was sadly missed. Although successful in the scrum just as often as our own side, the rest of the forward play was with the New South Wales team, and all shaped exceedingly well. Some of the rushes were smartly executed and irresistible, inasmuch as the backing up and supporting work gave the opposition no chance. Queensland has lost very few players to the Rugby League, and the present side is said to be the most representative that has ever come to Sydney. Yet in two days the huge scores of 26 to 6 and 34 to 12 have been compiled against them by two different teams.

One of the most pleasing features of the games was the ability shown by the countrymen. Jones distinguished himself as a clever and versatile player, and Suttor did his share towards the victory on Saturday. On Monday, Simpson, Bosward, and Price were excellent. The former, although light, played splendid football, and scored nine points by goal-kicking. Price fed his three-quarters in splendid style, and his transfers were clean and easy to take with the pace up. Allport has not enough vim yet, but should develop into a good forward. Rosenthall was not so successful as O'Donnell in the front row but Bosward at centre is a grand type of three-quarter. Strong and resolute, both in defence and attack, he is a credit to the City and Suburban Union, with whom he played for many years. The showing of these men with the undoubted superiority of Dwyer over other full-backs has justified the New South Wales Union's system of country selection and the development of the game outside the city.

THE RUGBY LEAGUE GAME.

PREMIERS' STRONG POSITION.

A noteworthy feature of the second round of League fixtures has been the evenness of the teams as regards merit. The sides popularly supposed to be at a disadvantage have risen to the occasion, and confused the prophets by either thoroughly extending or even defeating the more favourably situated clubs in the competition table. Rarely has a second round provided so many surprises as have been witnessed in the present series, as in only two instances did Saturday's results bear out the form of the first round. However, no appreciable change took place in the positions of the leading clubs, unless it be that the premiers, by their defeat of Balmain, have practically set the seal on this season's championship. Many people looked forward to an Eastern Suburbs reverse, especially when they took the field without their champion, H. H. Messenger, but the expected did not happen, as quite early in the second half the easterners levelled off the first half deficit of 5 points, and a little later took a commanding grip of a game in which they finally triumphed by 13 points to 5.

Taken right through the game was not a great one, and the result disappointed the enthusiastic adherents of the Balmain Club. Balmain only occasionally showed glimpses of that splendid aggressiveness and sterling defence which marked their conquests of Glebe and South Sydney. The first half of the game was rather tame, and although Eastern Suburbs faced a strong breeze, they gave a much better display than was expected. However, during this period the methods adopted by Balmain were very crude, and they repeatedly neglected opportunities to augment their score. No fewer than 16 penalty kicks were awarded to them, but in only one instance did they profit by their opponents' mistakes. Cummins, usually a safe kick, and Fraser, were off their game. Had the opportunities been converted there is no saying what their opponents' tally would have been.

Balmain's forwards lacked finish, and they were palpably weak in tactics, and this remark also applies to the halves. Having the assistance of such a powerful wind they should have known that when the ball was in the air it needed careful watching, and that, by quick following up, they could have continually harassed the opposing backs. However, the high punt was absent, the forwards preferring ground rushes, and the halves a futile passing game. The winners' forwards all played well. At half-back Halloway and Cubitt worked desperately hard. The former was particularly heady under pressure, and his alertness when on the attack made many excellent openings. The best man on the three-quarter-line was Frawley, and had he handled the ball more frequently Eastern Suburbs' points would have been increased. He badly outwitted Balmain's clever little full-back when he scored in the corner. Kinghorn was disappointing, his failing being his slow clearances. In addition, his kicking lacked judgment, though he improved when he had the assistance of the wind.

Balmain were distinctly superior in defence than in attack. Of a hard-working pack Woodward, Cummins, and Noble performed with distinction. Craig played one of his characteristic lively games in the open, but marred his work by persistent off-side tactics. Johnson and Fraser were easily the best of Balmain's backs, the former showing both courage and tact, and his clever try through the breaking pack revealed headiness of a rare order. The three-quarters were weak, G. Wheatley being right off his game.

South Sydney's defeat by Balmain last week cast a temporary shadow over their brilliant run of successes. In their successful game with Glebe at Wentworth Park, however, there was a complete return to form, when they executed some of those dazzlingly brilliant movements which have won the club so much success. There was a boisterous breeze, of which South Sydney had the advantage in the first half, and they made splendid use of it, the half-time scores being 12 to 3 in their favour. During this period Glebe did remarkably well to keep the scoring down, as the Southern backs were in an irresistible mood, whilst the ponderous punting of Hallett materially helped to make the period a very trying one for the Glebe defence. H. Horder seemed to revel in the fast work which came his way, as he was responsible for the first 10 points scored. His second try was a remarkably fine one.

In the second half Glebe had slightly the better of the game, mainly because their forwards were a little more successful in gaining possession. However, their attacks were not very convincing, the spoiling tactics of the Southern backs often frustrating what looked like very dangerous moves. Hallett played grandly at full-back; in fact, his exhibition was without a flaw. He used the wind to great advantage in the first half, whilst in the second he relied on his pace rather than risk putting the ball in the air. H. Horder was particularly brilliant, and gave a display of fast and clever football. M'Cabe at stand-off half had not a great deal to do, as the wily Cann monopolised the play of this position. Butler was an ideal scrummage worker. He was always alert and keen at making openings, and his passing was accurate. Brighton was a very successful "raker" in the first half, and was well supported by the men at each side of him. Lewis and H. R. Thompson were capital in the loose.

M'Gregor played soundly for Glebe at full-back, although he was badly beaten by H. Horder on one occasion. Hickey was the best of a third line which was disappointing, the wing men particularly showing poor form. Regan and M'Kivat worked out many great moves for their three-quarters, and it must have been disappointing to them to see their efforts nullified either through faulty handling of lack of judgment by the men behind. Gray and Keating were the most conspicuous of the Glebe vanguard.

Annandale have only to repeat Saturday's form against North Sydney to find themselves occupying a respectable position in the City Cup competition, which will follow the present premiership matches. So well did they play in the opening spell that they established a lead of seven points. North Sydney were out-played by their clever opponents, whose back play was a revelation. Ray Norman gave a delightful exhibition, and was irresistible. His three tries were all praiseworthy efforts, two being the result of rare opportunism. In every department Annandale were strong, and their victory was worthily gained. Challis played finely at full back, and on his Saturday's form gives promise of big things in the near future. He shows rare courage, and possesses generalship rarely found in one so young. Wall performed ably in the three-quarter line, and his prolific goal-kicking was a potent factor in his side's victory. Of the forwards Perry and Lennon shone out, but the whole six worked hard. Taplin, at full back, O. Deane at centre, and S. M'Farlane at half-back, were the pick of the Northerners' back division, who were disappointing. Gosper shone out with Sullivan in the loose rushes, but as a combination the northern six were inferior to those in opposition.

The fluctuating character of the second half of the game at Pratten Park between Newtown and Western Suburbs made matters very interesting and exciting, and especially was this the case in the concluding minutes, when the tally was equal and M'Cue literally snatched victory for his side by scoring right on the call of no-side. The form of the Westerners was surprisingly good, and at the interval, when they had a substantial lead of eleven points, the supporters of the Blues were very downcast. However, the pace maintained by the Westerners in this spell told its inevitable tale as the game wore on, and in the closing stages points came in galore to Newtown. The home side were splendidly represented by their forwards, who, though a little inferior in the matter of gaining possession, were collectively superior in the loose. The losers were unfortunate in not registering more tries, as they narrowly missed several through lack of finish at the critical moment. Fortune favoured Newtown when M'Fayden was thrown into touch in goal. A dive by the Westerner would surely have ended in a try. For the winners Collins and Roy Farnsworth, of the backs, and P. M'Cue and Ryan, of the forwards, performed with distinction. For the losers Courtney, Steward, Naylor, and Joass worked well and consistently throughout.

THE AUSTRALIAN GAME.

FIRST ROUND OF MATCHES CONCLUDED.

Excepting in one instance, the results of Saturday's games in the League competition did not materially affect the positions of the clubs. The exception referred to—North Sydney—lost their position as co-equal aspirants with South Sydney and Newtown to qualify for the semi-final games, and along with Balmain and East Sydney have dropped out of the competition. The splendid form shown throughout the season by Sydney warrants the assumption that they will win the premiership. Apart from the fact of their excellent form, they hold the challenge right, which gives them two chances against one by Paddington, South Sydney, and Newtown in future engagements. However, the uncertainty that pertains to the game may upset calculations, and as the teams promise to strip in good physical condition, the football shown may prove to be worthy of the occasion.

Paddington and Newtown will be the first contestants in the semi-final games, which will begin on Saturday, and should the weather prove favourable, a splendid match should result. By their excellent display against South Sydney on Saturday, Paddington gave proof that they have recovered from their defeat by Sydney on the previous Saturday. After starting the season with four defeats, Newtown retrieved their position in admirable fashion, and so won their way into the semi-final games. On the whole, they are a young team, with a leavening of experienced players in Meadows, Hortin, Quested, Davis, and Munro.

Consequent on their easy defeat of North Sydney and Paddington's inglorious display against Sydney on the previous Saturday, South Sydney entered into their contest with Paddington with great confidence. But they narrowly escaped returning home lamenting, as, though they had slightly the better of play up to the end of the third quarter, Paddington, with a better disposition of their forces, would probably have won. Only three points divided the sides at the call of time, South Sydney having 49 points against Paddington's 46. The game was not remarkable for brilliance, being more of a solid character. Especially was this so with South Sydney, whose ruck work on the day was pre-eminent. The midget trio—Beaver, McCann, and Leplastrier—were in great form for Paddington, who were also well served by Gough, Parr, Chapman, Vockler, and Haurahan. Murphy was South Sydney's best performer, his high marking affording relief to the solidity of the team's work in general. He was ably supported by Power, Stevenson, Moore, Hughes, Maine, Sands, Pasco, and Murphy.

There was little brilliancy in the display given by North Sydney against Sydney at Moore Park. The Northerners did not have a strong side, but those who did duty battled bravely but to small purpose against a much superior side. A team which is strong individually but weak in system may be beaten by a weaker side on occasions, but not so Sydney. Their system of play is so far in advance of anything in local circles that it will require a strong opposition to extend them. Perhaps such may be forthcoming in the semi-final games. In the meantime, the Sydney Club and its officials have reason to be proud of the standard they have set up, and other clubs would do well were they to set about and strive to obtain the same pre-eminence in playing methods. It is only by such efforts that the game can be brought up to the level of the other States. The scores at the finish were: Sydney, 118 points; North Sydney, 24 points. The figures speak eloquently as to the disparity of the sides.

Small interest, generally, was taken in the Newtown-Balmain fixture at the Australian Football Ground. Balmain won their opening match of the season against South Sydney on the same ground, and their fixture with Newtown was their second. The team was a weak one, and in such circumstances Newtown had an easy task, and what was little more than a friendly game ended in a win for Newtown by 60 points to 20.

In the second grade competition, Northern Districts cleared another obstacle in their path to the season's premiership when, after an excellent game, they beat Sydney by 29 points to 12. They will play Paddington for the premiership on Saturday, and are expected to win. Should they fail, they have the right of challenge.

Beyond the fact that the Carlton Club (Victoria) have abandoned their proposed trip to Sydney on the 16th instant, nothing definite is known as to whether they will come later on in the season. Everything, apparently, hinges on the future position as to the smallpox epidemic. Carlton were to have played at Albury on their return journey, so that disappointment at their late withdrawal will not be confined to Sydney. The Cootamundra club wrote the New South Wales League requesting that a match be played at that town between Carlton and a combined Metropolitan team. Anything that might have been done in the matter will now be deferred pending future arrangements.

The withdrawal of a guarantee to the South Sydney Club by the Northern Tasmanian Association, at the instance of the Tasmanian Football League, has resulted in the former abandoning their proposed trip to Tasmania during next month. Instead, they intend to visit the country districts in the Southern portion of New South Wales, and the League has sanctioned the proposed tour.

The Albury Club are desirous of visiting Sydney, and have written the League to that effect. The visit will probably be arranged for at the conclusion of the League premiership games.

The flourishing state of the game in the southern portions of the State, and the excellence of play, as evidenced by the form of the Ariah Park Club which lately visited Sydney, are matters which merit attention from the football legislators of the game in New South Wales. A conference in Sydney of country and city representatives could formulate plans for the game's advancement, which, if sent on to the Australasian Football Council, would probably be productive of much good. Decentralisation is of vital importance in the promulgation of the game in such a huge State as New South Wales.

As Balmain has forfeited the postponed match against South Sydney the only league match on Saturday will be the semi-final game between Paddington and Newtown, at the Australian football ground. The final of the second grade premiership will be between Northern Districts and Paddington, and will be the early game to the league fixture.

THE BRITISH ASSOCIATION GAME.

THE STATE CHAMPIONSHIP.

The State championship games last Saturday, besides finally eliminating country's chances of gaining the Gardiner Challenge Cup this season, determined the contestants for the third round, the draw evolved being, Sydney v Northern Suburbs, Newtown v Burns Club, Balmain v Annandale, Balmain Reserves v Granville.

Lithgow Thistle failed to confirm the good opinions expressed of them after their game with Goulburn Rovers, and, despite the fact that Layton and Arthur Jones were absentees, Northern Suburbs attained third-round honours with ease. Valentine played an invaluable defence game for the visitors, but Stanger and Turnbull frustrated their attack, though in the second section, during which C. Jones played a hard game for the Northerners, the persistency of the Lithgow forwards, aided by the strong breeze, gained the side many corner kicks, which, however, were not utilised to the full.

A word concerning the calibre of the country contestants in the championship tournament seems in season, and the first point which obtrudes itself is that of the uncertainty of every attacking line engaged in the competition. Good wingers (Acres excepted) were absent, and, excluding Weston, a lack of combination was noticeable in the ranks of the attacking fives. Against this is the undeniable strength of the half-lines, and the conspicuous superiority of the back divisions over those of the metropolis, particularly in the Novocastrian combinations. The full-backs proved a medium factor, though, in one instance, Elliott, of Merewether, a keeper of more than ordinary merit competed. Without declaring that country form has deteriorated, a safe statement certainly is that no team came forward of the calibre of Adamstown of 1909, Helensburgh of 1910, and the West Wallsend and Minmi cup teams of the nineties, nor possessing the elements of all-round ability exhibited by those teams, though one must admit that a game City versus Country would produce a hard tussle.

Returning to the Gardiner games. Praise must be given Ross, Fleming, and Cox, for the splendid win achieved by Burns Club at the expense of Balmain Second Leagues, though it must be admitted that, as a whole, the team acquitted themselves well. Ross played a clever game, and he was ably assisted by M'Kenzie. Wardrope was a safer custodian than Stewart, who was too risky, and, although the former received able assistance from Wark and Nixon (who should check his propensities for violating the laws pertaining to rough play), the inability of the halves to check the Burns' vanguard allowed them to continually invade the danger zone with disastrous results to Balmain. Meaney and Harris were particularly noticeable on the losing side, whilst Smith and McFeat were potent factors in Burns' good win.

Granville and Canterbury had a merry game at Sydney Cricket Ground No. 2, and the result of the re-play leaves matters as before. Though not fully representative, the elements, plus a fine game from Hilder, gave the Clydesiders the upper hand in the first half, and it speaks well for the tenacity and skill of Canterbury that they succeeded in equalising the score, and making the game more than interesting till Sloman put the issue beyond doubt. The form showed by Canterbury this season in Cup ties has produced the best Cup record the club has experienced since 1886, when, after defeating Caledonians in the semi-final, a good game was played in the final ere Granville won.

The positions of the teams in the first league have undergone a great change as the result of last Saturday's games, and Balmain—who have played an extra match—share top position with Newtown, closely followed by Sydney and Annandale. The lastnamed met Newtown, who were without M'Anish, at Sydenham, and managed to make a draw of it. Thanks mainly to Lowe, the first section was scoreless, and the obstinacy of Blakeley and Dennis threatened to spoil Annandale's plan of campaign till Carroll picked up a pass from Tawle and outwitted Mitchell. This reverse thoroughly roused the local men, who again found Lowe a stumbling-block till the versatile masters seized an opportunity, and successfully evaded him, thus recording a drawn game.

Old rivals in Balmain and Sydney had a rare set-to at Epping, where faulty shooting and over-anxiety threatened to record a scoreless draw till Moore infused some combination into his attack, and a finish worthy of the triumphal days of Balmain in the nineties was the outcome. Balmain opened with the wind in their favour, and, leaving aside the sterling work of the Sydney defence, found Duggan consistently brilliant and impassable, with the result that the first half was scoreless. Sydney entered on the second in high feather, and Herron, Holt, and Gallagher caused Balmain's supporters many anxious moments, which were relieved by the hard, effective play of the whole back division, Byers having a big say in stemming the Blue attack. At a very interesting stage Balmain were awarded a penalty kick, which Charlton safely piloted past Duggan, and only from that moment did they completely hold the upper hand, and a goal later by O'Hehir made their victory assured. Moore deserves great credit for his play in the second spell, and all round his mainstay—the half-line—were better than their opponents; but in the back division Sydney were more effective. Herron stood out in the Sydney attack, whilst the whole of the Balmain line was effective, Robertson and Charlton doing great deeds, and Grogan, who was unaccountably neglected in the first half, a big factor in obtaining the two deciding goals.

The team to tour Victoria has undergone material alteration, and the decisions of Masters and Moore to stand down, through unavoidable circumstances, mean that our Victorian confreres are to be denied a chance of witnessing two of the finest exponents in the Commonwealth in action. The defection of Moore was responsible for one extra half being chosen, and a reliable pair in Hilder and Newson being added to the team, so that the oft-repeated statement re Moore's star being on the wane does not appear to have any foundation in fact. As far as is known at present, only the two interstate games will be played—one at Fitzroy and the other at St. Kilda.

ROWING.

SHORT OR LONG COURSES?

LEANDER IN CENTRE SEATS.

HARVARD v YALE.

The New South Wales Rowing Association's thirty-fifth annual meeting was well attended, and one could detect a keen and enthusiastic spirit amongst the members present. If the general tone of the meeting be taken as a criterion of the coming rowing season, then one might be justified in saying that its success is already assured. The presentation of trophies won during the last season brought forth a ripple of enthusiasm, and recalled the many little incidents surrounding crews which spend many weeks preparing themselves for struggles which bring honour to their clubs as well as to themselves. Happily, the honours were evenly distributed amongst the clubs during the past year, and nothing pleases the enthusiast better than to see it so.

The marked consistency of the Enterprise Club in contesting every race placed on the programme during the season reaped its reward, as they were the recipients of the first honours—the premiership pennant. In the junior division the Mosman Club claimed pride of place, for which they were presented with the white pennant—which represented the junior premiership. Then came Balmain and Leichhardt, who won the "Q. L. Deloitte Cup" and "Riverview" gold cup, respectively. The Glebe Club came in for distinction by way of winning the Magnus-Mercantile trophy, and St. Ignatius College carried off the schools championship in fours, while the Sydney Church of England Grammar School annexed the Major Rennie trophy for schools championship eights. Certificates of honour should have been presented to the champion oarsmen, but they were not forthcoming, so that they will have to be presented on a less auspicious occasion.

During the evening some interesting points were raised, and some troublesome questions discussed. It was suggested that the club sending competitors for every race during the season should be in some way rewarded: perhaps by being allotted extra points in the competition. However, it is a good suggestion, and should receive some consideration. Another proposal was that the clubs should make a special effort to supply information regarding their doings, so that the public might be kept in touch with what is being done in the sport; but there are those who differ and argue that the least said the soonest mended.

MR. D. S. CARTER,
Manager of the Queensland Rugby Union team.

SHORT OR LONG COURSES?

Will races over short courses tend to popularise rowing? This matter came in for some consideration at the meeting. A plea was made to suspend the present rules for a term so as to enable short courses to be tried during the coming season. The object is to popularise the sport by attracting the public, and so induce young men to join in. The move is a progressive one, and no harm could possibly result from giving it a trial. Of course, like every other subject, there are arguments that can be adduced for and against the suggested change. For instance, for years the championship regattas in this State have been held over a three miles course, and although some of them have been good and also well contested all the way, it must be admitted that the majority of them have proved mere processions. It is admitted, too, that there has been an actual loss financially on the majority of them owing to the poor attendance, which indicates that the public have grown tired of them. The old-fashioned method of holding regattas is fast becoming obsolete, and something should be done to bring the sport up-to-date, and make it attractive. If short courses will do it, why not try them?

Some experts argue that to change our present three mile course to one mile would tend to lower the standard of oarsmanship and lead to a deterioration in our present style. It has been pointed out that we row our interstate championship over three miles, and that we would jeopardise our chance of achieving success by shortening our course for our State champion eights. Oxford and Cambridge are pointed to as rowing an even longer course than we do for their championship, extending over 4½ miles. Yet it might be pointed out that the majority of races promoted at Oxford are rowed on a short course, and on totally different water. It would gladden the hearts of those Australians who are clamouring for short courses to witness the keen enthusiasm which is displayed at Oxford. A great crowd, both on land and water, is confined within a small area to witness the races, where frenzied partisans of college crews tear up and down the tow-path roaring themselves hoarse and cheering their respective fancies on to victory. Flags, pistols, megaphones, and whatnot are brought into requisition. The excitement is great, and makes one feel as though everyone is or wants to be an oarsman there and then. Yet this is where the greatest oarsmen in the world learn to row—on a short and narrow course—and this is why the English public like to watch rowing.

Australians love excitement in sport, and it is something on the lines of the Oxford races that one would like to see introduced here—something exciting and attractive for the public, and something good and wholesome for those who take part in it. It is admitted that to row a short race well means more careful training and longer time than for the long distance. Before the Australian crew went to England it was said that they might not be able to adapt themselves to the short courses there, and row in anything like form, but what did we find?—a magnificent race, rowed with absolutely perfect rhythm, not exceeding 38 strokes per minute. And what can be done by an Australian crew abroad can be done at home.

LEANDER IN CENTRE-SEATED BOAT.

It is said that imitation is the sincerest form of flattery, and it might be taken as a compliment by Australians that since they paid their visit to Henley last year and won in a centre-seated boat, three of the leading rowing institutions in the world have taken to the model, if they have not actually adopted it. Cambridge University in their race with Oxford this year rowed in the race for the first time in history in a centre-seater; New College and Magdalene have each had one built, and the latest advices inform us that the Leander crew for the 1913 Grand Challenge Race started their practice in a centre-seater.

HENLEY REGATTA.

Particulars are to hand of the first two days' racing in connection with the Henley Regatta. The most interesting events decided were the Leander-Argonaut contest in the heat for the Grand Challenge and Cecil McVilly's victory in a heat of the Diamond Sculls.

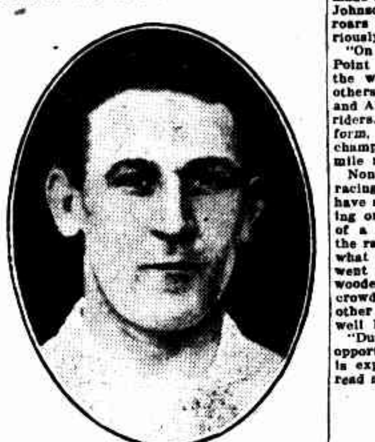

From some points of view it was to be regretted that Leander and Argonaut were brought together so early in the competition for the Grand Challenge. Had the Argonauts been drawn against some of the other eights, their prospects of winning would have been much brighter, and it would have made a most attractive final with the Canadians as one of the competitors. Leander improved surprisingly during the last week of the practice, and Mr. Guy Nickalls had been most persevering in his coaching. Had the crews met at the beginning of last week I ("Sporting Life" correspondent) certainly think the Canadians would have been the faster. They were as fit as possible when they came to the mark this morning (July 3), but they were not able to hold Leander even in the first minute. G. E. Tower, who made his reputation as a stroke by the splendid work which he did for Cambridge in the last boat race, brought the Leander eight off the mark at a tremendous pace. Both crews, for that matter, did remarkably well at the start, and when I saw Leander lead before leaving Temple Island, I had grave doubts of the Canadians ever catching them. Tower kept the stroke fairly long, and the crew were rowing well together and putting plenty of power behind their blades. They maintained the lead all the way to the mile post, and it was here that the Argonauts made a most determined effort to crack the Englishmen. The latter, however, were equal to the occasion, and won, amidst loud cheering, the Canadians also being cheered for the excellent race which they had given Leander, who, in order to win, had to put up 6m 51s, which equalled the record.

When I saw Mr. Joe Wright, who has coached the Canadians, after the race he freely admitted that they had no excuses to offer. "We were beaten by a faster crew," was his observation. "This was the fastest eight that has ever left Canada," he continued. "We were quite prepared for Leander to lead us at the start, but we thought, unless they got too far away before passing Fawley, that we should wear them down over the last half. It was the speed of Leander from Fawley to the finish which surprised us. We did not think they would be able to hold out quite so long at high pressure."

In defeating E. Lucas Sailer in the Diamond Sculls, Cecil McVilly conquered a fast and gritty opponent, who won his juniors, junior-seniors, and seniors at three successive best boat regattas in 1911. Soon after the start McVilly, whose rate of striking was 21 and 37 to Sailer's 18 and 34, took the lead, and led at the quarter by a length, and won by five lengths in 8m 49s. As our readers are aware, McVilly won the final.

HARVARD v YALE.

The annual boat races between the American Universities of Harvard and Yale were rowed in June on the Thames River, Connecticut, and Harvard won the fours and both Freshmen's and University eights. For this fine performance a good deal of credit was given to the Australian professional, James Wray, who was a member of the Balmain Working Men's Rowing Club, now known as Enterprise club, and which hoisted the premier pennant on Saturday last. Although skilful in any class of boats, Wray was by no means remarkable for stamina. However, as coach of Harvard crew he has made a reputation, and has been more successful than other coaches who have had charge of such crews.

F. WOOD (Glebe),
Captain of the New South Wales Rugby Union team, that defeated Queensland at the University Oval on Saturday last by 26 points to 6.

Amateur rowing in the United States dates back to 1839, when the Detroit club was established. This old and wealthy boat club was recently coached by another Australian professional sculler, Charles Stephenson. Yale University established a boat club in 1843, and Harvard followed suit three years later, but the first race between them did not take place until 1852, on Lake Winipiscogee. Seven years later a College Union regatta was inaugurated. This took place on Lake Quinsigamond (Mass.), when six-oared coxswainless boats were used. So far only four clubs were found competing, but by 1875 there were no fewer than 12 different Universities represented in one race. They finished in the following order:—Cornell, Columbia, Harvard, Dartmouth, Wesleyan, Yale, Amherst, Brown, Williams, Bowdin, Hamilton, and Union. In the previous year there were nine boats, and Harvard and Yale fouled. This led to trouble; but with Cornell and Pennsylvania a separate agreement was come to, and Columbia was allowed to join in. These are still the most important institutions, and with all of them there is the keenest rivalry. The rowing schools of the Halcyon and Shattuck provide some fine recruits to the Universities in much the same way as has been done in England and Australia for a number of years, and these young oarsmen have been much sought after.

R. Arnst has stated the terms on which he will follow up his challenge to J. Paddon, for the Australian sculling championship, and has made the proper deposit of £25. No doubt he will get a definite reply as soon as Messrs. H. Floyd and G. Seifert return from the Richmond, whither they have gone to witness the contest between J. Casey and R. Ford on the 9st instant, at South Woodburn. There they will consult Paddon as to the date, which Arnst has suggested to be November 15. If the tide be suitable then, no doubt that long distant date will be selected for the fixture. It would mark the 37th anniversary of a memorable event in the history of rowing, for, on November 15, 1880, the late Edward Hanlan defeated Edward Trickett for the world's title, the first "Sportsman" Cup, the championship of England and £1000 stakes. Before that the stakes had been £400. Trickett's defeat was unexpected by Australians, but it led to an improvement in our sculling.

ANGLING.

FISH CULTURE.

With the exceptional facilities many of the New South Wales districts possess, it is somewhat surprising that nothing in the way of artificial propagation of fishes has been undertaken by our worthy landowners. In back country districts, where fresh fish food is an almost unheard-of luxury, a very little trouble and expense would ensure a regular supply of this most desirable commodity. Nearly every stream in the State is more or less plentifully supplied with one or other of our native perches. In the eastern flowing streams we have the bass, and in the western waters the yellow belly or Murray cod, or both; but so far as we know, nothing whatever has been done privately to maintain or augment the supply.

The perches are fish that could be artificially raised with little or no trouble. It is only necessary to select a site out of reach of flood water, say a spring-fed gully, and divert a small stream therefrom into natural ponds or small artificial ones, which will soon assume almost natural conditions. Nothing is easier than to secure a supply of stock fish, either by fishing with rod and line or by netting the main creeks or rivers. These could be liberated in one of the ponds referred to, artificially fed, and allowed to spawn naturally, when there would be no difficulty in transferring them to the next pond, which need only be separated from the first by a gate, made of wire gauze, allowing the water to flow through, but not the small fry, which could be left there until old enough to liberate in a large pond or tank, where they would be fed and fattened, and taken out for the table as required. The whole thing is so simple, and the result so certain, that it should specially commend itself to large station owners; the initial expense would be very small compared with the advantages derived, and full details of the necessary procedure could be obtained from the State's Fisheries Expert, who would be pleased to see the suggestion carried out.

In England and America there are large establishments, employing a number of hands, where trout and other valuable fishes are hatched and reared for sale as live fishes for the stocking of streams and for the supply of choice food through the fish-markets or direct to the consumer or retailer. Trout, whitefish, etc., up to four or five lbs are easily raised in captivity, where they are artificially fed, and grow quickly on a liberal diet. At intervals the fish are all netted out of the ponds, the most perfect of them being kept for breeding purposes, while the remainder are either sold at once or kept apart from those destined to provide next season's increase, and sent to market, etc., as the demand warrants. In America special railway cars, each equipped as a complete hatchery, convey consignments of ova or fry to distant streams, lakes, etc., and remain on the spot until the fry are large enough to be liberated. The cars contain large water tanks, with an engine by means of which a stream of water is kept continuously circulating through the hatching troughs. If this can be done in a railway car with profitable results, how much easier and more economical would it be by means of a series of ponds fed by a small stream as outlined above. At Prospect there are several ponds in a small gully near the intake which afford a splendid example of what may be done at a minimum of cost; here, of course, the stream from Cataract to Prospect reservoir supplies the water, but any perennial gully could be made to answer the same purpose, and sites are usually to be found in many places where a small channel could be cut to feed a series of ponds. Once filled with water, a very small stream would keep them full, and a practically permanent supply of fish could be maintained, the offal from the slaughter-yard, cooked and chopped up, providing all the food necessary for the fish.

IN AMERICA.

AUSTRALIAN CRICKETERS' TOUR

AN INTERESTING LETTER.

Writing from Philadelphia on July 3 our special correspondent with the Australian cricketers touring America, states that some extraordinary cricket was witnessed in the return match against Philadelphia, which was referred to in Monday's "Herald." Commenting on the incidents of the tour, he says:—

"Our stay in Philadelphia has been most enjoyable, and we have had plenty of time for sight-seeing. Last Saturday night we were the guests at a dinner given by the Merion Cricket Club, and on Tuesday members of the same club drove us in motor cars out to Fairmount Park, and the very beautiful residential parts of Philadelphia.

"On Thursday night we saw some boxing, at which Joe Grimm, the Italian, was referee. Sydney followers of boxing will remember him in Australia a year or two ago, and will, perhaps, have some idea of his capabilities in that role. We derived more fun out of watching him trying to separate the boxers than anything else during the evening. Grimm made an announcement that he wanted to box Johnson, which, of course, was received with roars of laughter, for nobody takes him seriously.

"On Monday night we were invited to the Point Breeze Motordrome, and saw some of the world's leading bicycle riders. Among others were Jackie Clarke, Alfred Goullet, and Alfred Grenda, the well-known Australian riders. Clarke and Goullet are riding in great form, and we saw Clarke beat the world's champion, Frank Z. Kramer, in a quarter-mile race.

None of us are likely to forget the motor racing, for of all the sensational things we have seen this easily takes first place. Riding on a wooden track as steep as the side of a house, these motor bike riders go at the rate of 90 miles an hour, and one wonders what would happen if the least little thing went wrong. The motordrome, with its wooden tracks, is well worth seeing, and big crowds witness the bike racing, boxing, and other attractions there. Floyd M'Farland, well known in Australia, is the manager.

"During the last few days we have had an opportunity of sampling some of the heat that is experienced in America, and of which we read so much in Australia. The temperature yesterday was 97, and it is about the same to-day. Three deaths and innumerable prostrations resulted from the oppressive humidity and high temperature. One sees coatless and even collarless men in all the principal streets and cafes. Nobody wears a coat, and it is a strange sight to Australians. After our practice yesterday morning we all had a swim in the beautiful bath on the Macheim ground. On coming home yesterday afternoon I discovered Emery lying in a bath smoking a cigarette and reading a book. He contended that that was the only way to keep cool.

P. J. FLYNN,
Captain of the Queensland Rugby Union team.

"Although numbers of horses have dropped dead through the heat, one is pleased to see the splendid way in which they are provided with water. Instead of having hot and dirty troughs, men are stationed at different parts of the streets, whose duty it is to water the horses out of buckets filled from pipes let down into the ground. A shower is 'rigged,' so that the horse can be given a nice cool and refreshing bath; and hoses are also provided to sluice down the poor brute's legs.

"I saw one of the men giving a dog that had been sunstruck a shower in the street opposite our hotel yesterday. One is very pleased to observe the humane manner in which these Americans treat their animals.

"We saw another baseball match this week between New York and Philadelphia, and I must confess it did not impress us any more than the first one. There must have been 15,000 people present, and what a sight it was to see all the men sitting there coatless. It was a most uninteresting game, and no one seemed to get any enjoyment out of watching it. The day before some excitement had been caused by one of the players knocking the manager of the opposing side unconscious after some words. The players "barrack" one another all the time the game is going on; and the more one sees of it the more one is convinced that it could never be compared by any stretch of imagination with the grand and refined game of cricket. Even Americans who understand both games admit this.

"Mr. A. G. Spalding says that he has never forgotten the splendid way he was treated when in Australia many years ago with a baseball team, and he is doing everything he can to make our trip a success in every way.

"We are looking forward to the test match, which starts to-morrow; but I'm afraid our side is much too strong for anything we are likely to meet in America or Canada."

POLO.

NARROMINE.

The Narromine Club's carnival, which concluded last Friday, was shorn of a good deal of interest because the local A team had no serious opposition, notwithstanding that such handicaps as 17 goals were allowed to Warren B and Narromine C, 12 to Dubbo, 10 to Warren A, and 7 to Narromine B. The tournament, too, fell short of expectations numerically, as Bathurst, Wellington, Coonamble, and Narrandera clubs were not represented, although teams were nominated.

Expressions of regret were heard on all sides when it became known that the Narrandera men had not arrived, as they were regarded as being the only combination likely to extend the local champions. This was probably based on the result of the meeting between the teams at Narrandera, when the majority in favour of the western men was only one goal in a game of 5 goals to 4. The team that visited Riverina was, however, a very different combination from the Dudley Cup heroes, and Narrandera, to have beaten them last week, would have required some assistance from the handicapper.

On the first day Narromine A were drawn against Warren A, and the final scores were: Narromine 12-25; Warren, 11-3. So, if the scores correctly reflect the game, the visitors were unable to offer any resistance worth mentioning. On the following day, however, the Warren first team scored merrily against the weak opposition shown by the Narromine C players, and they rode in winners by 24-6 to 19-7.

Then the champion four set out to overwhelm Warren's second nomination, and those familiar with the methods of the western cracks can easily imagine how Mr. L. and Mr. W. Webb and Mr. "Boxer" Stevenson revelled in the work of overtaking the formidable figures on the scoring board. Mr. Geo. Mack would probably be well up in the game too, as he had little, if anything, to do "way back." Our report of the match states that the local men scored at will and put up 22 goals and 23 behinds against a single white flag score by their opponents. This is not polo, but as efficiency in the game cannot be acquired in a season, the junior players may look forward to the time when their handicaps will be smaller and when they will have more to say in the settlement of their games.

The final was played between the local A and B teams, and the Narromine Challenge Cup is now formally held by the senior team. It is hoped that next year Mr. Mack's men will encounter opposition worthy of the occasion; but polo enthusiasts are always glad to hear of his team's success.

A gymkhana brought the carnival to a close. Several ladies competed, and their riding is said to have been superb. Miss Mack presented the trophies; and when the polo cups were being handed over, a novel situation was witnessed. The brothers, Mr. George and Mr. Murgha Mack, captained the local A and B teams respectively, and therefore received from their sister the trophies presented by their father, Mr. Frank Mack, who is president of the Narromine Polo Club.

BASEBALL.

MOSMAN-NORTH SYDNEY LEADING.

The New South Wales Baseball Association will be somewhat compensated for its financial loss on account of the postponement of the interstate carnival by the fine attendance at Petersham on Saturday, when the crowd was the largest which has attended a club match at this or any other ground in Sydney. This fact augurs well for the future financial success of the game. Two District Division matches on the one ground was doubtless a great attraction, and it is pleasing to note that the play was so interesting. In defeating Lane Cove, Mosman-North Sydney have attained the enviable position of leaders in the competition with the excellent percentage of .807. They have played 13 games, won 11, tied 1, and lost 1. Their total of 141 is excellent evidence of the side's batting strength, the nearest to them being Lane Cove with 118.

On their home ground Petersham had the satisfaction of defeating Waverley. For two seasons in succession these teams have met alternately on their home grounds, and the result in each case has been a defeat for the visiting side. The surprise of the day was the defeat of Leichhardt at the hands of Burwood. Mosman-North Sydney, Lane Cove, Leichhardt, and Petersham will play in the first division of the District Division on Saturday next. Waverley, University, Paddington, and Burwood comprise the second division. The percentages of the teams are as follow:—Mosman-North Sydney .884, Lane Cove, .807, Leichhardt .653, Petersham .500, Waverley .392, University .346, Paddington .208, Burwood .166.

The feature of the Mosman-North Sydney-Lane Cove game was the strong batting of Mosman, who made 13 base hits as against 8 by their opponents. R. V. Minnett's batting record for the match is as follows:—Times at bat 5, runs 1, safe hits 4. The safe hits include a home run and a three-bagger, both made in the fifth innings—two excellent clips that tallied four runners. W. W. Chapman also batted well, and he and R. V. Minnett registered seven safe hits out of a total of 13. Mosman practically won the game by their strong batting in their fifth innings, when no fewer than 12 batters faced the pitcher. This effort placed them two runs in the lead, 10-8, and, notwithstanding a determined attack by Lane Cove in their ninth innings, the final scores were 10-9 in favour of the Shoremen. At one stage of the game it looked as if Lane Cove held the winning hand. H. P. Woolcott, pitching for Mosman, improved as the game went on, and in the last four innings pitched so fast that his catcher allowed several passed balls with men on bases.

The game between Petersham and Waverley was closely contested, and replete with excitement. Both pitchers—H. Dean (Petersham) and P. C. Stacey (Waverley)—were in good form. The former is credited with three strike outs, and the latter with 6. Both have to thank their field for excellent support, more particularly Dean, whose infield worked together splendidly. T. J. E. Andrews, at short stop, was particularly good, while A. Brady shone at left-field. Brady and G. McShane, who batted well, made 6 base hits out of a total of 9. H. W. Turner, as catcher, compared very favourably with A. Golby. In the field, F. E. McElhone was Waverley's best player, his handling and throwing being a treat to watch. One foul fly caught by him is worthy of mention. Racing from his position at shortstop he gathered the ball in close to the pickets—a fine effort.

The University-Paddington match at Waverley was not a good exposition of baseball, Paddington being completely overshadowed; in fact, they might easily have been "chicagoed" but for a fielding error on the part of the winning side. University are being gradually moulded into an efficient team, and provided the present players be available, they should be at their best next season. F. M. Farrar has developed into a good pitcher, and would have had a far better record this season had he been more ably supported by his catcher. E. P. Barbour, N. Gregg, and J. Back are a clever lot on the bases, and the outfield is well looked after by C. R. Campling, J. Hornbrook, and L. Kortum. E. McGuinness has done some excellent work for the side lately, both at first base and shortstop. Paddington are not nearly so strong as in previous years. At the same time, credit must be given to the officials for keeping the flag flying in face of many difficulties. They have some promising young players coming on, and should not be afraid to try them out. E. Toby, promoted from the second team, has so far been a success in the outfield. On Saturday he captured three "flys." The Paddington batters did not shape well against the deliveries of the opposing pitcher.

Burwood's form in defeating Leichhardt by 9—8 evidenced considerable improvement, while Leichhardt made more errors than usual. At the end of the second innings Burwood led by 5 to 2, but Leichhardt made the scores even in the fifth. In the premier's seventh innings three runners completed the circuit, and they led at this stage by 8 to 5. In Burwood's eighth innings two runners tallied, and in their ninth Ritchie's three-bagger over right field's head scored two runners, giving Burwood a lead of one run, which the premiers were unable to obtain in their ninth.

BOXING.

The question of arranging uniform weights and rules to govern boxing contests in all parts of the world has for some time been a matter of discussion in Europe, America, and Australia, and with a view to having the matter dealt with as far as this country is concerned, Mr. R. L. Baker is convening a conference of those connected with the sport. The gathering will be held in Sydney on August 20, and it is hoped that the ultimate result will be that England and Australia, at any rate, will have the same conditions. The class in which the weights vary most in different countries at present, is the lightweight division, which in America is fixed at 9st 7lb, in England at 9st 9lb, and in Australia at 10st. The welter limit is 10st 2lb, 10st 7lb, and 10st 9lb, respectively, and other classes also vary. Under present conditions a boxer appearing in a strange country has to make different weights to secure matches, and any arrangement that would lead to uniformity would be welcomed by the sporting public. With a little give and take on the part of the boxing authorities in the different countries, this should not be a difficult accomplishment.

In Saturday's match between Mat Wells (England), and Hughie Mehegan (Australia), the men will box at the English lightweight limit. This contest is of international interest, and is attracting a big interstate attendance, its importance being second to no fixture since Johnson met Burns for the world's heavyweight title.

The merits of ju-jitsu v boxing, though often discussed, have never been publicly decided in a contest between first-rate exponents of the art. Some time ago Shima, the Japanese, and Jack Howard met in Melbourne, and after Howard had knocked Shima down for the count in the first round, the Jap. secured a fall in the second. Howard then refused to continue, and lost the bout by default. This was not altogether a satisfactory test, and while Shima was a top-notch exponent of his own game, Howard could hardly be considered in a corresponding class as a boxer. Professor W. Hill, of Sydney, is anxious to show that a white exponent of ju-jitsu can defeat a boxer, and has expressed a desire to make a match with any first-class boxer in Australia for a substantial side wager. He would prefer P. O. Curran as one of the biggest and hardest-hitting men in the game, or Dave Smith, as one of the fastest, but would consider any well-accredited opponent. A contest of this description would be an interesting variant to the usual routine of boxing matches.

OLYMPIC GAMES.

MR. HORNIMAN'S RECOMMENDATIONS.

Mr. V. Horniman, manager of the 1912 Australasian Olympic team, made several important recommendations in the report he submitted to the annual meeting of the Amateur Sporting Federation and Olympic Council on Thursday last. Referring firstly to rowing matters, he urged that it was absolutely essential in future for the boat to be used by the crew to be shipped in advance to the centre at which the Games are to be held. The anxiety regarding the welfare of the boat was a greater source of worry than the condition of the men, not only to the manager but to the actual competitors themselves. In this connection it was also suggested that an advance agent be sent to make all arrangements for hotel accommodation and training, as it was absolutely necessary that the quarters should be inspected by an expert who knew the necessary requirements. In Mr. Horniman's opinion, the whole team should proceed direct to the place at which the Games are to be held, and in this connection he paid a tribute to the swimmers who were so keen on winning the teams' race at the last Olympic Games that despite the fact that they were without the services of their best man they achieved victory.

The manager of the 1912 team was most emphatic in his belief that nobody but the champion of champions in each branch of sport should be sent. He pointed out that Australasia has no possible chance of gaining as many points as such nations as America, the United Kingdom, and the European countries, and that it is a waste of time and money, as well as losing the real object of the tour, viz.—good honest advertisement to Australasia—in sending inferior performers. No good purpose would be served in sending an athlete because he happened to be the best in Australia at the time unless he compared favourably with the champions of other nations. In one or two cases the Australasian representatives at Stockholm last year did nothing to advertise their country; in fact, they rather detracted from the value of victories, such as those gained by the swimming team at the Games, and by the oarsmen at Henley.

Mr. Horniman has got to bedrock in a number of his suggestions, but he seems to have overlooked what is probably the main one, viz., that of early organisation of the finances in order to adequately provide for the 1916 team and the proper development of the talent available during the next three years. Our swimmers and rowers compare favourably with those of other nations, but our athletes are far behind the majority of the more important countries in ability. However, it is quite on the cards that a wonderful improvement could be made if systematic coaching were introduced and regular competition provided for our men. Having held its annual meeting, it is hoped that some announcement will shortly be made by the Olympic Council as to the policy to be pursued during the next three years in order to ensure the proper representation of Australasia at Berlin in 1916.

THE ENGLISH SEASON.

HODGSON v HATFIELD.

Following is a list of this season's English Championships:—

August 25: 100 yards ladies' championship, at Hull.
September 1: 150 yards back swimming championship, at Birmingham.
September 6: International water polo trial match, at Croydon.

September 29: Plunging championship, at Newcastle-on-Tyne.
October 1: Schoolboy team swimming championship (final tie), at Bolton.
October 6: Club team swimming championship (final tie), at Camberwell, London.
October 21: 220 yards championship, at Hyde.

It is the first season for some years that Australia has not been represented in England, but the swimming will be specially interesting to Australians in view of the strenuous efforts being made by the English Association to improve the standard of its swimming for the Olympic Games of 1916. Some of the distance races are likely to provide keen contests between the fast improving Englishman, J. G. Hatfield, and G. R. Hodgson, the Canadian and Olympic champion, who is in England for the season. Some fast times should be established by these two men, and a comparison made with our own times in Australia should furnish a good lead in the selection of our team for the Olympic Games.

Writing from London to a "Herald" representative, Mr. G. T. Hill, of the Sydney Club, refers to the English season as follows:—"I have met Messrs Hurd and Meadon, ex-secretary and secretary respectively of the English Amateur Swimming Association, and they are doing their best to make me at home. Mr. William Henry has also been most attentive. Through the courtesy of these gentlemen I have met everybody of note in the swimming world, and have also had a chat with Hodgson, the Olympic distance champion, who is over from Canada. Although the season is in active progress and the weather very favourable, one hears little about the sport. Of course, none of the Championships have yet been decided, but, although the clubs conduct weekly handicaps and polo competitions, and also inter-club visits, they do not seem to invite publicity, and consequently it is hard to get into touch with their doings.

"I have been made a member of the Amateur Swimming Club, and attend their weekly meets every Friday night. There is always some event down for decision, after which they immediately adjourn to a near-by hotel and have a fine sit-down hot supper. It rather appealed to me, as a social spirit pervades each gathering. They discuss their business at the supper, and also arrange their next week's programme. One feature that interested me most in this club was the number of old members (men of from 36 to 65 years of age), who attend the weekly meetings. There is no lack of enthusiasm on the part of these veterans. At the last race meet I attended the 100 yards general handicap was won by Mr. Sandon, who is 65 years of age, and chairman of the club. He covered the distance in 1m 21s., with Johansen, the Olympic diver, second in 1m 11s. At the supper, which was held subsequently, Hodgson (Canada), Austinberg (Germany), and myself from Australia were present. Of course, we all had to make a speech, and club badges were presented to us as mementoes of the occasion."

A meeting has been convened by Mr. R. N. Beale, hon. secretary of the New South Wales Amateur Swimming Association, for this evening at the Sports Club at 8 p.m., for the purpose of discussing the matter of improving and fostering diving. The control of this part of the sport is also likely to be discussed, and all persons interested have been invited to attend.

O. Schiele, of Germany, was victorious in the King's Cup race at the Royal Life Saving Society's Gala on June 30. He won the 440yds event by 36 3-5s from Dr. W. Morris (England), the time being 6m 4 2-5s. For the first time since the event was promoted competitors were not required to swim in ordinary clothes, the distance of rescue by one "first method" being 50 yards. The second test, which is a time test only, was over 150 yards (using breast stroke only), and effecting a rescue in the "second method" in the last 25 yards. Dr. Morris and G. Innocent tied with 2m 16s. Schiele finished third. At a meeting of the officials after the race it was decided to allot Innocent and Morris 12½ points each, and as a result the German, who was allotted 8 points, won the event by half a point, the figures being 23 to 22½. Morris lodged a protest against the decision, being of the opinion that he and Innocent were entitled to 15 points each in the 150 yards event. However, the protest was dismissed, and rightly so, as the points given for the first two places totalled 25, and as a tie resulted an equal division was the only equitable manner in which the points could be split up. Schiele has won the King's Cup on three occasions, and tied on one.

David Billington's win in the mile contest with Oscar Dickman on Saturday last, was clear cut and decisive. The time—24m 11s—is a professional world's record, and indicates that the Bacup champion is in a class by himself in the professional swimming world. His time also compares favourably with the amateurs' times—W. Longworth and T. S. Battersby, 24m 1 2-5s, which stood as the world's record until the last Olympic Games, when G. R. Hodgson, of Canada, after winning the 1500 metres continued on his journey for the full mile, and established world's records at both distances, the mile being done in 23m 34⅘s. Hatfield, with the three swimmers mentioned, is also in the same plane, but apart from these four, Billington is probably the best miler in the world, and it is a pity that Great Britain has not his services in the world's championships.

THE SEASIDE CAMP.

"Another charity!" says someone, hearing of the seaside camp scheme. Surely we have enough charities already!" But the scheme for providing seaside camps for the women and children of the bush is by no means a charity, as we ordinarily use the word. Indeed it would be a brave and foolish person who would offer "charity" to the sturdy bush people. The scheme is simply one for sharing the joys of sea beaches and sea breezes with those who are compelled by fate to live year after year in a hot and parching climate; to share the joys of the coast with the weary inlanders. Mark the word, to "share"—not to "give." This is no scheme for providing poor incapables with what they cannot earn for themselves; it is a friendly attempt to help those whom fate has placed in trying climates to enjoy a change to the pleasant atmosphere of the sea shore. Throughout the length and breadth of the land there are families who are never able to have the holiday and change they need, because the family finances will not run to railway and coach fares and the exorbitant charges of boarding-houses at holiday time. And so an effort is being made to lessen these expenses so that the less well-to-do may have the benefit of the change so necessary to all who live in the hot, dry districts.

But the seaside camp is to be self-supporting and run upon purely business lines. There will, of course, be no attempt to make profit out of it, but it must pay for itself, or the people of the bush would not avail themselves of it. The initial expenses are being met by those who are interested in the scheme, rich squatters and big wool firms, and it is intended to begin in a small way, and to extend as the demand increases. It is hoped to obtain a site of 11 acres at Long Reef, a most desirable position, near the tram, and yet right on the sea beach and with a safe lagoon quite near. There is plenty of water on the spot, the sanitary arrangements are under good control, and there are in the vicinity big vegetable gardens, and a farm where eggs and milk can be obtained—all most important details for the country people. If this site can be obtained—and the committee is more than hopeful—it is intended to begin with 25 two-roomed huts. They will be simply furnished with the bare necessaries—stretcher beds, bedclothes, chairs, and little else. There will be a kitchen on the same principle as a shearing-shed kitchen, with a cook in charge. Meals will be served in a common dining-room, where each family will have its own table, but each hut will be supplied with some simple cooking apparatus to be used in emergency. There will be a store, at which the campers will buy their goods at a little over the wholesale price; there will be an isolation tent in case of illness; and there will be a common laundry where the women can do their own washing. The whole scheme has been carefully thought out, and will be run very much on the lines of a military camp. It is not intended to worry the campers with restrictions and rules, but the executive committee will supervise the camp and its arrangements, will meet the new arrivals and instal them, and so on.

At present the committee thinks it wiser to begin in a small way, and in one country district; so, as the suggestion of seaside camps first came from Angledool, the first campers will come from that district. A local committee has been formed to select those who wish to take advantage of the scheme, and already contributions are being made in Angledool towards the railway fares. But though the travelling expenses may come out of a common fund raised by inhabitants of any district, the people who have the use of the seaside camp will pay for their board and lodging, just as they would in any ordinary boarding house—the only difference being in the size of the amount paid.

THROUGH THE TRAIN WINDOWS.

There is a special fascination about the world as seen from a train window. As you travel swiftly forward, the fleeting landscape changes ever before your eyes, and the scene that is here one moment the next is hurried away into the past, and has already gained the glamour that belongs to things of long ago. Green fields give way to wooded hilltops; straggling villages make place for gum-tree forests; browsing herds disappear, and a wandering stream, edged with shady she-oaks, takes their place. A golden grove of wattle gleams into the picture and out again; and a soaring eagle is left far behind, floating over a paddock that is, for you, as far away as yesterday. And on and on you go, your gallery of masterpieces framed in the carriage window in an endless row, and in your possession of such pictures you do not envy the millionaires their Corots and Turners.

But fascinating as the fleeting landscape is by day, it is in the hour between daylight and dark that you find the magic world from the train window. In the soft primrose light the paddocks turn to fields of phantasy, where strange shapes stray; the little pond gleams like the golden mirror of truth from the darkling she-oaks; the hill stands dark and sharp against the amber sky, and through the magic wood that clothes the summit steals a "light that never was on land or sea." Over the brow of the hill comes a rider on his steed; no mere man and horse are these, but gallant forms such as rode the earth in the days of the Giants. Out of the sunset they ride straight into the heart of the mystic wood, where the waving branches swallow them up. And that long road that runs away, away, away into the sunset's heart—it is no ordinary country road; but down such a path as that brave knights ride out in quest of high adventure. Surely Fortune herself stands waiting there where the road runs into the golden lake of the sunset sky. A flock of birds sail across to westward, perhaps they are the eleven swan-brothers, flying in search of their sister. And that little farmhouse, with its twinkling windows, is it not the home of the woodcutter, from whence Hansel and Gretchel set out on their journey? Look quick, and you may see through the lighted window the wood cutter's wife preparing the simple meal. Too late, the cottage has gone. But there, shadowed by sheltering trees is the castle where the Sleeping Beauty slumbered a hundred years. Only a brave prince could cut his way through that protecting thicket. And those hills, dark now against the paling sky, did they not cross them "in that new world which is told—

> And o'er the hills and far away,
> Beyond their utmost purple rim;
> Beyond the night, across the day,
> Thro' all the world she followed him.

The words go drifting through your mind; but even as you murmur them softly to yourself, the castle and its thicket have vanished into the dark, "the utmost purple rim" is hidden by a dull square of brick, garish lamps flash into your eyes, the train slackens, stops, and the magic journey is over.

SONG OFFERINGS.

We hear much nowadays of the over-feminisation of art and culture. Poets who depend in these busy days of industrial and social strife, of struggle for material enjoyments and advantages, on a cultivated feminine audience for that recognition which is their due, sneer at the "delicate rose-pink ladies" who admired the sugared accents of Tennyson. Yeats even, who owes so much to the devotion of a gifted feminine contemporary, who numbered amongst his early admirers some of the most cultivated and accomplished women in London and Dublin, has recently remarked in his preface to "Ghitanjali," by Rabindranath Tagore: "These verses will not lie in little well-printed volumes upon ladies' tables, who turn the pages with indolent hands that they may sigh over a life without meaning, which is yet all they can know about life." One of the great arguments in favour of the candidature of Kipling for the Laureateship of England was that he wrote for a masculine audience, and might fitly be chosen to represent at the court of Parnassus a nation remarkable for its cult of the excessively masculine. But as far back as literature has existed all truly great literature has been bi-sexual, and genius comprehends and appeals to the female heart and brain as much as to the male. This little book "Ghitanjali" or "Song Offerings"—the work of a gifted member of a gifted Bengali family—is already to be found on the tables of indolent ladies, and is also making a tremendous appeal to hard-working professional women, who, after a day of cares, may take refuge in the realm of spirit—who may read of tremendous cosmic ideas embodied in beautiful words—represented with Oriental luxuriance of symbol and metaphor—for, as the Bengali doctor said to Yeats: "To read one line of his (Tagore) is to forget all the troubles of the world." Rabindranath Tagore, like most intellectual Hindus, is a mystic. The deification of human reason is the result of purely Western methods of thought—the Eastern wisely surrenders himself to that "passivity of the soul" wherein take place the absolutely pure processes of thought—the surrender to the First Reality.

But, unlike the attitude of many mystics, both Buddhist and Christian, Tagore does not believe in stripping from life all the folds of the senses. He has a love of the broad and generous life of the world. Similarly with one of the great teachers of old "he has spoken out of life itself," has first lived and then wrought. "I have had my invitation to this world's festival," he sings, "and this my life has been blessed. Mine eyes have seen, and my ears have heard." We are reminded of Francis Thompson's gospel of renunciation and its result: "Mine eyes saw not, and I saw."

And again:—

> "Deliverance is not for me in renunciation. I feel the embrace of freedom in a thousand bonds of delight. Thou ever pourest for me the fresh draught of Thy wine of various colours and fragrance, filling this earthen vessel to the brim.
> "My world will light its hundred different lamps with Thy flame, and place them before the altar of Thy temple.
> "No, I will never shut the doors of my senses. The delights of sight and hearing and touch will bear Thy delight.
> "Yes, all my illusions will burn into illumination of joy, and all my desires ripen into fruits of love."

The doctrine of Divine Immanence is very beautifully expressed:

"Mine eyes strayed far and wide before I shut them, and said, 'Here art Thou.' The question and the cry, Oh, where! melt into tears of a thousand streams, and deluge the world with the flood of the assurance, 'I am.'"

These ideas are no more alien to us children of a Western civilisation than are those expressed in the quatrains of Omar. Indeed, there is a strong reminder of the Persian in the lines:

> "That I should make much of myself and turn it on all sides, thus casting coloured shadows on Thy radiance; such is Thy maya.
> "Thou settest a barrier in Thine own being, and Thou callest Thy severed self in myriad notes. This, Thy self-separation, has taken body in me.
> "The poignant song is echoed through all the sky in many coloured tears and smiles, alarms and hopes—waves rise up and sink again, dreams break and form. In me is Thy own defeat of self.
> "This screen that Thou hast raised is painted with innumerable figures with the brush of the night and the day. Behind it Thy seat is woven in wondrous mysteries of curves, casting away all barren lines of straightness.
> "The great pageant of Thee and Me has overspread the sky. With the tune of Thee and Me all the air is vibrant, and all ages pass with the hiding and seeking of Thee and Me."

But, although there is a reminiscence of Omar (or more correctly speaking of Attar), yet the difference in the outlook is most striking. The bitter revolt of Fitz Gerald—the negative philosophy of Omar—is absent, and we have instead the joyous acceptance of life, that Divine gift from the Eternal: "Let all the strains of joy mingle in my last song; the joy that makes the earth flow over in the riotous excess of the grass, the joy that sets the twin brothers, life and death, dancing over the wide world, the fury that sweeps in with the tempest, shaking and waking all life with laughter, the joy that sits still with its tears on the open red lotus of pain, and the joy that throws everything it has upon the dust, and knows not a word."

Tagore takes his stand beside Blake and Francis Thompson in his love for and understanding of innocent childhood:

> "The sleep that flits on baby's eyes—does anybody know from where it comes? Yes, there is a rumour that it has its dwelling where, in the fairy village among shadows of the forest dimly lit with glow-worms, there hang two timid buds of enchantment. From there it comes to kiss baby's eyes.
> "The smile that flickers on baby's lips when he sleeps—does anybody know where it was born? Yes, there is a rumour that a young pale beam of a crescent moon touched the edge of a vanishing autumn cloud, and there the smile was first born in the dream of a dew-washed morning—the smile that flickers on baby's lips when he sleeps.
> "The sweet, soft freshness that blooms on baby's limbs—does anybody know where it was hidden so long? Yes, when the mother was a young girl it lay pervading her heart in tender and silent mystery of love the sweet, soft freshness that has bloomed on baby's limbs."

These are a few out of many jewels in the story casket of Rabindranath. We may conclude with his prayer to the Eternal:

> Where the mind is without fear and the head is held high;
> Where knowledge is free;
> Where the world has not been broken up into fragments by narrow domestic walls;
> Where words come out from the depths of truth;
> Where loveless striving stretches its arms towards perfection;
> Where the clear stream of reason has not lost its way in the dreary desert sand of dead habit;
> Where the mind is led forward by Thee into ever-widening thought and action,
> Into that heaven of Freedom, my Father, let my country awake.

F.M.M.

A STRANGE WOMAN.

At a table covered with linen cloths, which were inserted and edged with crochet lace, stood a woman who had been purchasing in another department. She was looking at the designs, and thinking of the time put into the work by some poor women in another part of the world.

A salesman came to the table, quoted the prices, and remarked upon their cheapness.

"Yes, they are cheap, too cheap: I would not have it upon my conscience to buy one. I crochet, and know just how long it would take to make one of these cloths. No; I would not have it upon my conscience that I bought it and helped to sweat some poor fellow-creature," was her comment.

"You are a strange woman," said the salesman.

The Hon. Mrs. Greville, daughter of the late Mr. William M'Ewan, M.P. for Central Edinburgh, has presented Mr. M'Ewan's Edinburgh residence to Edinburgh University, of which Mr. M'Ewan was a generous supporter.

SCHOOL-CLEANERS' WAGES.

Under this heading a letter received by the Minister for Public Instruction, Mr. Carmichael, was recently published in the columns of the "Herald," and it was, as that gentleman remarked, though anonymous, obviously genuine. As the work of school cleaning is mostly performed by women, and generally those who are least able to speak for themselves, and so ventilate their own grievances, it will not, perhaps, be amiss on this page to call a little attention to the matter. The Minister has stated that throughout the county of Cumberland the cleaners are paid according to the cleaners' award; outside that district, for the most part, according to the floor space. A cleaner of my acquaintance is indeed 'outside the radius." Far from not knowing the amount of her weekly wage, she is only too well cognisant of it. She has confided to me that her monthly emolument is something under £2. For this princely remuneration she has to cover over 4000 square feet of flooring. According to the regulations, of which she has a copy, she must daily strew these 4000 square feet with damp sawdust (generously provided by the department), to which must be added, at least twice a week, some disinfectant (also provided). Each morning, too, she must dust all seats, desks, etc.; in fact, all furniture, with a moist cloth, preferably dipped in disinfectant; and once a week the same treatment is applied to the hat-pegs. One room or corridor is scrubbed out each week. At least once a quarter each hall and ceiling is cleaned, and besides all this there are innumerable windows and large glass partitions, the tops of which can only be reached by the aid of a long ladder, which require constant attention. Then there is all the woodwork, cupboards, presses, skirting-boards, mantelpieces, venetian blinds, etc., all awaiting or receiving the cleaner's attentions. By force of circumstances the work can only be done at "early morn" or "dewy eve," therefore almost the whole of Saturday has to be spent on the cleaning. It is just possible that my friend is paid all that she earns, because one can hardly conceive of such an amount of cleaning being done by any one woman in the time given, especially during the short days, as there is no provision for lighting up the schoolrooms. But this is what she is expected to do, and if she only does half of it she is still underpaid. In the same locality the banks and business offices pay at least £1 per week for about one-fourth of the work. More fortunate in one way than the complaining cleaner, my friend informs me that she is paid during all vacations, but only on condition that she avails herself of the opportunity to give the premises a thorough overhaul, so that on the reassembling of the children the buildings may bear the semblance of the proverbial new pin. I have worked it out for my friend, and find that she receives less than one penny half-penny (1½d) per square foot of flooring per year—not to mention all the other odd jobs. Of course the pay is too small to share, therefore the cleaner, who is generally a mother, presses into the service her small children, and it will be readily agreed that this is anything but a desirable occupation for little ones. I think the Minister might consider the case of the cleaners "outside the radius," who cannot form a union, and who are therefore compelled to suffer in silence. And in raising the wages of the cleaners much benefit will incidentally accrue to our young people. It is highly desirable that our schools should be kept scrupulously clean, and it stands to reason that if the work be better remunerated it will be better done. Such a poor wage as is now allowed would hardly tempt any but the most inferior worker. In the very large schools there should be a cleaner for each department. It is ridiculous to expect any one person to do all that must be necessary for 20 or more classrooms each day, before and after school hours, and the sight of a mother dragging two or three little children round with her from room to room in the dirt and dust must be a most painful one, and should be made impossible.

MATER.

THE TWILIGHT HOME.

It is many months now since the plan to establish a home for aged gentlewomen was discussed in Sydney, but, although a good deal of interest and sympathy was shown at the time, the matter is still unsettled. A few weeks ago, an account of a similar home in Brisbane was published on this page, and, evidently, some of those who are weary of waiting for the Sydney home have applied for admission to the Brisbane one. The following letter received from Mrs. Wienholt, the founder of the Brisbane home, may stir Sydney to renewed activity in the matter. Mrs. Wienholt writes:—"Might I be allowed, through the columns of your paper to make an appeal to the women of Sydney on whom fortune has smiled on behalf of their poorer sisters, who, through the chance and change of life, find themselves stranded, and alone in their declining years. I refer to the class of women known as "poor gentlewomen," and to the necessity of establishing a home something on the lines of the one recently started in Brisbane. That the urgent necessity exists, is amply proved by the number of applications that have been received from elderly ladies in Sydney for admission to the hospice here. A few of the many well-to-do women of Sydney could at a very little sacrifice bring peace and relief to the hearts of many anxious women who have to face an uncertain future when youth is gone. I send this appeal in the earnest hope that a few generous-hearted women may take the matter up, and that a home may be established in the near future in your beautiful city which will bring a blessing to the donors as well as to those who find its shelter.

No. II.—Handsome gown of rich ivory charmeuse veiled in white ninon. Tunic and vest of fine black lace. The belt is of black tulle, fastened with a large rose. Black tulle hat, trimmed with roses.

A CASSEL SCHOLAR.

Amongst recently returned Australians is Miss Annette Maclellan, of this city, who has been in Europe for the past two years. Miss Maclellan left Sydney under an appointment to teach English in a girls' high school at Altona, Germany—the appointment was made under an arrangement that exists between the London Board of Education, the French Government, and the German Government, by which natives of the three different countries teach their own language in the other countries. Miss Maclellan was the first Australian woman chosen to teach English in Germany, and her appointment was so successful that at the end of six months—the term of the engagement—the school authorities at Altona were anxious for her to stay on at the school for another six months. Pleased as she was by this sign of appreciation, she was unable to accept the offer, as she had already been nominated for a Cassel scholarship, which enabled her to spend nine months at the Tilly Institute in Berlin.

The Cassel Foundation is a most interesting attempt to bring about a better understanding and more friendly feeling between the English and German people. Sir Ernest Cassel was a great personal friend of the late King Edward, and he has a very warm feeling for England and the English. Firm in the belief that any ill-will that exists between the two countries is only the result of ignorance, he set aside a big sum of money for the purpose of breaking down this ignorance. A large part of this money is spent on needy Germans in England or needy English in Germany, and the rest is devoted to students who wish to become better acquainted with the habits and customs of the countries.

Miss Annette Maclellan was the first English-speaking student to obtain the scholarship in Germany, and undoubtedly in her case the ideal of the founder has been realised; for she has returned filled with the warmest appreciation of and affection for the German people. She was fortunate in having a number of private introductions, and she saw a great deal of the family life, as well as of the student world in different parts of Germany. Wherever she went she met with the greatest kindness and courtesy, and she made many real friends. Indeed, she has such pleasant recollections of her whole experience with the German people that she quite agrees with Sir Ernest Cassel that it is only ignorance of each other that fosters any bitter feeling that exists between the English and the Germans.

HABIT AND HYGIENE.

We are all nowadays only too well aware of the many and complicated dangers which threaten our health and even our lives in the elements surrounding us. Science, popularised by Wells and his like, or studied assiduously by many members of both sexes, has familiarised us with the swarms of enemies, small in size, but perniciously virulent, that forever beset us. We filter the water that we drink, wash with disinfectant soaps, and fill our rooms with draughts, in the hope that chilly currents of air may be as deadly to germs as they are unpleasant to ourselves; yet, with the curious contradictoriness of the inconsistent human being, we deliberately acquire habits that expose our unhappy constitutions to the entry of the most poisonous bacilli, "not single spies, but in battalions."

The writer of this paper has often gazed in stupefied amazement at elegant and apparently educated persons of both sexes, who, while composing a telegram in a public office, find the task of abbreviating their messages impossible without the assistance afforded by chewing the pencil provided, an implement, by the way, that has from its appearance gone through the same process from many previous cogitators. How such an unpleasant object for mastication proves a stimulus or an aid to thought it is difficult to divine; but certain it is that during these ruminations, which may result in the saving of a few pence, a breach has been made in the elaborate defences, and the bacilli have entered in regiments. Not long ago the dread disease of diphtheria made terrible havoc on an American school, and the spread of the complaint was found to be due to an old stump of pencil, which had passed from hand to hand, and mouth to mouth. Thus uncontrolled habit, again and again, effaces the effects of eloquent lectures on hygiene, illustrated by awe-inspiring lantern slides, and bids fair to defy all scientific efforts to stamp out disease by the spread of education.

Another most objectionable habit has come to us from America, and seems to be making itself quite at home in Australia. That is the unhygienic and uncleanly custom of licking the forefinger in order to facilitate the turning of the page. The Americans have this excuse—the large amount of paper money current and the stickiness of the notes make it difficult to separate them, and in banks this pernicious habit is the rule and not the exception. But though it may be a serious matter occasionally to overlook a five-dollar bill, it is surely a more tragic one to have let loose upon the world a habit at once so pertinacious and so pernicious. We are irresistibly reminded of Pandora and her box when we watch this liberation of germs to work their deadly havoc upon the unhappy human race. We tremble to think of the effect of this habit in the public libraries, and the seeds of death on the pages of an apparently innocent book of history or a book of science. For the most useful and inspiring of works will be, of necessity, the most effective purveyor of disease. A novel is comparatively innocent in this respect, for there is no need to turn back its pages for reference, nor to pore over them for comprehension.

In one school in the States we saw walls adorned with copies of playful verses urging the pupils to refrain from this habit of facilitating study, but as the teachers freely indulged in it, and "example is stronger than precept," we were not surprised to see that very few abstained.

Books of devotion, hymnbooks handed from one stranger to another, are a special source of danger, chiefly because those stocked in churches are often printed on thin paper, and it is difficult to find the page with the required celerity without the aid of the objectionable process. We have sometimes viewed with horror the dirty thumbed copies passed into our hands, and, quite recently, watched with feelings of terror and pity a small baby, with the desire for firsthand knowledge of its environment, that is so beautifully characteristic of early youth, imbibing deadly poison by the application of its tongue and lips to one of the dirtiest and germiest of these hymnals.

This plea will, we trust, not fall on unheeding ears. It is so easy to check a habit if we are made conscious of it, and it is equally easy for a habit to usurp dominion over us if we, through obstinacy or ignorance, refuse to make any efforts. Let us go back to the days when we turned our pages in a cleanly and leisurely fashion, and when, though less conscious of the presence of poisonous foes in our environment, we reverenced the books that we studied too much to treat them with "that familiarity that breeds contempt."

PUCK'S GIRDLE.

I'll put a girdle round about the earth in forty minutes.—"Midsummer Night's Dream."

The annual exhibition of the Society of Women Painters will be opened by Lady Cullen to-day at noon. The society has been fortunate in securing large, well-lighted rooms in Lawson House, Clarence-street, and as all the best of our women painters are contributing, and there are to be several loan pictures from visiting artists and from other States, the exhibition should be of more than usual interest.

Invitations have been issued by the Principal and Councillors of the Women's College, to "A Mask," to be held in the college grounds on August 22, in commemoration of the 21st year of the Women's College. The "Mask" is the work of two of Sydney University's poets—Mr. J. Le Gay Brereton and Mr. Chris. Brennan—and has been specially written for the occasion. The students of the college, past and present, are taking part in the performance, and Miss Lily Titheradge (Mrs. Herrick Knowles) is also helping.

A meeting of the general council of the National Council of Women will be held to-morrow afternoon, at State Government House, when Lady Edeline Strickland will preside. It is hoped that Mrs. Henry Dobson, who is coming from Europe on the Macedonia, will have arrived in Sydney, and will be able to speak at the meeting of the International Congress in Paris, from which she has just returned.

The French and German lecture committee, recently formed, under the presidency of Mrs. S. Harwood, M.A., has now begun upon the German series, after finishing the French course with marked success. On Monday night last, under the presidency of Mr. E. G. Waterhouse, B.A., Herr Pastor Schenk, gave the second German lecture "Der Humor des Volkes," leading his audience with a very happy little collection of amusing anecdotes and descriptive narratives behind the scenes into the inner life of the German people; just into those little by-paths of the smaller towns, rich in "humanities" and humour, which are too often overlooked by the general traveller and dwellers in the larger and almost cosmopolitan cities. The third lecture of the series will be given by Fraulein Hassellmann. There was some doubt at first as to whether Sydney could provide an audience sufficient to support a complete series of foreign lectures, but the present series, both in French and German, have been so well attended that the enterprise has already proved a pronounced success, both intellectually and financially.

The plucky attempt of the Jumble Depot "Missus" of the Girls' Realm Guild to raise enough money by a bazaar to buy a motor van has been very successful, and the two days' sale of work last week will result in about £100 towards the desired vehicle. A motor van is considered preferable to a horse and cart for many reasons, and as the guild has been promised free garage room, and the "Missus" is getting a license to drive the car herself, the expenses of upkeep will not be great. Apart from the profits, the bazaar was a very successful affair, and was thoroughly enjoyed by those taking part. The friendly atmosphere that marks all the guild's undertakings was noticeable. Lady Cullen, who opened the bazaar on Thursday, set a pleasant tone by her kindly and humorous address, and Miss Madge Titheradge brought a fresh breeziness to the same ceremony the following day.

Sydney has been a very sick and sorry city the past few weeks. Smallpox and vaccination have been the chief topics of conversation on every side, and it has taken a brave spirit to rise above sore arms and post vaccination effects. Even the spring fashions and the feast of amusement that have been spread for us have not tempted the majority to forget their woes. But now with many vaccination troubles are all over, and they are beginning to take notice. And on all sides now are to be heard sighs of regret from people who missed the Nordica concerts, and who did not see "Henry V." or "The Great Adventure." "Three things I have been looking forward to for months, and of course I must miss them all through my silly old arm," said one girl. However, there is still "The Butterfly on the Wheel" in which to see Mr. Lewis Waller and Miss Madge Titheradge. Those who were too ill to go to the Nordica concerts will be glad to know that they will have another chance of hearing the famous soprano and her excellent company later on this month. And we hope that we may have another opportunity of seeing Arnold Bennett's clever play, "The Great Adventure," when we are all well enough to enjoy it.

On Tuesday afternoon, July 29, Miss Newcomb addressed a meeting of the Women's Liberal League in the Queen Victoria Club Rooms, on the subject of a union between the women's political societies of Australia and New Zealand and the woman suffrage societies of South Africa and Canada. The object of such a union would be to help the women of the other Dominions in their desire to obtain equal suffrage. Such help could best be given by the regular sending of information concerning the good work constantly and most unobtrusively done by the women's societies in Australia and New Zealand. Much interest was expressed in the idea, and a very warm vote of thanks to the speaker concluded the proceedings.

Miss Ruth Bannister, who sailed for Europe in the Orama last week, is one of our cleverest craftswomen, and her woodcarving is quite unique in its excellence. A beautiful panel of waratahs, which was on view in Sydney for a week or so before her departure, gave a good idea of the grace and sureness of her work, and visitors to the big Women's Exhibition six years ago still remember the lovely example of her art displayed there. Miss Bannister has been in charge of the woodcarving department at the Sydney Technical College for some time, and has now gone for a holiday on leave of absence. She is taking some beautiful samples of her work with her.

It is not often that we hear from the pulpit unstinted praise of woman as a reformer on purely womanly lines, but recently the Rev. George Walters dealt with eminent women who have helped the cause of progress, writes "F.R." Hypatia and her pure philosophical teachings were referred to, and her tragic death was feelingly portrayed. Then we were introduced to Elizabeth Fry, who exposed and helped to reform the shocking abuses in prison life; to Mary Wollstonecraft and her "Vindication of the Rights of Women"; to Harriet Martineau, one of the most famous of the early literary women of the Nineteenth century; to Harriet Beecher Stowe, helping the anti-slavery cause in America; to Frances Power Cobbe, whose fine writings were, though in advance of her time, purely religious in their nature; to Florence Nightingale, once having the insulting epithet of "bold hussy" flung at her, but now revered as "The Lady with the Lamp," the grateful title given her by the rough wounded soldiers in the Crimea, who little realised what that meant—carrying light, hope, and solace to the dark spots of earth. A somewhat curious thing in the gathering was that men were in the majority.

School attendance is compulsory throughout the civilised world, except in Russia, Spain, Turkey, Mexico, and six of the southern States of the United States, says an American paper.

WHERE QUEEN ALEXANDRA'S ROSES ARE MADE.

We have read so much about Queen Alexandra's Day and the roses that are sold in hundreds of thousands in the cause of charity, that it is interesting to know a little about the making of those roses.

The dainty little flowers, which are so deftly mounted, singly, in buttonholes, or in sprays, are entirely the work of an industry known as the "Crippleage," says a London paper; the workshop, training schools, and showroom are in Clerkenwell, not very far from Smithfield Market, and from St. Bartholomew's Hospital and Church, and almost under the shadow of the Old Gate of the Knights of St. John of Jerusalem.

To the 300 workgirls, the artificial flower industry, which turns out really beautiful work, is something more than a mere trade. It is an interest, an occupation, a gathering together of independence and self-respect. The majority without this industry would find themselves dependants of charity—victims often unintentionally of the scant sympathy and patience of their relations. Some are hunchbacked, some are blind, others have lost a leg, a hand, or have fingers so deformed that it is nothing short of marvellous how such artistic work is done at all. Crutches lie pathetically under many of the tables, and there are two invalid girls who have to be carried to their work.

There is a boarding-house connected with the industry where nearly 200 of the girls live. These are chiefly girls whose homes are not in London, some of them coming even from Scotland and Wales. They pay 5s 6d a week for their lodging at the hostel, and many of the girls are such good workers that they not only keep themselves, but often help their families. There is one very wise rule at the "Crippleage," and that is that every girl must take a fortnight's holiday a year, and the industry has its own holiday home at the seaside. A doctor visits the workrooms every day, and no girl is allowed to work beyond her strength. The girls, as a rule, enter the industry between the ages of fifteen and eighteen, when they seem most teachable, and quickly pick up the work. Some of the girls have been working in the home for 15 years, and have all the skill of the French flower-makers.

As a rule, the orders for the roses for Alexandra Day are all for London; but the celebration seems to be spreading, and this year boxes of the flowers were sent to Scotland, Wales, and the North of Ireland, a very heavy order having come from Belfast.

MELBOURNE NOTES.

A large meeting of women was held at the Auditorium, Collins-street, on the last day of July, to discuss the much-debated question of "equal pay for equal work," when Miss Vida Goldstein presided. On behalf of the female branch of the Caterers and Hotel Employees' Association, the secretary, Miss Lewis, spoke at some length. Out of 80 per cent. of females working, the great majority of them were either married or widows with children to support. Though Mr. Justice Cussen had admitted that, still he stated that he could not take it into consideration when repealing the decision of the clerks' wages board that men and women should get the same pay. Miss Lewis moved.—"That this meeting is strongly of opinion that a bill, providing for equal pay for equal work in State and private employment, should be placed on the statute-book by the State Government." Mrs. Brooks (People's Liberal Party) seconded. Mr. S. Mauger supported the motion.

Mrs. M. M. Phillips, wife of the president of the Australian Natives' Association, is among the women who are keenly interested in the welfare of children. She is an advocate for the promotion of children's libraries, with a trained librarian, conducted on the same lines as the American system. There is a growing need in Melbourne for a kindergarten college, where students could have residential quarters. In order to gain reliable information on this subject, Mrs. Phillips recently went into residence at the Kindergarten College in Sydney. She considers that a similar college in Melbourne could easily be made self-supporting. That is the basis on which the Sydney college is established. Unfortunately there is a great dearth of voluntary workers in Melbourne in connection with kindergarten.

Dr. Georgina Sweet, one of the lecturers at the Melbourne University, is leaving here this week on an extended tour round the world. She has been commissioned by the Federal Government to investigate and supply a report on parasitical diseases; but Dr. Sweet is travelling at her own expense, by her own wish.

VERONICA.

BEFORE THE DAWN.

Five a.m.!

The insistent shriek of the alarm clock shrills high above the piping winds and the tattoo of the heavy rain on the roof. For the rest it is pitch dark, and as I sit up in bed battling with sleep I am conscious that 5 a.m. is the most unhappy hour to turn out of bed in midwinter.

With a final triumphant shriek the alarm shuts up, and only the dreary monologue of the rain to tell me I must get up. I emerge reluctantly from bed, my feet gingerly grope for slippers upon the chilly mat, and, throwing a "kim" round me, I shuffle a cautious way to the kitchen, and with numb fingers I light the gas and put on a kettle.

All the world asleep! And words are futile to express the inhospitality of a kitchen at this hour.

However, after a shower, as chill as the South Pole, and a quick rub-down, there is a greater sensation of vitality. I dress rapidly, for time presses and custom has lent me the deftness of a quick-change artist, and then return to the kitchen, where my kettle is now boiling.

Thank Heaven for gas; for it is quick work to cook an egg, while the tea is brewing, and my table has been set overnight.

So fortified with my poached egg, my cup of tea, and an apple, I wrap myself up in an overcoat and sally forth in the early dawn of a midwinter morning.

The rain is beating up and down the sodden footpaths, and the lamps are burning fitfully in the tempest of wind. The streets are quite deserted, for it is only as yet half-past 5, but as I have a two-mile walk to the post-office I step it out briskly.

But the rain beats steadily down, and a chill wind whistles through the telegraph wires and tears maliciously at my coat. A rare policeman eyes me suspiciously, and an occasional diminutive boy paddles a forlorn path down the "trademan's entrance" to the milk jug on the back-door step.

Some mornings there has been just the first flush of the dawn in the east, that wonderful mingling of pearl grey and crimson and gold, but that has been rare this wet winter since the Telephone Department has put me on the early morning shift. There has been no inducement to linger, but a brisk walk brings me to my destination on the stroke of 6. A minute to divest myself of my dripping outer-garments in the cloakroom, and I take up my station in front of the board, put the transmitter on my head, and am ready for the business of the day.

HELLO CENTRAL.

English women have taken a keen interest in aviation for several years past, and the Woman's Aerial League has done some splendid work with regard to the movement. One of their most useful actions was the provision of two scholarships for students at the Imperial College of Science and Technology. The members of the league have worked hard to interest some of the politicians in the patriotic aspect of aviation, and the latest move on behalf of aviation is a garden party given by the president, Lady Ela Russell, at the Royal Botanic Gardens. As a garden party amusement, flying should prove a unique attraction.

FIRST SPRING DISPLAY.

NEW GOODS AND FASHIONS,

AT DAVID JONES.

Just take a look at those windows of ours. How faithfully they mirror the new Fashions in every section of wearing apparel. Then make a point of viewing the goods more closely in our showroom, even if you have no intention of buying. Here is a brief summary of what will be worn, and what you will see in our showrooms:—

In Dress Materials, Crepes predominate. This season they are bolder in effect, with deeper crimp, and may be had in charming plain colours, as well as pretty printed designs. For our Vodeline Crepe, 40 inches wide, the price is 3/11 yard. Next comes Faille—a material resembling poplin, and our Faconne Faille, 42 inches wide, at 5/9 yard, making delightful cool one-piece frocks. Embroidered Voiles are also a feature of our Dress Materials display.

The fashionable frock of the season must have no collar. It must be Medici effect at the neck, cut high at the back and low in the front; or it may be finished with an Elizabethan Ruffle. The Bodices are all cut loose, full, Magyar and Raglan Style, the sleeves assuming a bishop shape from the elbow. The skirts are in simple shaped lines; some draped at the foot, others with slits at the sides; all with a marked tendency to be short in front and long at the back. Charming Bulgarian Crepe Frocks, trimmed with Crochet Lace embodying the newest fashion points may be had in our ready-to-wear Costume Showroom at 89/6. Also dainty embossed Crepe Frocks at 57/6, and remarkably inexpensive net semi-dinner dresses at 29/6

Children's Coughs & Colds

"I always give my children Peps."

PEPS, "THE TRUE BREATHING CURE" ARE INVALUABLE IN THE HOME.

Watch very jealously any tendency in your little ones to catch cold or develop a nasty croupy cough. Neglected colds lay the foundation of life-long weakness in children.

Mothers will find a handy box of Peps a trusty safeguard against cold weather perils. Whooping cough, sore throat, croup, pneumonia, and bronchitis, are kept at bay by the judicious use of these wonderful breathe-able tablets, and that without the introduction into the system of any of the dangerous and obnoxious drugs to be found in cheap lozenges and old-fashioned cough mixtures. Peps are entirely free from opium, chloral, laudanum, and all such narcotics.

Peps act in a new and novel way. When a little tablet is taken from a silver jacket in which it is sealed and preserved, and allowed to dissolve on the tongue, certain rich medicinal fumes are given off and carried with the air we breathe down the throat and into the furthest corner of lungs and chest, where liquid medicines and the solution of cheap lozenges cannot go, the latter being swallowed like the food into the stomach.

Peps, by thus reaching the source of the trouble, quickly end a cough, keep the throat clear of phlegm, strengthen the delicate membrane which lines the air tube from throat to lungs; and annihilate the germs of pneumonia and other chest diseases lurking in the impure atmosphere.

Whenever there is any tendency to cough or to hoarseness or soreness of the throat, give your child a Peps tablet. Many parents keep a box specially for their children's use before setting out to school on a damp or gloomy day, or before risking cold at a friend's party. Never be without a handy box of Peps in the house these chest-penetrating cold days.

A Sydney Mother's praise for Peps

"My two children suffered from very severe colds," writes Mrs. Ethel Nyes, of 54 M'Kenzie-street, Leichhardt, Sydney, "which were accompanied by such fearful coughs that I became very anxious. My mother, who had herself been cured by Peps of Bronchitis, strongly advised me to administer them to the little ones, and after taking a few of the Peps, the cough eased, phlegm was freely ejected, and a continuation of the Peps treatment completely cured them. Now we are never without a box of Peps always handy, especially in the winter months."

"I always give my children Peps"

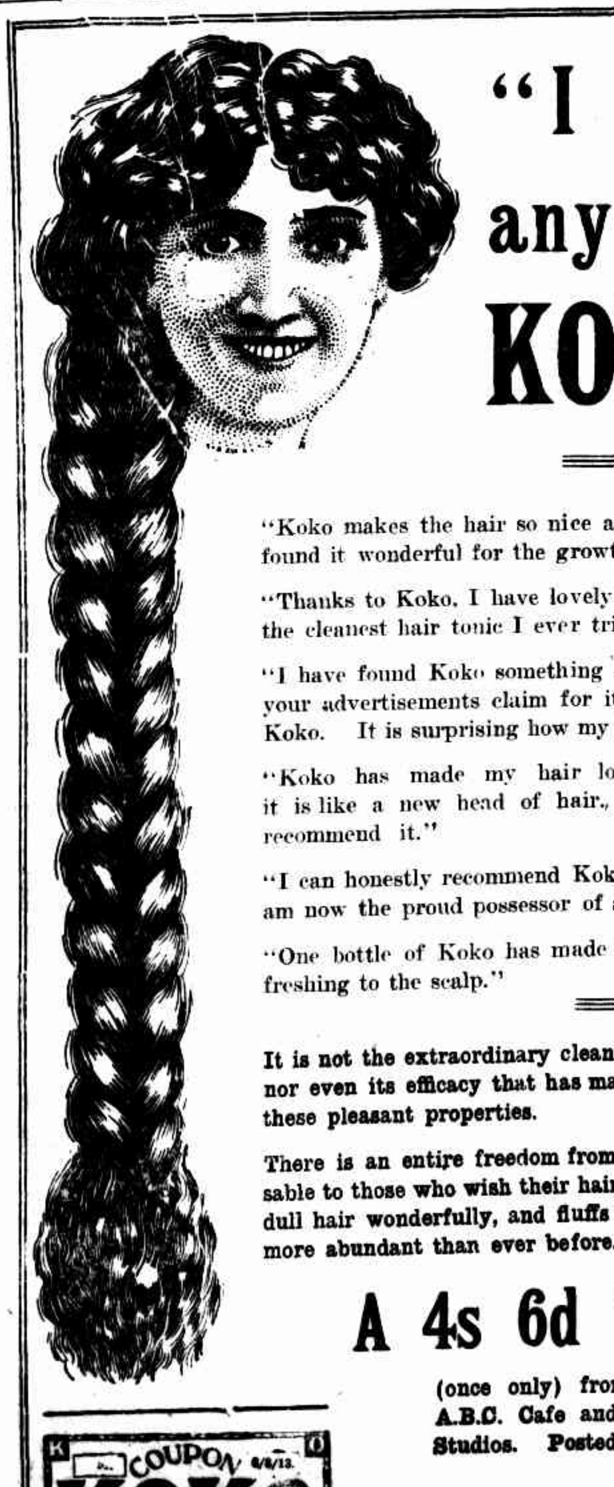

Mrs. H. Dow, of John-street, Rosewood (Q), says:—"I do not feel safe without a box of Peps handy, as my experience during the past two winters has convinced me that they are the best remedy obtainable for the throat and chest. I always give my children Peps, and whether at bedtime or going to school, a few Peps is their constant companion in the winter months. I generally give them a few Peps to put under their pillow at night, in case their coughs should be troublesome enough to disturb their rest and one Pep is always sufficient to allay the irritation and enable them to have a good night's sleep."

PEPS "THE STRAIGHT-TO-THE-LUNGS" REMEDY.

PEPS

Protect Your THROAT & CHEST.

Peps, the scientific remedy that supersedes the old-fashioned methods for the treatment of throat and chest complaints, are unexcelled for Coughs, Colds, Sore or Relaxed Throat, Bronchitis, Weak Chest, Hoarseness, Wheeziness, Loss of Voice, Children's Coughs and Colds, Croup, Influenza Colds, and other Throat and Chest Ailments, prevalent at the present season. Of all Chemists and Stores, at 1/6 or 3/ a box, or direct, post free, from The Peps Pastille Company, 39 Pitt-street, Sydney.

"I cannot imagine anything better than KOKO for the hair."

"Koko makes the hair so nice and pliable without being in the least greasy. I have found it wonderful for the growth of the hair."

"Thanks to Koko, I have lovely hair now, though it used to fall out badly. Koko is the cleanest hair tonic I ever tried, and leaves the hair beautifully soft and glossy."

"I have found Koko something of a rara avis, inasmuch as it comes fully up to what your advertisements claim for it. I had a frightful lot of dandruff before I used Koko. It is surprising how my hair has improved."

"Koko has made my hair lovely. It used to be quite short, and all ends; now it is like a new head of hair. I know nothing to equal Koko, and can thoroughly recommend it."

"I can honestly recommend Koko to anyone who has signs of weakness in the hair. I am now the proud possessor of a splendid head of hair, thanks to Koko."

"One bottle of Koko has made my hair quite wavy. It is a lovely dressing, most refreshing to the scalp." (NAMES GIVEN.)

It is not the extraordinary cleanness of Koko, nor yet its usefulness as a daily dressing, nor even its efficacy that has made Koko so popular, but the unique combination of all these pleasant properties.

There is an entire freedom from Oil, Grease, and Odour in Koko that makes it indispensable to those who wish their hair to look well, as well as be well, always. THE ALLINSON HONOUR.

BY HAROLD BINDLOSS.

[ALL RIGHTS RESERVED.]

The Allinsons were people of importance in the quiet countryside, and the history of the family was not without romance. Long ago an Andrew Allinson had become possessed, by violence most probably, of a strong stone peel, half fortress, half farmstead, that commanded a fertile dale up which the Scots mosstroopers often rode to the foray. Little was known of his descendants, except that they held the peel for several generations and were buried with a coat of arms roughly cut upon their tombstones in a moorland kirkyard. Then had come a break, when they were perhaps driven out by economic changes, for the family vanished from the dale and next appeared as London goldsmiths in Queen Anne's reign. Later, Andrew's grandfather, retiring from his banking business, resumed the coat of arms, bought back the peel, and built a commodious house about it. On his death it was discovered that his property had shrunk in value owing to changing times, and his shrewd north country widow gave up the hall and coat of arms and made her son reopen the family business. He had prospered and maintained the best traditions of the ancient firm, for Allinson and Son were noted for caution, decorum, and strict probity. The house was eminently sound, and carried on its business in an old-fashioned, austere way.

To its head's keen disappointment, his only son, Andrew, showed no aptitude for commerce, and after two years in the counting-house, was allowed to follow his own devices. Then, on the marriage of his sister to a clever young business man, the latter was made a partner. Soon after this Andrew's father died, leaving him a large share of his money, which was, however, to remain in the business, over which his brother-in-law, Leonard Hathersage, had now control.

When the gradient grew easier, Andrew mounted, but got down again with a frown a few minutes later. The Boer's nicked bullet had badly torn the muscles of his thigh, and now and then the old wound troubled him. Though he loved horses, he could no longer ride far with pleasure, and, being of active temperament, had taken to the bicycle. By and by he saw a girl ride out from behind a grove of gnarled spruce firs and joined her when she pulled up her horse to wait for him. Ethel Hillyard looked well in the saddle; tall and rather largely built, she was nevertheless graceful and generally characterised by an air of dignified repose. Now, however, there was amusement in the fine grey eyes she fixed on Andrew.

"You look moody, and that's not usual," she said.

They were old friends, and Andrew answered her confidentially. "I've been thinking, and, for another thing, found I couldn't get up this bit of a hill. I suppose it oughtn't to worry me, but it does. You see, a lameness that comes on when I least expect it is all I brought back from South Africa."

Ethel gave him a sympathetic nod as she started her horse. "It's a pity, but you might have suffered worse; and after all distinction is sometimes cheaply gained."

"You don't win it by keeping people busy curing you and seeing you don't break out of prison camps," said Andrew grimly.

"But what else were you thinking of that disturbed you?"

"My thoughts were, so to speak, all of a piece—one led to another. I did nothing in South Africa, and it has struck me lately that I haven't done much anywhere else, except catch salmon in Norway, and shoot a few Canadian deer. Now there's Leonard, who's not an Allinson, making money for all of us and managing the house."

"Leonard got money and the opportunity of making more from Allinsons."

"That's true, but it doesn't excuse me. I ought to be a power in the firm, and I don't suppose I could properly keep one of their books."

He walked on in silence for the next minute or two, and his companion watched him with interest. His brows were knitted, his brown face looked strong as well as thoughtful, and Ethel did not agree with his relatives, who thought him a bit of a fool. She was inclined to believe that Leonard had spread that impression, and the others had adopted it without consideration. Andrew had been idle, but that was his worst fault, and he might change. There was, however, nothing significant in his taking her into his confidence; he had often done so, though she realised with a half regretful acquiescence that it was only as a confidant he thought of her. As it happened, he could not have chosen a better one, for Ethel Hillyard was a girl of unusual character, and she now determined to exert her influence for his benefit.

"Aren't Allinsons rather branching out of late?" she asked.

"They are. The West African goldfield was a new kind of venture, though it's paying handsomely, and we're now taking up a mine in Canada. Of course, the old private banking business has gone under, and one must move with the times; but in a sense, it's a pity."

Ethel understood him. Her father had dealt with Allinsons, and she knew the house had hitherto been dignified and conservative, while Leonard was essentially modern in his methods, and what is known as pushing. She foresaw disagreements if Andrew ever took an active part in the business, which he had a right to do.

"Perhaps it isn't necessary that you should be good at bookkeeping," she said. "Is there no place for you in these new foreign schemes? You have travelled in the Canadian bush to shoot deer, and said you liked it; wouldn't it be as interesting if you went there to look for minerals or manage a mine? You would have the free life in the wilds, but with an object."

"There's something in that," Andrew replied thoughtfully. "I happen to know the country where the mine is, and it's unusually rough. It's curious that you have made a hazy idea I've had a little clearer. I'll think over the thing."

Ethel knew she had said enough. She would miss the man if he went away, but it would be better for him, and she knew that she would never have more than his liking. Still she wished to know where the mine was, and she asked.

"It's among the rocks, some distance back from the Lake of Shadows in Western Ontario."

"The Lake of Shadows!" Ethel exclaimed. "A friend I made in London used to go there with her father for fishing and shooting; but that's not important."

"Well," said Andrew, "I've talked enough about myself, and there's a favour I want to ask. Will you call on Mrs. Olcott?"

Ethel started. Mrs. Olcott was young and pretty; nobody knew anything about her husband, and Andrew's visits had already excited comment.

"Why should I call?" she inquired.

He gave her the best reasons he could think of for befriending the lonely woman, and she pondered them for a moment or two. Then she asked bluntly: "How was it that Mrs. Olcott chose this neighbourhood, where she knows nobody?"

"I suggested it," said Andrew. "The Furs was empty, and she has few friends anywhere."

Though she had attached no importance to the remarks that had been made about him, Ethel found his unembarrassed candour satisfactory. He had, however, asked her a thing that was harder than he imagined, and she hesitated.

"Very well," she said. "I will go to see her."

"Thanks," said Andrew. "I knew I could count on you."

They had now reached the top of the hill, and Ethel took a cross-road while he mounted his bicycle, but she turned her head, and thoughtfully watched him ride across the moor. Andrew, however, did not look back at her, and by and by she urged her horse to a trot.

CHAPTER II.
FAMILY AFFAIRS.

Dinner was over at Ghyllside, where Andrew lived, for the hall which his grandfather had built around the peel had long been let with its shooting rights. Ghyllside was, however, a commodious house, and Leonard Hathersage, who was frequently glad to spend a week-end there, had arrived with his wife on the previous evening. He was now busy in the library, and Andrew sat talking to his sisters on the terrace.

Though the light was fading, it was not yet dark, and the air was still and fragrant of flowers. Yew hedges and shrubberies were growing indistinct; a clump of firs in a neighbouring meadow loomed up black and shadowy, but a band of pale saffron light still shone behind the hall on the edge of the moorland a mile away. The square peel tower stood out harsh and sharp against the glow; the rambling house with its tall chimneys trailing away into the gloom on its flanks.

Andrew, who had early lost his mother, had three sisters. Florence, Leonard's wife, his senior by several years, was a tall, prim, and rather domineering woman; Gertrude, who had married Antony Wannop, a local gentleman, was gentler and less decided than her sister; Hilda, the youngest of all, was little, dark, and impulsive. Wannop, who was stout and generally marked by a bluff geniality, leaned upon the terrace wall between the flower urns with a cigar in his mouth.

"Where did you go this afternoon, Andrew, when you wouldn't come with us to the Warrington's?" Hilda asked by and by.

Andrew would have preferred to evade the question, but as this seemed impossible he said, "I went to see Mrs. Olcott."

"Again!" exclaimed Hilda, who prided herself upon being blunt.

Wannop chuckled softly, but Florence claimed Andrew's attention.

"Don't you think you have been there often enough?"

"It hasn't struck me in that light."

"Then," rejoined Florence, "I feel it's time it did."

"Come now," Wannop broke in. "Three to one is hardly fair. Don't be bullied Andrew; a bachelor can be independent."

"How do you make it three?" Hilda asked. "Only Florence and I mentioned the matter."

"I am, of course, acquainted with Gertrude's views," Wannop explained genially.

Hilda laughed. Antony, who was often maladroit, had somehow made things worse, and Andrew's face hardened. His sisters were generally candid with him, but they had gone too far. With a thoughtlessness he sometimes showed, he had told them nothing about his acquaintance with Clara Olcott's husband.

"You're not much of an ally," he said with a dry smile. "Anyway, as there's no reason why I shouldn't go to The Firs, I'm not likely to be deterred. I may as well mention that I met Ethel Hillyard and begged her to call."

"On Mrs. Olcott?" Florence cried. "What did she say?"

"She promised to do as I asked."

The astonishment of the others was obvious, but Hilda was the only one who ventured to express it.

"Andrew, you're a wonder. You haven't the least idea of scheming, and you'd spoil the best plot you took a hand in, and yet you have a funny, blundering way of getting hard things done."

"You have hinted that I was a bit of a fool," said Andrew; "but I don't see why this thing should be hard."

As an explanation was undesirable, Hilda let his remark pass and addressed the rest. "He has beaten us and we may as well give in gracefully. If Ethel goes, all the people who count will follow her."

"There's more in Andrew than his friends suspect," Wannop observed, laughing.

WOMEN PAINTERS.

THE SPRING EXHIBITION.

The Society of Women Painters, which has rapidly advanced in numbers since 1908, and more slowly but not unsatisfactorily in talent, will open their annual exhibition at Lawson House to-morrow. Lady Cullen will perform this ceremony at noon, when visitors will find a remarkably spacious and well-lighted room near the top of an immense pile of new buildings at the back of Petty's Hotel. In these "scareful" days of epidemics, the wary womenfolk have wisely secured a gallery never occupied before, airy, and scrupulously clean. In this way their spring collection starts with a fair field and no favour. Numerically the show is comprehensive, embracing just upon 200 works; in quality, whilst both in oil and water-colours various pictures should have been rejected, there are in the former section fine examples of the manner of Violet Teague and Florence Rodway, whilst a general interest will be taken in the latter, though the exhibits are too numerous to be dealt with very much in detail. The sculpture derives value from the return of Miss Theo Cowan, after long years of absence in Europe.

Miss Violet Teague's principal work, "The Boy with the Palette," dominates the collection by its finish and strength of style. The life-size subject is a handsome little lad of 12 years, in a dark-blue woollen football dress, standing against the white wall of a room which throws out the figure vividly. The unconscious, easy grace of the pose is especially winning. The same group includes the Victorian artist's smiling portrait of Mr. Archibald Strong, the expression marked by a poignant vitality, and the hands beautifully drawn; and "The Singer," a pleasing portrait of a dark girl in a pale-pink gown. The lady is apparently in full song, and her mouth is rather on one side—probably an individual characteristic. Miss Florence Rodway eclipses this last in her "Italian Girl," with its depth of expression in the candid brown eyes, firmly modelled mouth, and soft, brown hair. The flesh-tones of this brunette, and the whole scheme of colouring, are wonderfully reposeful and harmonious.

Visitors must perforce first glance at Miss Ruby Winckler's "Decoration for White and Gold Hall," owing to its size, which is about 9ft x 5ft. This is the "problem picture" of the show, there being no official key to its meaning. "Life," when defined as "a procession from the cradle to the grave," would serve as its title, though the young artist herself is said to have suggested "The Pursuit of a Cult." A crowd of figures of every age, and different epochs, eagerly hurries along a carpeted cloister, the stone arches of which at the back admit the light. One of the most significant characters is an aged man bending over his stick, in a heavy fur-trimmed cloak. However, such a work would take a great artist to make effective, and Miss Winckler is merely clever—and ambitious. Still, the effort is promising. It is seen at its best half the length of the gallery away—a proper distance for a mural decoration. Miss Clarice Sandford's "Portrait of My Mother" is hard in the modelling and flesh tones, though the accessories, furs and laces, are of higher technical achievement. Lilian Chauvel's "Breakfast Creek, Brisbane," forms a notable advance upon the part of this painter, who has invested with poetry a somewhat prosaic scene, due to her skilful treatment of a glowing suffusion of sunset colours on river bank and river. Isobel Jacobs' "Nude Study" of a lean young man presents faithfully-observed muscles, and the flesh tones are true, except as to the lower limbs, which embrace a dubiously blue hue. Mrs. A. Hedley Parson's sea-scapes are clever, more especially in the ghostly advance of a ship "Out of the Mists" into a yellow light from a luminous sky that gilds the translucent green waves.

Clarice Sandford's group of figure-paintings reveal a good deal of imagination and an eye for colour, but they mostly fail through the weakness of drawing. "Scene from Antony and Cleopatra" shows he figures nearly as flat as Egyptian mural paintings 3000 years old. "Kismet" has merit on the lines indicated above. Janet V. Turner strikes a new note in this collection by the smoothness of her maner in "The Camp," in which the evening effects are excellent. Miss Edith Cusack's "Evensong," a mother with her child on her lap gazing from her balcony upon the lights of a neighbouring church, just misses the needed touch of romance. The face lacks interest, and the background is too forward to suggest the sadness of twilight.

We now come to a profusion of water-colour paintings, many of them sketchy, a considerable proportion marked, however, by the gift of sympathy with Nature. Miss Gladys Owen here comes into welcome prominence. As favourable examples of her manner, "The Parramatta River," with its finely treated sky and rich harmony of colour, and "The Heads, Sydney," a poetic study of a landscape in rain, may be quoted. Miss Florence Rodway's heads, mostly of children, are all attractive, and No. 18 is captivating in the finish of its contours. But why are this artist's backgrounds so consistently in slanting lines? Frances Hodgkins is best represented by "The Fish-market, Arles," a tender study from life. Miss Ethel Stephens' tempera-drawings include "Chrysanthemums," a landscape in shadow with a light on the blossoms, quite French in manner. Mrs. Hedley Parsons' group includes one or two good things; and Miss Isobel Jacobs' mingled gaiety and economy of colour gives character to her foreign scenes, notably in the pale and limpid shadows of "La Rue St. Jacques, Paris." Gertrude Swyny, whose oil subject is unequal, does well in her "Study of a Head," in black and white, in which section Nellie Rodd's drawings, Nellie Macmullen's contribution, and an immensely clever "Vision of the Last Day," by Rubie Winckler, will be admired. Miss Theo Cowan's principal work, "Will o' the Wisp," is a bronze exhibited at the Franco-British Colonial Exhibition at White City two years ago, and at three other collections, and illustrated in the London "Studio" of November, 1911. Not only is the conception original, but the execution is characterised by an exceptional grace.

It is only right that women, whom a poet has described as "the sisters of flowers," should excel in depicting the blossoms of field and garden. The Misses Edith and Aline Cusack, Ethel Stephens, Mrs. Madeline Duret, are all well represented, and landscapes and sea-scenes by Maude Russell, M. Hookey, Emily Meston, Alice Norton, and Gertrude Williams all claim attention.

BABY SCREAMED ALL DAY WITH ECZEMA.

67 Colegrave-road, Stratford, New Town, London, England:—"My baby had dry eczema from head to foot when four months old. He used to scream all day with it, and never got a good night's rest. It began on his scalp like a dry crust, and each time he was washed the scales came off, and it ran, wept, and spread. In this way it covered his head, eyebrows, and ears, also in places on his body, so that really from top to toe he was one mass of eczema, and neighbours used to say what a terrible sight he looked, especially with his head uncovered. My baby was a perfect sight with this complaint.

"They told me it was dry eczema, and to rub him with carron oil night and morning. This I did for about two months, all to no use. I saw the advertisement for Cuticura Soap and Ointment and offer of free samples, which I wrote for and used. They began to mend baby, and I then bought a cake of Cuticura Soap and a box of Cuticura Ointment. One cake of Cuticura Soap and one box of Cuticura Ointment cured him. He is now quite clear." (Signed) Mrs. Pugh, November 14, '11.

Although Cuticura Soap and Ointment are sold throughout the world, a sample of each, with 32-page Skin Book, will be mailed free on application to R. Towns and Co., Dept. M., Sydney, N.S.W.—Advt.

COMING SHOWS.

Australian Scotch Collie Club	Sept. 6
Sydney Silky, Y., and A.T. Club	Sept. 27
Ladies' Kennel Club of N.S.W.	Oct. 17, 18
Bulldog Club of N.S.W.	Oct.

The annual meeting of the Sydney Silky Yorkshire and Australian Terrier Club was held on the 31st ult. Mr. Wilson presided, and 15 other members attended. The secretary's and treasurer's annual reports showed a cash balance of £1 1s 6d, and an excess of assets over liabilities of £9 10s. The small cash balance is due to the fact that the accounts in connection with the annual show and dance have been paid. Mr. J. O'Brien was proposed as a member. The election of officers resulted as follows:—Mr. A. E. Wilson, president; Mr. R. Cookson, vice-president; Mr. R. Alexander, hon. treasurer; Mr. F. W. Taylor, hon. secretary (re-elected); Mr. Cookson, hon. registrar; and Messrs. Sargent and Alexander, hon. auditors. Mr. T. J. O'Loughlin retired from the position of treasurer, after having held that office since the club's formation. His resignation was due to the fact that he is leaving Sydney on an extended holiday. Mr. R. Mason was nominated as a judge of Yorkshire and silky terriers at an approaching show.

By permission of the Royal Agricultural Society the Cattledog and Sheepdog Club of New South Wales held its fourth stockdog parade in the Ayrshire ring at the society's grounds last Saturday afternoon. There were 46 entries—30 cattledogs and 16 Kelpies. This was regarded as excellent considering the difficulty of getting dogs so far from their homes to the ground in time for judging. The exhibits with ribbons on went round the horse ring during the afternoon. There was the anticipated inquiry for dogs. The awards appeared in Monday's "Herald."

A Sydney lover of Yorkshires recently secured from a neighbouring State a brood bitch. On arrival it was found that it had several defects that put it entirely out of court for the purpose for which it was intended. The buyer wrote to the seller, stating objections to the terrier, and said the bitch would be returned in a couple of days. The bitch, however, was lost, and now the buyer is minus dog and money. It was fortunate that the bitch was not a champion, as the loss would then have been more acute.

Mr. H. F. Carling, of the Roslyn Collie Kennels, Woollahra, has just returned home from an extended holiday in New Zealand. He states that he was splendidly received by Dominion fanciers, and that he had the time of his life in canine circles. As already reported he scooped the collie section at Auckland Show. His dogs came back to Sydney after this show. Mr. Carling visited the Hawkes Bay (Napier) Show. He also inspected kennels at Gisborne, Palmerston North and Wellington. At Mr. W. U. Timewell's Birk Vale collie kennels, north Auckland, the Sydney visitor saw the imported dog Ryeland's Admiral, which has not yet been shown. Mr. Carling also had a look at Mr. J. Parker's collie kennels, Hastings. He spent one day there, and another at Hugh McDonald's famed Puketapu kennels, about 12 miles from Napier.

Other breeds that impressed the visitor were the grand lot of wire-hair fox terriers, setters, and black pugs. The latter in cobbiness and type would be an object lesson in some of the Australian States.

Mrs. E. M. Hope, of Neutral Bay, has added to the Lindley spaniel kennels, a young bitch by champion Union Jack ex Lady Foote. The other inmates of the kennel are reported to be in good form for the forthcoming spring shows.

The annual balance-sheet of the Australian Scotch Club is an example to many other bigger societies. Starting with the final figures, the gratifying statement appears: "Cash balance in bank £22 4s 1d." The expenditure was £69 6s 8d, and the receipts £91 10s 9d.

The Pug Dog Club will hold its monthly meeting on Tuesday next, when the competitions will commence. The first match arranged will be between two nine months' old puppy dogs. The object of this club is to improve the breed in this State. At present the dogs, although good, are much above the true weight. The club is growing, and has been fortunate in gaining, as members, two English breeders.

CATHOLIC FEDERATION AND POLITICS.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—Considering the surprising ebullition caused by some remarks of Father O'Reilly at Bathurst last Sunday, it might be well to place before the public the objects of the Catholic Federation, as set out in its constitution, in order that its attitude towards politics and the interests of the community may be fairly understood.

The objects are: (a) The mutual support and advancement of Catholic societies; (b) The expression and promulgation of Catholic opinion on social and public questions affecting Catholic interests; (c) The safeguarding and extension of Catholic education; (d) The dissemination and encouragement of Catholic literature; (e) The defence of Catholics and Catholic institutions.

The Catholic Federation aims at being a school of civics in which it taught principles of government, which were set aside for a time while the world was under the domination of the callous doctrines of "dry-as-dust" political economy, and to which all modern States are returning. For the most part, it does not enter the sphere of politics at all, and only where politics interfere with religious principles will it take a side. I may be permitted to quote from my address at the inaugural meeting in St. Mary's Cathedral on April 13, as the address was afterwards printed and adopted by the federation. "The political programme of the Catholic Federation can be centred around one principle—the insistence on the supremacy of the divine law over the civil law." This principle is attacked by the doctrine of State supremacy, which, although it is the root principle of Socialism, is advocated by many short-sighted people, who are not aware of its danger. It is under this doctrine that compulsory secular education, divorce, the abolition of private property, and many other evils are advocated. Furthermore, I said: "If we believe that the ideals and the methods of Government are not working for peace, progress, and prosperity, it is our duty to act upon our opinions." Obviously, if our principles are not listened to, we must back them up by our votes, or else we degenerate to the position of a young men's improvement society. It is "up to us," then, to show that the principles for which we are prepared to stand out are of greater importance than those which bind us to our respective political parties. In a democracy, where it is a prime duty to educate those who will in time be called upon to take up the responsibilities of citizenship, there can be nothing of greater importance than right education. I do not mean mere instruction, but education for the Christian citizenship of a Christian State. I am not going to extend this argument now, beyond adding that one of the Sydney daily papers (I forget which), summing up one of the interminable controversies on this subject, wrote: "After all, it does not matter much about your logic, you are in the minority." Now, in a constitutionally-governed community, how can we get out of the minority, except by educating our party, by placing our principles before the people, and where, as in political circles, principles count much less than opportunities, we can only secure a hearing by showing our strength—that is by supporting those who are prepared to give us justice. Let it be clearly understood that we are not asking the people to favour the adherents of one Church more than another. There are two ways in which the State may stand neutral as between the different creeds—one by ignoring them altogether, the other by giving them equal facilities for the exercise of their doctrines and practices. The first is not a Christian, but a pagan, method, and will produce none but pagans. For the second, the Catholic Federation stands, and on this broad foundation it confidently claims the support of all fellow citizens with high ideals, to whom it is prepared to grant equal rights. Copies of the constitution and other publications of the Catholic Federation have been sent to the newspapers, and will be forwarded, on request, to any address.

It is perhaps regrettable that it was so late in July that the Sydney press woke up, or it would have found that it was not Father O'Reilly who was advocating the wrong ideals and methods of citizenship, about which it lamented so bitterly.

I am, etc.,
P. S. CLEARY,
President of the Catholic Federation of N.S.W.

POULTRY.

Questions relating to fancy or commercial poultry-keeping, diseases, etc., should be addressed to "Ancona," "Herald" Office.

ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS.

W. E. T., St. John's Park.—If your stock is healthy and well cared for, the chickens should be all right.

Inquirer, North Sydney.—The Rochdale and Bowen laying competitions were carried out practically under the same rules and regulations as those at the Hawkesbury College, but the details of management were somewhat different. At the two first named the construction of the houses and runs, and all details in connection with the feeding, were left entirely to the supervisors, whereas at the College the control was in the hands of a committee elected by the competitors, the supervision and labour being supplied by the College authorities.

Disgusted, Ryde.—Have all perches and nests movable, and paint with wood-preserving oil. All poultry houses should be cleaned out every morning, Sunday included. Tobacco dust is best for putting in the bottom of the nests of laying or sitting hens. Put a little cocoanut oil on the top and back of the head of each chicken, rubbing well in. Kill the very sick ones, and burn the bodies.

The first four months of the laying competitions at the Hawkesbury Agricultural College, supervised by Mr. D. S. Thompson, the poultry expert, terminated on Thursday last, and, despite the adverse climatic conditions, the records show good results. The 60 pens of pullets show an average of 12 eggs per pen over the figures of last year for the corresponding period, but the returns are still a long way short of previous years. For educational purposes the third-year hens may justify their place in the test, but, as a paying proposition, they are absolute failures, and the time wasted on them might be applied to some better purpose. In the 60 pens of pullets, no less than thirteen are shown to be laying eggs below the commercial standard of 2oz, and those on the lookout for stock birds would do well to study the records before purchasing. The prize-winners and leading pens in the different sections are as follows:—Winter test, second year competition: A. W. Waine, 246 eggs (1), £2; H. Ekin, 217 (2), £1; D. Kenway, 202 (3), 10s. Twelfth annual competition: D. Salter, 367 eggs (1), £3; C. Leach, 358 (2), £2 10s; G. Judd 339 (3), £2; E. T. Rhodes, 321 (4), £1; S. Ellis, 319 (5), 10s. The monthly prizes for July were won by the following:—Third-year hens: R. Boardman 10s. Second-year hens: S. Champion, 10s. Twelfth annual competition: M. Vennard, 10s. The following are the returns for the four months: Third-year hens: Mrs. E. Scaysbrook, Black Orpingtons, 176; R. Boardman, R.C., W. Leghorns, 91; M. A. Vennard, W. Leghorns, 79; R. H. Stewart, Plymouth Rocks, 73; Miss A. Vaughan, W. Leghorns, 73. Second-year hens: S. Champion, W. Leghorns, 194; H. J. F. Peters, W. Leghorns, 145; W. J. Ransley, Brown Leghorns, 158; A. W. Waine, Black Orpingtons, 246; A. Ringk, W. Leghorns, 140; Hillcrest Farm, W. Leghorns, 136; H. Hammill, W. Leghorns, 122; F. W. Rose, W. Leghorns, 146; C. Bloomfield, W. Leghorns 84; H. Ekin Langshans, 217. Twelfth annual competition: D. Salter, W. Leghorns, 367; C. Leach, Black Orpingtons, 358; G. Judd, Langshans, 339; E. Goddard, Langshans 333; Mrs. E. J. Hunt, Langshans, 329; E. T. Rhodes, W. Leghorns, 321; S. Ellis, W. Leghorns 319; A. R. Kennedy, Black Orpingtons, 303; J. D. Nicholson, W. Leghorns, 306; P. C. M'Donnell, Black Orpingtons, 299; T. Partridge, W. Leghorns, 295; C. W. Brown's W. Leghorns 294; A'Hearn Bros., Langshans, 292; W. J. Bucklands, S. Wyadnottes are last, with a total of 65 eggs from six pullets in four months.

The steamer Ballarat, which arrived in Sydney last Saturday, had on board a valuable consignment of pure-bred poultry consisting of one cockerel and two hens, Rhode Island Reds, and two cocks and six pullets, Blue Orpingtons. They were to the order of Messrs. Evans and Meares, Wahroonga. All the birds arrived in splendid condition, and, although same were moulting, it was easily seen that they were of the highest quality, several being prize-winners at the best shows in England. The Rhode Island Reds are essentially an American production, where they have been very popular for many years, and now there is a mild boom in them amongst British fanciers, both for show and utility. The Blue Orpingtons are the first to be imported into this State, and as far as the writer is aware into Australasia, and consist of two distinct strains, there being one cock and three hens of each. They are the latest additions to the Orpington family, and form the fifth sub-variety of this popular breed. The others are Blacks, Buffs, Whites, and Jubilees.

The records in the New Zealand Utility Poultry Club's eighth laying competition will take some beating. The time is given as 8 weeks, and 60 pens of fowls and 10 of ducks took part. The average for 360 fowls and 60 ducks works out at over 200 eggs each bird. The leading scores were as follow:—W. A. Nixon, W. Leghorns, 1614 eggs; J. W. Green, 1492; Heretaunga Poultry Club, 1469; H. Lege, 1465; Duck competition: T. R. Hall, Indian Runners, 1464; T. Douthwaite 1453; Heretaunga Poultry Farm, 1449.

Now that warm weather is approaching, poultry-raisers would do well to keep a sharp lookout for that terrible scourge of the poultry yard, known as the red mite. When they get into the roosting houses it is good-bye to profits. They breed with alarming rapidity, hiding during the day in the crevices of the building, cracks of perches, and in the nesting material. There is no more effective remedy than wood-preserving oil, sometimes called kerosene tar.

SULKY CAPSIZED.

DUNGOG, Tuesday.

While the matron, Sister Arnold, and nurses Holmes and Howard, of the local hospital staff, were driving in a sulky near Thalaba, the horse became restive, and bolted, eventually capsizing the vehicle, and throwing the occupants to the ground. Nurse Howard sustained a broken arm, and Nurse Holmes injuries to her ankle. The matron escaped without serious injury.

THE CAMPS.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—In your issue of yesterday the list of dates for the infantry camps sets down the first week in December for the 6th Brigade, and the second week in January for the 8th Brigade. Why such extraordinary dates have been selected I am at a loss to understand, for I feel sure that they will be found highly inconvenient to all concerned. University students in particular are going to be placed at a serious disadvantage with either their studies or their drill, if these are persisted in. The first week in December begins our annual examinations, and all must surely be aware of the fact that this is the most strenuous time in the student's year. Why midsummer (the second week in January) has been selected for training manoeuvres puzzles me. Those of us who have been to Liverpool can picture what it is going to be—marching, drilling, and working under a blazing midsummer Australian sun, and surrounded by clouds of dust, such as only Liverpool can produce. It is to be hoped that common sense will prevail, and that dates will be selected that will go to help towards efficiency in our continuous training. Why change from the old autumn season? If the objection is from the religious section which opposes Easter, then let us have them a few weeks either before or after. In conclusion, I doubt if more unsatisfactory or unsuitable times could have been selected than are now proposed.

I am, etc.,
STUDENT.

LAW REPORT.

HIGH COURT.

(Before Mr. Justice Barton, Acting Chief Justice, Mr. Justice Isaacs, Mr. Justice Duffy, Mr. Justice Rich, and Mr. Justice Powers.)

QUEENSLAND INCOME TAX COMMISSIONER v BANK OF NEW SOUTH WALES.

Argument was continued in the case in which the Commissioner for Income Tax, Queensland, appealed from a decision of the Queensland Full Court, upsetting a judgment of the Court of Review in favour of the Commissioner, claiming income tax on proceeds of premiums on new shares issued in 1910 and 1911, amounting to £125,000, being £5 per share on 25,000 new £20 shares issued to the proprietors of the bank for the purpose of increasing the bank's capital from £2,500,000 to £3,000,000.

Mr. Stumm, K.C., and Mr. Wassell, instructed by the Queensland Crown Solicitor, appeared for the appellant Commissioner. Mr. Feez, K.C., and Mr. M'Gregor, instructed by Messrs. Feez, Ruthning, and Baynes, by their Sydney agents, Messrs. Allen, Allen, and Hemsley, appeared for the respondent bank.

Mr. Wassell continued the argument in support of the appeal, which had been carried on during the previous day by Mr. Stumm. He contended that the sale of these shares had been conducted by the proprietors, who had fixed upon a premium of £5 per share. In the open market, the shares might have been worth £40, or a £20 profit on each one. But the fact remained that although the proprietors sold them on the basis of a £5 per share premium, they still netted a profit of £5, and that profit was apportioned to a section of the bank's business. It had been taken to the credit of reserves, which act, in itself, as argued by the Commissioner, was illegal under clause 104 of the deed of settlement, but it was nevertheless a portion of the bank's business.

Mr. Feez, on behalf of the respondent bank, argued that the sale of the new shares was simply a method by which the shareholders contributed something more towards the money necessary to work the business of the company, for which they got a quid pro quo. Under the statute, he could not see how it could be called profits. They had merely contributed something towards the assets of the company, in order to carry on the company. The price had certainly been put above the nominal face value. But that was certainly not a profit that could be considered as a profit for the purposes of the income tax. These were transactions not within the scope of the company. It was a change of its assets in the way of changing the shares into money. If the company did anything at all, it simply sold shares. It had 25,000 shares unissued, and the most it did was to sell them for a good deal less than they were worth, but all it did was to change the shares into money.

Mr. Justice Duffy: I suppose it must be shown that one party or the other is better off by the transaction.

Mr. Feez: Exactly. But how could the bank be any better off? It sold them a good deal under their admitted market value.

Mr. Justice Isaacs: But the company, as a company, had more money.

Mr. Feez: If the Commissioner is going to tax the balance (£5 per share) of this transaction, I wonder why he stops at that, when it is admitted the shares were worth something like £40.

Mr. Justice Isaacs: The reason why he does not go any further is because he would have no commencing point.

Continuing his argument, Mr. Feez quoted an English judgment declaring that a similar transaction did not provide profits, but was rather in the way of an increase of capital.

Argument was concluded, and judgment was reserved.

SUPREME COURT.

IN BANCO.

(Before the Chief Justice, Mr. Justice Pring and Mr. Justice Ferguson.)

ALLEGED BREACH OF AWARD.
APPEAL AGAINST PENALTIES.

Re Adelaide S.S. Company, Ltd., (W. Peck and another respondents.)

Mr. Knox, K.C., and Dr. Brissenden, instructed by Messrs. Norton, Smith, and Company, appeared for the Adelaide Steamship Company, Ltd., and moved to make absolute a rule nisi for a writ of prohibition to restrain Walter Peck, secretary of the Sydney District of the Australasian Institute of Marine Engineers, and J. Lethbridge King, P.M., from further proceeding upon certain orders made by the magistrate. Mr. Blacket, K.C., and Mr. Mack, instructed by Messrs. Sullivan Brothers, appeared for respondent Peck in opposition to the motion. It appeared that Peck proceeded against the Adelaide S.S. Company under section 44 of the Commonwealth Conciliation and Arbitration Act for failing to pay J. A. Robertson, chief engineer in the employ of the company, also J. D. Watt, second engineer; and Alexander Macfarlane, third engineer, overtime earned by them between December, 1912, and March, 1913, contrary to the provisions of an award dated October 5, 1912, and still in force, made by the Commonwealth Conciliation and Arbitration Court, wherein the Australasian Institute of Marine Engineers were claimants and the Adelaide S.S. Company, Ltd., and others were respondents. The cases came before the magistrate on June 2 last, when it was agreed that Robertson's case should be taken first, and that the decision should be binding on the others. At the conclusion of Robertson's case the magistrate imposed a penalty of £9 12s, with £2 2s costs, and ordered that half the amount of the penalty should be paid to complainant. In the case of J. W. Watt he imposed a penalty of £13 6s, with £2 2s costs, and in A. Macfarlane's case the defendant company was directed to pay a penalty of £7 12s, with £2 2s costs. The company now appealed on the grounds (1) that the police magistrate was in error in holding that the company was the employer of Robertson, and that the evidence did not support the adjudication.

Among other contentions submitted by Mr. Blacket in answer to the grounds of appeal, he argued that there was sufficient to show that the Adelaide S.S. Company, Ltd., were the employers in respect of overtime worked at their request.

The Chief Justice said that after the very closest scrutiny of the evidence he was satisfied that the "Clan Ross" was not the ship of the Adelaide S.S. Company. The men affected in the case were not liable to work as employees of the company, and were not bound to work under the orders of any of their officers. There was no evidence of any contract either express or implied between the men and the company, and there was nothing in the articles or charter party which contained any provision available to the engineers in any way. Therefore, although the decision might appear a somewhat hard one in regard to them, still as there was no contractual relationship between them and the Adelaide S.S. Company, they did not come under the express terms of the award. For these reasons the prohibition must go.

Mr. Justice Pring said he was of the same opinion. The documents and evidence were all one way and showed that these men were in the employ of the Clan Line and not of the Adelaide S.S. Company at all. The question was raised whether there was anything in the charter party which altered that position, but he saw nothing by which the magistrate could possibly find that these engineers were in the employment of the Adelaide S.S. Company.

Mr. Justice Ferguson concurred.

Rule absolute for a prohibition, with costs in Robertson's case. No order as to costs in the other two cases.

IN EQUITY.

(Before Mr. Justice Harvey.)

SPEDDING v SPEDDING.

The trial was concluded of the action brought by Margaret Spedding against William Clarke Spedding, administrator of the estate of the late Peter Spedding.

Mr. R. Clive Teece, with Mr. H. G. Edwards (instructed by Mr. W. Arnott), appeared for the plaintiff; and Mr. Perry (instructed by Mr. F. Fanker) for the defendant.

In seeking to have the defendant declared trustee for her in respect to certain money that the deceased died possessed of, the plaintiff alleged that prior to her husband's death she had carried on business as a grocer at 161 Queen's-road, Moore Park, and that the deceased had fraudulently abstracted money from the takings of the shop, and banked it in his own name. At his death his amount stood at £360 15s 7d, which sum the plaintiff now claimed.

His Honor found in favour of the plaintiff, the defendant being ordered to pay two-thirds of the costs.

CORDEAUX v MARKS.

In this case William Henry Cordeaux, as trustee under the will of the late Samuel Gordon, sought on an originating summons to obtain a definition of the meaning in the will of the term "My property known as Lilydor, Carr-street, Coogee." The testator died in February, 1911, and the property in question was left to Leah Marks for life, and thereafter to her children. The question for the Court was whether the property consisted of only the two blocks that comprised the site of the home and garden, or whether it included two or five blocks of adjacent land.

Mr. A. Browne (instructed by Messrs. Dibbs, Parker, and Parker) appeared for the plaintiff; Mr. R. K. Manning and Mr. S. Thompson (instructed by Mr. R. Sullivan) for the defendant, Leah Marks; Mr. Harriott (instructed by Mr. F. E. Wood) for Lily, Doris, Sylvia, and Fanny Marks (infants); and Mr. Innes (instructed by Messrs. Dibbs, Parker, and Parker) for Maurice Gordon.

Argument was resumed, but had not concluded when the Court rose.

INDUSTRIAL COURT.

(Before Mr. Justice Heydon.)

METALLIFEROUS MINING GROUP.

Judgment was delivered in the case in which the Electrolytic Refining and Smelting Company sought an amendment of the Metalliferous Mining (General) Group, No. 5 board. The board, as originally constituted, excluded the crafts, and the application was that crafts should be included, on the ground that results had shown the methods of the board's constitution was a mistake.

His Honor said that the business was an isolated one, and the only one of its kind in Australia. It provided a local market for many low-grade ores, which would otherwise have to go out of the country. It could not possibly pass on any additional burdens imposed upon it, as its products were all exported and sold in the markets of the world in competition with German and other works. An engine-drivers' award had been made, which introduced a 48-hour week, its own overtimes, and its own rates of overtime; and in these and other ways, was alleged to have created conflict, discontent and trouble.

Incidentally there was a dispute as to the proper classification of many of the men. Electric power was used throughout the establishment, and all sorts of work was done by pressing buttons and pushing levers. Amongst other things materials were taken from place to place by men who loaded them into trucks, and then stepped up and moved a lever, and were taken wherever they wanted to go. These men were claimed to be motor-drivers, and as such entitled to overtime if they had to work on the seventh day, and this, it was said, would create discontent, as they were really doing only labouring work of a simple character, and were working side by side with other men who were under a different award, adapted to a continuous process. The only course appeared to be to leave this particular class of worker to the Electrolytic Board, which board must bear in mind the general principle that the craftsman got the craft wage. He therefore amended the constitution of the Metalliferous Mining (General) Group No. 5 Board, by omitting therefrom all the exceptions. His Honor wished to say that he had made this amendment on general grounds, and not because he thought it desirable that men should work seven days in the week. On the contrary, he hoped that every effort would be made to find some method by which the six-day week could be secured for all who wished it, and, if possible, for the other workers, as well as the engine-drivers.

IN PROBATE.

(Before Mr. Justice Street.)

WILL CASE SETTLED.

DOLAN v DOLAN.

Mr. A. S. Gerber appeared for the plaintiffs, Alfred C. Dolan, and Walter Dolan, who were asking for probate of the will and codicil of the late John Dolan, retired tailor; and Mr. T. J. Purcell, for the defendant, John Dolan, who had caveated against the granting of probate. Mr. Purcell stated that the parties had come to a settlement on the terms of an agreement filed in Court, and signed by the parties. An order was, therefore, asked for, granting probate to the plaintiffs. The testator left four children surviving him, and to whom he left his property, but there were children of a deceased child, to whom he left nothing. There had been a previous will by which the grandchildren were to receive their father's share, and one of them caveated against probate of the present will being granted, on the ground of alleged want of mental capacity on the part of the testator. When, however, the rule nisi was granted, his Honor suggested a settlement, which was afterwards arrived at, the terms of which had been accepted by plaintiffs and defendant, and other parties interested in the will. The estate was a small one.

Probate granted to plaintiffs, as executors of the will, in the terms of the settlement.

COURT OF CRIMINAL APPEAL.

(Before the Chief Justice, Mr. Justice Pring, and Mr. Justice Sly.)

APPEAL AGAINST CONVICTION.

Re James Henry Hattam.

Mr. Breckenridge, instructed by Mr. John A. Aitken, appeared for Hattam, in support of the appeal, and Mr. Walter Bevan, instructed by the Crown Solicitor (Mr. J. V. Tillett) to uphold the conviction. It appeared that Hattam was charged with obtaining money under false pretences by means of a valueless cheque for £6. He was tried before Judge Rogers and a jury of 12, on June 19 last, at the Quarter Sessions, convicted, and sentenced to six months' imprisonment with hard labour in Goulburn Gaol. Leave to appeal was, however, granted, and the execution of the sentence suspended until the hearing of the appeal. Hattam was also admitted to bail. He now appealed against his conviction on the grounds that on the evidence the jury was not justified in convicting, and that he had fresh evidence to offer which was not available at the trial. His counsel stated that some time prior to the trouble Hattam was engaged in the promotion of a company to purchase the rights in a patent which had been patented in many other places, and he was associated in the transaction with other persons in the city. He incurred a good deal of expense, and while engaged in the business he met with an accident which prevented him for some time from carrying on the negotiations. When he drew the cheque for £6 he bona fide believed that he had funds at the bank to meet it, having previously paid in the sum of £10 10s, the balance of which, together with a small credit which already existed, would have been sufficient to meet the £6 cheque. It appeared from the evidence that Hattam afterwards paid the amount of the cheque. Mr. Bevan, on behalf of the Crown, relied principally upon the case Reg v Parker, 7 C. and P., page 125.

The case is part heard.

QUARTER SESSIONS.

(Before Judge Docker and a jury.)

Mr. H. Harris, Crown Prosecutor.

NOT GUILTY.

Mabel Smythe was found not guilty of the charge of having attempted to steal from the person of Grace Nicholls on June 20 last, at Broadway, Glebe.

Mr. H. E. M'Intosh appeared for the defence.

REMANDED FOR SENTENCE.

Walter Carey pleaded guilty to having stolen a quantity of jewellery and money from the house of Arthur Mears.

He had previously pleaded not guilty, but when informed that the Crown had refused him a solicitor to appear for him, he said that he desired to plead guilty. He was remanded for sentence.

WOOLLAHRA ROBBERY.

Percy Lawrence, 26, and Geoffrey Roy Cox, 16, pleaded guilty to having stolen a quantity of jewellery and other articles from the house of James Paul Gee Cox, at Woollahra, on April 24; to having, while armed, assaulted Harold Alfred Leggatt at Randwick on June 19, with intent to rob him; and to having assaulted Nellie Cox at Woollahra on June 19, and robbed her of a finger ring.

Mr. E. R. Abigail appeared for the accused, Cox.

"I was absolutely forced into it; had I not known Cox this would not have happened," Lawrence replied, when asked what he had to say.

"Do you wish me to understand that the other accused led you into it?" asked his Honor.

"Yes," replied Lawrence, who said that he was 26 years of age. Cox, he stated, had told him that he was over 21 years of age.

Evidence of character on behalf of Cox was called by Mr. E. R. Abigail.

It was stated by the police that Lawrence came here from South Africa about 18 months ago. Inquiries had been made of South Africa and Scotland Yard regarding Lawrence, but so far no reply had been received. Lawrence had lately been sentenced at the Paddington Police Court to four weeks' for stealing.

Lawrence said that he would like to be deported, as his people in London were well off, and would pay his fare.

Lawrence was sentenced to five years' penal servitude for the robbery; to 14 years' penal servitude for the armed assault, and to 10 years for the assault and robbery. These sentences were concurrent, his Honor mentioned. Cox was sentenced to two years' imprisonment in Goulburn gaol.

STEALING AND RECEIVING.

Harry Johnson and George Harold Crouch were charged with having stolen two watches, a watch-chain, a sovereign purse, a scarf pin, a railway pass, and £4 in money, valued in all at over £40, the property of Reginald Barnett. They were further charged with having feloniously received the property mentioned.

Johnson pleaded guilty to the first count. Crouch pleaded not guilty.

Mr. Harris intimated that the second charge would not be pressed against Johnson.

Reginald Barnett said that the accused took almost everything that he had in his clothes. The robbery took place in a lavatory in a city hotel. They overlooked some money that witness had in a pocket that very few people had in their clothing. Witness had had a few drinks.

Constable Edward Clark said that Crouch had admitted to him being present when Barnett was robbed, but alleged that he did not steal anything.

Crouch, in a statement from the dock, denied that he had had anything to do with stealing from Barnett.

The jury found that the accused was not guilty of the first charge, but was guilty of the charge of receiving.

NEW ROYAL ACADEMICIAN.

Sir Alfred East, A.R.A., who was last night elected a Royal Academician (reports the "Westminster Gazette" of July 2), is a native of Kettering. He could draw before he could talk, and actually used to teach drawing to his schoolfellows while he was still in pinafores. At the age of 10 he got his first commission, which was to enlarge pictures for a travelling lecturer, who paid him in tickets for himself and his friends. In spite of these early leanings, his parents chose a different walk in life for their son, and had not circumstances taken him to Glasgow, where he first made the acquaintance of artists, he might never have become a painter. Many of his works find places in foreign galleries. Sir Alfred was once asked whether he would advise young fellows to devote themselves to art, and he made answer:—"That I couldn't, for the reason that the calling is the most difficult I know. Any person who paints can call himself an artist; but unless you have gifts and an earnestness of purpose and will, which are by no means common, many years must elapse before you can make a living. The reward is not at all commensurate with the amount of work and study which the profession entails. I don't think I should have become an artist had I known the difficulties which were in store for me." If Sir Alfred is dissatisfied with a painting, off it goes. He has more than once taken a picture which would have satisfied most critics off the canvas by means of soft soap, just because it didn't quite please him.

ROBBERIES.

On Monday afternoon thieves entered houses at Strathfield and Burwood during the absence of the inmates. Jewellery worth £14 was stolen from Mr. J. H. Whitney's residence, Woodward-avenue, Strathfield; while the home of Mr. John Kirkland, in the Appian Way, Burwood, was forcibly entered by the front door, articles valued at £5 being taken.

While among theatregoers in the Palace Theatre on Monday evening, a pickpocket relieved Mr. Robert Tanner, of Gower-street, Surry Hills, of a couple of sovereigns and a cheque, drawn by T. A. Field, butcher, to the amount of £100.

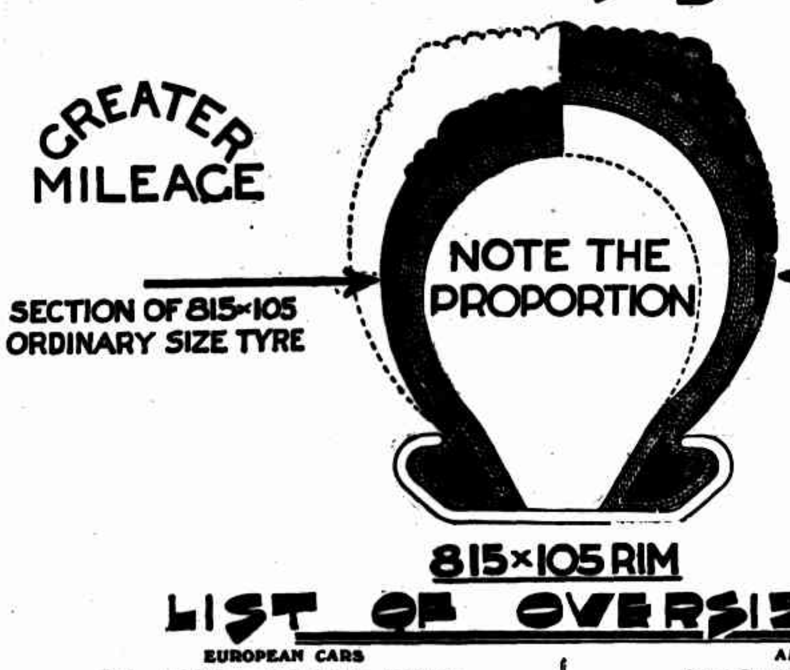

BREADCARTERS' HOLIDAY.

At a large meeting of members of the Operative Bakers' Union, held at the Trades Hall on Tuesday afternoon, notice of motion was given to have a fresh ballot taken on the question of working the extra double shifts necessitated by the breadcarters having been granted an extra holiday per month. PELAW MAIN.

OBJECTION TO INJUNCTION.

Mr. Justice Heydon listened to arguments in the Industrial Court yesterday regarding the injunction which he granted against Edward Thompson, secretary; David Johns, treasurer; and Thomas Harrison, scrutineer, of the Pelaw Main Colliery Employees' Federation, restraining them from encouraging or instigating a strike.

Mr. Brennan, on behalf of the Federation, applied for an order to set aside the injunction of the Court, and Mr. Curlewis, representing Mr. John Brown, proprietor of Pelaw Main Colliery, opposed the application. Mr. Brennan contended that the injunction was granted on June 20 on a specific assertion that the employees of the mine had refused to draw the cables. Subsequent to the granting of the injunction, however, the cable had been drawn, and that, therefore, there was no further need, if any had existed formerly, for the continuance of the injunction.

Mr. Curlewis argued that the Court had not granted the injunction with the object of restraining the three men from instigating a strike in any specific manner, but to restrain them from instigating a strike at all. He produced affidavits with the object of showing that at the instigation of the applicants, or one of them, certain men employed at Pelaw Main colliery had been induced to cease carrying out work which the manager had given them.

Mr. Brennan said the applicants considered they should not be punished by having an injunction held over their heads.

His Honor: Unless they want to tell the men to strike, how can you talk about this injunction as a punishment. It is merely an order of the Court not to tell the men to strike. How does that hurt the men, unless they want to tell the men to strike?

Mr. Brennan: I submit, your Honor, that these men have not told the other men to strike, and I further submit that if this act on the part of an officer who is conforming with the wishes of the manager can be construed as intigating a strike or aiding a strike then probably we shall want your Honor to give a direction as to what constitutes a lock-out. It is just as often that half a dozen or more of the men have to come back from the mine because the manager will not let them work. An injunction is regarded in our district with much concern, although it may be regarded as no punishment.

His Honor: Do remember, Mr. Brennan, that they cannot get injunctions in this Court in just the same way as a man can go into a shop and buy tobacco. They have to swear to the facts.

Edward Thompson, one of the three men mentioned in the injunction, said that, in the event of the lodge having any trouble at Pelaw Main there was always the likelihood of the advice of the officers of the lodge being sought. And he thought that if the miners ceased work, and that if he tried to get them to go back to work, he should disobey the injunction. He had no wish to encourage anybody to strike.

At this stage the Court adjourned until to-day.

TRADES AND LABOUR.

POTTERY, TILES AND BRISTOLWARE.

Mr. J. P. Sheridan, barrister, chairman of the manufacturing (No. 1) group of wages boards, yesterday issued an award, covering wages and conditions in respect to makers of pottery, tiles, other than roofing tiles, Chinaware, and Bristolware. In pottery the minimum rates of pay are 1s 5½d for throwers and sanitary pressers; other rates from 1s 1d to 1s 3½d, except moulders and mouldmakers, who are to receive not less than 58s per week. In Bristolware and tiles, throwers are to receive 1s 6d; others from 1s 1d to 1s 2½d. Boys and youths are to be paid 3½d to 1s; apprentices 10s to 35s; females 15s to 25s. The hours of labour are to be 48 per week, 8¾ hours Monday to Friday, and 4¼ hours on Saturday. Overtime is to be paid for at the rate of time and a half, except for claymakers, who are to receive time and a quarter for the first two hours. There shall not be more than one apprentice to every three journeymen. Where piecework is done, the rates are to be so fixed that competent workmen shall earn 5 per cent. above the hourly rates. Wages are to be paid weekly. Disputes can be referred to the board. The award, which is for the County of Cumberland, will have a duration of three years from next Wednesday.

NEW CHAIRMEN.

Mr. A. Ferguson, barrister, has been appointed chairman of the Furniture Trades Group of Wages Boards, vice Mr. L. Whitfeld, deceased; and Dr. C. A. Coghlan has been appointed chairman of the Shipping Group of Boards, vice Mr. H. E. Manning, resigned.

SLAUGHERMEN'S BACK PAY.

Messrs. O. Waters (president of the Australasian Meat Industry Employees' Union), H. MacNamara (treasurer), and T. W. Furse (secretary), and Messrs. Field, Ford, and Fallick, representing the Carcase Butchers' Association, had an interview with the Industrial Commissioner (Mr. J. B. Holme) yesterday afternoon, relative to the Glebe Island slaughtermen's claim for back pay. The Registrar made certain suggestions, which are to be considered by the parties, prior to the holding of another conference.

INDUSTRIAL RECORDS.

During the month of June there were 155 prosecutions under section 45 (a) of the Industrial Arbitration Act, for taking part in a strike—in which penalties were imposed—and one application under section 48 for a writ of injunction to restrain persons from continuing to instigate to or aid in a strike. The number of cases disposed of by industrial magistrates was 294. Of this number 10 were for recovery of moneys due under section 49; 118 for breaches of awards; 20 for the recovery of subscriptions, etc., due in pursuance of the rules of industrial unions under section 53; 105 for failure to keep time-sheets and pay-sheets, and to exhibit awards as prescribed by the Act; one for failing to produce time-sheets and pay-sheets when so required; and one for altering conditions of employment without giving 21 days' notice under section 69.

ARREARS OF CONTRIBUTIONS.

A case of interest to unionists was decided in the small debts division of the Central Police Court yesterday, when R. H. Adam, secretary of the Painters' Union, proceeded against James Howard, a member of the union, for £9 6s, being arrears of contributions, dues, and levies owing to the union. Howard contended that he was not indebted, and claimed that the Court had no jurisdiction, but Mr. Love, S.M., gave a verdict for the plaintiff for the full amount claimed, with costs.

WHY THE DELAY?

Dissatisfaction exists in the railway and tramway service owing to the Government's delay in giving effect to the recommendations contained in the Royal Commission's report. Speakers stated at a recent meeting of the executive of the Transport Workers' Federation—the present name for the Amalgamated Railway and Tramway Association—that this (railway) phase of Mr. Piddington's commission was specially reported upon, in order that the men's grievances should be expeditiously dealt with. The meeting expressed the hope that the Government would not therefore any longer delay a solemn obligation it had entered into voluntarily under the strike settlement terms.

The young man beamed. His face
Was one vast, substantial smile;
And as he doffed his cady
To the lovely Annie Lisle,
She gave him such a look—
She really was demure—
Then said, "Will you get me a bottle Of Woods' Great Peppermint Cure?"—Advt.

THE CHARM OF HARMONISING INTERIOR FITTINGS. The charm of a woman and the charm of a home are two scarcely definable things, yet the fascination of charm is something very pleasing even if it be merely crudely expressed in the words "lovely," "glorious," "charming." The charm of harmonising art in the interior fittings of a home has much to do with the happiness of the dwellers therein, and those who visit them. DANKS' MODERN INTERIOR FITTINGS, such as Mantelpieces, Fireplaces, and Warmers, Grates, Tile work, Copper and Brass work, Artistic Gas Fittings, and Electroliers, provide the fullest scope for schemes of charming interior fittings. A real treat is a visit of inspection of our Display, which is the finest in Sydney. Our New Catalogue will also be sent upon application. "GOVERNMENT INTERFERENCE."

The reactionary section in the dairying industry, which displays such consistent antagonism to attempts to improve the industry on lines proven of immense services elsewhere, might peruse our London correspondent's remarks in yesterday's issue with considerable profit. As the result of observations in the leading world's market and acquaintance with existing conditions, he absolutely supports the conclusion that successful opposition to the growing margarine trade lies in the improvement of our butter. To look for effective help in the shape of legislation in the old country prohibiting the use of colouring matter is depending upon a faint and illusive hope. On the other hand, adoption of the methods that have placed the position of the dairying industry in such an enviable position compared with us would go far to overcome the margarine trouble. We are told by a section of the butter factory management that compulsory grading and similar "Govt. interference" cannot possibly improve the quality of our butter, and in view of this antiquated, stubborn contention our London correspondent's remarks are worth reprinting. If compulsory grading is not beneficial, he asks:—

Can anyone explain how it is that New Zealand butter, as to which compulsory grading has been carried on for years, is making higher prices than Australian? When the Australasian butter industry began Australian butter brought higher prices than New Zealand by 3s or 4s per cwt. Now the position is changed, and Australian is 4s or 5s below it. When Queensland went in for compulsory grading her butter advanced on the British market by 2s to 3s over the period when grading was optional. The reason is that traders here have confidence in grading. They rely on grade for uniformity, and will buy on grade. And they have no confidence in optional grading. If an Australian were asked to buy an article in England graded by the manufacturer himself, would he have as much confidence in it as if it were graded by an independent person? Take another fact: New Zealand can sell in August and September three-fourths of her butter output for the season, beginning in October and ending in March, without any trouble in this country, where the buyers have found in the past they can trust the grade. Can such a thing be done with Australian butter?

Considering such solid facts, how can the attitude of the reactionary party be seriously entertained by those who desire to see the industry placed upon a sounder footing? Suppliers should study this matter for themselves, and refuse to be misled in the future, or allow their interests to be sacrificed by wanton obstinacy. The bogey about Government interference when applied to steps taken to improve the quality of our exports is a mere absurdity. We want more interference of the sort, and then we may hope to attain a proper footing in the export trade. Not only in the butter trade, but in the meat trade is New Zealand benefiting in this direction. Only yesterday we learnt that the New Zealand Department of Agriculture has been advised that the New Zealand meat inspection system satisfies the United States' requirements. New Zealand meat, properly stamped, will be admitted to America without further inspection. That is a very pleasant position from the producers' standpoint. But such inspection and stamping suggested here for the butter export trade is wildly characterised as Government interference and socialism. It is surely time the producer refused to be fooled by such fantastic cries and supported the reintroduction of a similar system here.

FRUITGROWERS CO-OPERATE.

There have been attempts at co-operation among fruitgrowers in the past in the direction of marketing their produce, and in purchasing orchard requisites, but these attempts have failed, either because of faulty management or because the fruitgrowers were afraid to trust each other sufficiently freely. Not deterred by this want of success the Young, Goulburn and Penrose growers, anticipating the report of the Federal Royal Commission on the fruit industry, started a co-operative society, and on February 1 of this year registered under the Companies Act as the Fruitgrowers' Co-operative Association of Australasia, Limited. It is stated that the membership has greatly increased the last three months, that many more districts are now represented, and that within that period the subscribers have saved in commission and otherwise more than the total capital subscribed. The association also supplies orchard requisites, and in this way, too, the growers make a saving. Only bona-fide growers can hold shares and no grower can hold more than ten shares. A pamphlet on the subject has been prepared by Mr. H. C. Swain, of Ourimbah, a director of the association. He points to the success which has attended the institution of co-operation in dairying now that it has proved the salvation of that industry, which is now one of the biggest wealth-producers of the country to-day. The selling commission to members is fixed at 5 per cent., but non-members are charged 7½ per cent. A record is kept of each sale made, including the name of the purchaser, when obtainable, and thus the grower has a check on the disposal of his consignments, which check he does not get from a commission agent. By these means it is impossible to falsify returns by taking a shilling or two off consignments which have realised a high price and putting it on to those which have been sold at a low price or sent to the tip. In this way a grower obtains exactly what his consignments realise, neither more nor less. The association does its own cartage, and charges members the old rates, 1d per case. The carters union is charging other growers 1½d.

It is intended to start a jam and canning factory as soon as possible. It is well known what an enormous amount of money is lost every year through fruit having to be sent to the tip, or sold to the factories at a ridiculously low price. With its own factory the association has a reasonable expectation of ensuring a fair return on fruit that has hitherto been sacrificed. Another proposal is to establish cold storage depots, to avoid or minimise the loss occurring under the present system when the market is over-supplied. With the same object in view distributing agents have been appointed in other States to regulate stocks in the local market. Whatever profit is obtained by shipping to another State will be obtained by the association, and not by the speculative merchant. As the holding of stores is limited, and as no dividend is paid on the shares, there is no possibility of speculators eventually getting hold of a large block of shares, and so obtaining the profits. What profits are made are divided among members in proportion to the value of their consignments during the year. A co-operative association, if it is conducted capably and fairly on the lines here outlined, should have every prospect of success, and is worthy of the thoughtful consideration of every grower. The sole reason for its existence is economy in selling and buying, and if it can do better in this respect than the commission agent, then the commission agent will go. He has filled his role in the past, a useful role despite all the hard things which may be said about him, but if a body more useful to the community can be found, then he must give way, and find some more productive means of employing his energies.

YANCO IRRIGATION AREA.

THE QUESTION OF DRAINAGE.

THE POSSIBILITY OF FUTURE TROUBLE.

One of the questions inescapably associated with the Yanco irrigation settlement which is bound to give some trouble, and perhaps have a vitally important effect upon the welfare of the enterprise, is that of drainage. Irrigation is not by any means the simple matter it seems to those who lack knowledge of the subject. It is a science, not a mere question of turning water on or off, just as the condition of the soil seems to suggest; and in almost dead-level country, such as that at Yanco, the probability is that before long this problem of supplying the requisite amount of water as it is needed, without creating abnormal conditions likely to have a prejudicial effect upon the productive capacity of the soil, will impose a considerable tax upon the knowledge, resource, and judgment of the men in charge of this particular branch of the work.

Much, of course, depends upon the foundation work done, and the manner in which the grading of the land to be irrigated is carried out. Even in flat country the levels and the character of the soil vary a great deal within a small area. In one part the soil is more porous than in another, and less likely to become "waterlogged" and sour. This explains why it is that one sees some blocks on Yanco with stagnant water lying on the surface in places, while a very nice tilth is apparent in another portion of the same land, although both localities have evidently received equal quantities of water. Where the soil is gravelly or very friable, or there happens to be anything in the nature of a drift, enormous quantities of water will be readily absorbed without any risk of the field becoming "soggy." Where there are heavy deposits of clay, however, the land may easily be given too much water. On the whole, it would appear that at Yanco the soil is well adapted by nature for irrigation purposes. It is mainly brown and red loam, which contains a considerable percentage of sand.

It is satisfactory to find, by personal interviews, that not a few of the holders of blocks at Yanco are men who have some knowledge and appreciation of the value of drainage on a settlement of this character. Some of them, at least, recognise that drainage is as important as is the question of having water laid on to their farms. The experience of some parts of Victoria and elsewhere teaches that irrigation without a proper system of drainage may mean failure for the farmer who has to depend upon it. One of the common sights of the Goulburn Valley and other irrigated areas in Victoria is a very large percentage of land almost entirely covered with rushes, water-weeds, and useless grasses. This is the natural outcome of water lying too long on the land in one place. Large bare patches of soil are also too frequently seen in the lucerne paddocks, the lucerne being killed right out in some cases, as the plant will not stand for much than a few days in stagnant water without suffering severely, and probably perishing altogether. This sort of development is not only poor economy, but it has a very prejudicial effect upon the appearance of the land, and would probably reduce its value in the eyes of a possible buyer. What has happened in some parts of Victoria might just as easily happen at Yanco unless the fundamental needs of the land in this respect are adequately provided for by a sound system of drainage, and the land of the Murrumbidgee settlement is too valuable, in its reproductive sense, to be rendered ineffective in this manner.

Wherever water lies for any time the land becomes sour, and it would take years of scientific treatment to counteract the ill-effects produced, and make it sweet and adapted to the production of profitable crops. In some cases where farms have no proper provision for drainage natural depressions are turned to account for carrying off surplus water. The water naturally finds its way into these lower levels—thus preventing the higher land from suffering from the effects of excessive moisture. In the plain country of Yanco there is not much opportunity for taking advantage of natural depressions in the surface of the soil, since few exist. In any case it is not desirable that what is, after all, a more or less primitive method should be relied upon. It might appear to the irrigationist that his only loss is that involved in the non-productiveness of the particular patches of soil which are covered by stagnant water. It is scarcely necessary to point out that water rises to its own level in porous land. Consequently, although it may not be visible on the surface, it is to be met with just under the crust of the soil at even a considerable distance from the stagnant water, and what appears to be dry land. The result of this is that the growth of plant life is very seriously retarded, owing to the unduly wet and cold subsoil from which it is obliged to draw its sustenance. Irrigation is a matter that will have to be carefully handled by all beginners, and those who have had but little experience of the work.

It is not only a question of getting water on to the land, but of getting it off again with as little delay as possible. Where water lies too long the natural salts of the soil are destroyed, the land becomes sodden, and in wet weather cannot be worked because it is not infrequently found to be more "puggy" in texture even than brickmakers' clay, while in dry weather it becomes so hard that it turns up in lumps, commonly known (in the phraseology of farmers) as "horseheads." It is consequently impossible to reduce soil in this condition to the friable tilth that is essential to successful culture. Then, again, where no provision is made for draining crops sown in drills, the ends of the land are in the right state for putting in the scarifier, but owing to a wet patch in the centre of the plot the work has to be abandoned for the reason that the soaked parts will not carry a horse. If the work were attempted under these conditions this part of the land would get so "pugged" up that one portion or the other would lose the benefit of the moisture run on to it, as the ends will have become too dry. In these circumstances land should be worked immediately it is fit so as to conserve the moisture and probably avoid the necessity for another application of water from the canals.

Independent of all this there is another difficulty where proper drainage has not been provided for— a difficulty which might be a source of trouble and discontent between settlers later on, and that is the matter of water running from one farm to another, and then continuing its course along the lower-lying areas of adjacent holdings, thus irrigating in and out of season and causing damage and creating a source of widespread annoyance. From this source much litigation, and threatened litigation, has arisen in other irrigation areas before to-day. Cases have been known where a farmer has had his land irrigated (unintentionally, of course) by his neighbour at the very time when it was most inconvenient and likely to do a considerable amount of damage. Some irrigationists are so situated that they may use the barrow-pits (a "barrowpit" is a place from which earth is removed to form the main canal) for draining their holdings; but as a general thing these will be found at the highest point of the farm—and it is not always convenient to run water up-hill with the object of reaching one of these pits.

Already there are some incipient signs of domestic trouble at Yanco from this source. Some farmers are going in for pigs—and some of their neighbours are becoming anxious as to the drift of the drainage from the piggeries. One farmer met at Yanco stated that he purposed throwing up a bank around his block so as to prevent the water getting off his area and on to the land of his neighbour. But this method of locking the water, it may be pointed out, must have the effect of depreciating the productive value of the soil by impoverishing it. In any case why should there be any need for such work as this when the Government intends to make Yanco an up-to-date irrigation settlement? What is required is underground drainage, but this would appear to be too costly. Mr. M'Eachern (who is at the head of this department, and who has had extensive experience as an irrigationist at Mildura) informed the writer that in some parts provision had been made for surface drainage. This may be made successful, but in view of the uniformly level character of the country the undertaking is not an easy one, and the results may be watched with both interest and profit by those who have the welfare of this great enterprise at heart.

FRUITGROWERS' ASSOCIATION.

A meeting of the executive of the Fruitgrowers' Association of New South Wales was held at Parramatta on Saturday. Mr. John Neil presided.

A communication was received from Mr. W. E. West, secretary of the Orange District Fruitgrowers' Association, notifying affiliation with the New South Wales Association.

Mr. J. G. Turner, Chief Horticultural Officer, Department of Agriculture, Melbourne, wrote stating that officers of the Department recognised that the growers of New South Wales were actively dealing with pests, and he had had occasion to make reference to same in a report furnished to the Minister for Agriculture, which was published at the beginning of July. The experience of inspectors there had been that consignments direct from growers had been quite up to the standard of past seasons, but the same could not be said, unfortunately, of lots received from some of the agents.

The annual conference of delegates from the various branches of the association followed the meeting of the executive.

Mr. Neil said that, as a result of the work of these conferences, they had been enabled to obtain better conditions for the industry than had prevailed before. This being the case, one would think it would have been an incentive to growers to assist in the attempt to advance the interests of the industry, but he regretted the lack of interest shown by the bulk of the growers in what vitally concerned them.

The annual report, submitted by the secretary (Mr. E. F. Fripp), referring to the passing by Parliament of the Fruit Cases Act of 1912, fixing a fruit case standard for New South Wales, pointed out that similar legislation should be introduced in each State, thus making a uniform case throughout the Commonwealth. At the request of the association, the Government postponed the enforcement of the provisions of the Act until January next, so as to give growers reasonable time to work off their stocks of old cases, and to make provision for the altered conditions. The sizes of cases adopted are the sizes recommended by the Australasian conference of fruitgrowers. These are not embodied in the Act itself, but are fixed by regulations, which have already been gazetted. Satisfaction was expressed with the Shoobridge system of curing lemons, which had been tested. The experiments showed that lemons could be effectively and profitably treated by this process, the fruit when cured being fully equal to the best imported lemons. The adoption of the report was carried.

Messrs. Enoch Ashley, chairman of the Fruitgrowers' Co-operative Society of Australasia, and O. C. Barberie, director, addressed the conference on the advantages of co-operation.

Mr. Campbell (Galston) moved,—"That the association approve of the branches approaching the municipal and shire councils with a view to having the blackberry bush declared a noxious weed, as it is becoming a menace to orchardists." Carried.

Mr. F. A. Nicolson (Glenorie) moved,—"That the Government be asked to appoint inspectors to take samples of fertilisers wherever manufactured or offered for sale or in transit, with a view of securing the quality guaranteed in the analysis," which was carried.

Mr. C. W. Roughley (Middle Dural) moved,—"That the Federal Government be again approached with a view to securing a higher duty upon imported lemons, and all green fruits."

At the suggestion of Senator Rae, the motion was added to as follows:—"With discrimination to those countries which grant preferential treatment to Australian fruits." In its amended form, the motion was adopted.

On the motion of Senator Rae, seconded by Mr. Campbell, it was decided,—"That the Government be asked to make experiments with a small lemon-curing pl t."

Senator Rae moved,—"That the Department of Agriculture be asked to import wood of desirable varieties, and have same worked in State nurseries, and supplied to fruitgrowers in limited quantities at a reasonable price." Carried.

"CLIPPING THE TEST."

"Wireless" writes:—"I regret, owing, not to want of courage, but to diplomacy, I must face Mr. Kenny under my nom-de-plume once more. No doubt, some director or manager, when they read their own composition, will furnish him with my identity. I have no desire to make their names public at this juncture. I must assure Mr. Kenny I am not a socialist, not even a Labour man, nor an autocrat (like some directors and managers would perhaps like to be)—just a plain old man, easier to lead than drive. Now to business: I have not asked the Government to take over factories or appoint the management, but just simply appoint an inspector to check the work of those elected by shareholders. For instance, I am under the impression that the manager is clipping my tests and weights. I can call the inspector in to check same, and if the manager is at fault have him fined, and test clipping would soon be a thing of the past.

Now my reason: In the latter part of 1911, when the rural workers' claim was the scare, the managements of factories began stopping certain amounts from suppliers' cheques. I objected on principle. I often make from 10s to 11s a day for weeks together, and would I be sane to provide means to fight my own cause? The result was in three months I had over £4 clipped from my cream by test, and I cannot say how much by weight. At next meeting I complained, and for 11 months the factory's test and mine were as nearly as possible the same.

During last summer the management decided to send milk to Sydney, and certain expenditure was necessary, and on several occasions the factory test differed from mine to the extent of 15 per cent. in one instance. As there had been no communication between myself and the manager, doubtless he believed I had given up testing. I naturally complained, and I append the reply I received, written by the manager and signed by the chairman:—'We strongly resent your remarks about 'pilfering cream,' and if you are prepared to make a direct charge against the directors or the manager we are prepared to meet you further, and give you the opportunity of substantiating your charge at a place constituted for hearing and dealing with such matters.'

Since then my test and the factory differ on an average of 2 per cent., and my cans that used to weigh from 100lb to 103lb seldom reach the 100lb. So much for Mr. Kenny's suggestion. Mr. Percy E. Clement's letter is sound and suggestion good, but needs in addition result of test sent back in each empty can, as some private factories do now.

"Cayenne" writes.—Some time ago you published an article under this heading which was read with interest by many dairy farmers, and the June pay locally furnishes a good illustration of this practice. During June the price of butter varied from 94/ to 128/ per cwt. According to the figures supplied by the factories, the manufacturing charges amount to about 1½d per lb. The lowest pay for June that I have seen was that of a factory that published the amount of butter paid for, and the amount of butter manufactured. It paid suppliers 10¾d per lb. The highest pay was made by another factory, viz., 12¾d per lb. To pay 12½d per lb it would be necessary for the whole output to average 128/4 per cwt; but as butter only sold as high as 128/, and as low as 94/, how was it done? I maintain it is the supplier from a distance who has to stand the loss.

High prices no doubt are very acceptable to the directors and suppliers living close, and keeping in touch with the management, but they don't compensate a distant supplier, who has his test clipped. Many suppliers have to send their cream first by coach and then by rail to the factory. A supplier living close can at once have any complaints or mistakes investigated, but a distant supplier has to write or wait a visit to town.

BLACK OATS.

EXPERIMENTS AT COWRA.

COWRA.—One of the objects aimed at in tilling and cropping a certain area of land on the Cowra Experiment Farm for seven years in succession was to demonstrate that continuous cropping, as a rule, produces dirty land, carrying more or less black oats and saucy jack. Even where the cultivation methods were of the best fresh evidence is furnished that to rid land of oats one of the best methods is a long fallow, extending from the winter of one year to the autumn of the next. The system is to cultivate shallow at first, and allow any oats on the surface to germinate, then plough the greatest depth it is decided to cultivate, and let each subsequent cultivation be more shallow. Provided there is an average rainfall. This practice will eliminate, or at least materially reduce, the black oat pest in most localities. Only pure seed should be used, and in feeding the farm stock nothing but oat-free fodder.

AUSTRALASIAN PRODUCE ABROAD.

LONDON, July 4.

Hull has recently made a successful bid for Australian produce, and the competition of outports has now become of such importance that Mr. Estill, commercial superintendent of the port of London, is going out shortly to Australia and New Zealand to acquaint shippers in the oversea Dominions with the facilities which the port of London already affords for the rapid and economical handling of Australasian produce.

The Commonwealth and the States of Australia had fine displays in the Overseas section at the Royal Agricultural Show, at Bristol, this week.

CHEESE.

The cheese market is strong, and New Zealand white is making 65/ per cwt., coloured being 63/ to 64/. Canadian white, new season, is making 61/ to 63/, and coloured 61/ to 62/.

FRUIT.

The Australian fruit season has now closed, though there are a few late sales at good rates. Some Newtowns, ex Persic, brought as high as 18/ to 23/; Sturmer pippins were at 12/ to 14/; Five Crowns generally at a shade less; South Australian Jonathans sold up to 15/; Rome Beauty brought 11/; fair average apples 9/, with a very steady demand; New York pippins 11/ to 13/; Crow's Eggs, 10/ to 11/6; Scarlet Pearmains, 10/6 to 12/. The pears which have come over this season have been to a considerable extent overripe, and have suffered in consequence.

RAISINS.

At Bristol there has been ready acceptance of new Australian raisins, which are selling on the basis of 42/ to 45/, the next shipment of this fruit not being due to dock until the middle of July. By that same steamship there are advices also of sultanas and currants, these latter making a first appearance on the Bristol market. In London Australian raisins are going from 40/ to 45/, and Australian sultanas are quoted 35/ to 38/, with good sales.

TALLOW AND LEATHER.

Last week the tallow market was very quiet. Prices were rather easier for near parcels afloat, and /3 lower for shipment. At auction, of 161 tons of better coloured tallow and 297 tons of inferior kinds offered, 72 tons of the former and 118 tons of the latter were sold at previous rates to /6 decline. Australian mutton is, fine 38/, good to fair 37/ to 36/, dull to dark 35/6 to 31/6, hard 37/. Australian beef is, fine 37/, good to fair 35/6 to 34/; dull to dark, 33/6 to 32/; sweet, 37/6.

There has been practically no Australian leather offered at public sales of late, but parcels continue to arrive, and are disposed of to private buyers at regular rates. Australasian shippers anticipate a revival of leather exports.

COPRA.

Copra is now reservedly offered and firm. South Sea Islands June-Jul., London Hamburg opened this week at £29/5/, but is now down 5/.

CHILLING HIDES.

Our London correspondent states that attention is being paid to the possibilities in the process of chilling hides. It is pointed out the large chilled meat establishments of America undoubtedly profit by the fact that they are in a position to keep their raw hides in low temperatures, which have a partially sterilising effect, and so prevent the loss of hide substance before salting them. Freezing is, of course, out of the question, as the fibres would swell unduly, but a moderately low temperature may be found very beneficial.

PREMIER'S FIGURES.

RAILWAYS AND LAND.

CRITICISED BY MR. WADE.

The leader of the Opposition made the following statement last night with regard to Mr. Holman's figures given in the speech on the no-confidence motion:—

"First, Mr. Holman has entirely failed to answer the position I set up, that whatever may be the amount the M'Gowen Government spent on new railways, the results show that the Wade Government completed 300 miles of railway in their time, while the Labour-Socialists cannot claim more than 190 miles. Mr. Holman disposes of this, and asks the country to look at the miles of railways authorised. This, obviously, is not the test. What the public wants are results and achievements. I have prepared a table dealing with the lines authorised by the M'Gowen Government, the authorised cost, and the amount expended during the last two years and nine months. The details are as follow:—

RAILWAYS COMMENCED BY THE M'GOWEN GOVERNMENT.

	Miles.	Authorised Cost.	Actual Expenditure to June 30, 1913.
Wagga to Tumbarumba	76	£387,271	£113,079
Muswellbrook to Merriwa	51	233,530	45,946
Forbes to Stockinbingal	85½	293,929	61,490
Parkes to Peak Hill	31	113,115	39,000
Dunedoo to Coonabarabran	77	304,235	105,967
Tullimore to Tottenham	33	124,385	5,710
Barellan to Mirrool	22	96,000	5,240
Glenreagh to Dorrigo	42	343,146	9,898
Rookwood to Bankstown	3	14,500	36,234
Galong to Burrowa	18	81,675	35,899
Finley to Tocumwal	11½	46,868	24,515
Wyalong to Cudgellico	70½	231,943	2,410
Condobolin to Broken Hill	375	1,567,143	2,801
Moree to Mungindi	77	289,645	214,530
Totals	990¼	£3,927,383	£702,709

"It is worth while mentioning, in spite of the protestation of Mr. Griffith, that information with regard to expenditure is always afforded members. I wrote to him asking for details of the amounts spent on railways, and 10 days have elapsed since the request was made, but he pursues the old policy of 'hush it up,' and so far he has omitted to supply the information. I was lucky enough to obtain it from another reliable source. This shows that although they boast of authorising nearly 1000 miles of railways, a great many of these have not been touched at all, and although £702,000 had been spent on construction, not one single mile of new railway had been opened for traffic. Does not this suggest muddling of the worst kind, and a waste of the taxpayers' money?

"In addition to this, they have spent considerably more than £1,000,000 on the North Coast railway, with practically no result; only something like 70 miles of railway have been opened to which they can claim even a share of the credit.

LAND SETTLEMENT.

"With regard to land, Mr. Holman has always tickled the ears of the public with the assertion that they have found 10 million acres of Crown lands which previous Governments had entirely lost sight of. He now comes forward with the assertion that the statement was never made, and that the land to be made available was improvement leases or reserves. A reference to the records upsets this theory completely.

"Mr. Nielsen, who was the Government's first Lands Minister, made his policy speech early in 1911. He then specified the land available as follows:—Improvement leases, eight million acres; reserves, about three millions available at once on revocation; Crown lands in scattered blocks, 10 million acres. Subsequently his successor, Mr. Beeby, at Millthorpe, spoke also of 10 million acres in scattered blocks. On October 4, 1911, in answer to a specific question, the Minister for Lands replied as follows:—

"There are 3,000,000 acres in reserves, which will be made available as the reports of the Revision Board come to hand; 9,000,000 acres are in improvement leases. Action is being taken in regard to them. Ten million acres in scattered blocks is the area now open for selection in the ordinary way."

History shows that the ten million acres have now vanished into thin air. Mr. Holman now comes forward with the brand new theory of improvement leases and wheat lands at Wyalong, and the Pilliga Scrub. Everybody knows that improvement leases cannot be made available for productive use until, first of all, they have been sufficiently improved; secondly, until they have been resumed from the lessees; and, thirdly, until they have been given railway communication. The last condition must be applied with regard to the whole of this country. It may be years before a single acre is brought within the productive reach of the settler.

"Another ungenerous statement Mr. Holman makes is as follows:—'We shall make available three million acres of reserves, which the Wade Government were letting at nominal rentals to their friends, the squatters, and were lying idle and useful from the point of view of the purposes for which the land was set aside.' The facts are that the M'Gowen Government have made available 2,000,000 acres of these reserves. The Wade Government made available, in their time, no less than 5,000,000 acres. Yet the Premier does not think it beneath his dignity to stoop to statements that are untrue and absolutely misleading.

He further boasted in 1911 that by means of this vigorous land policy he can deal with 10,000 additional settlers within the next three years, that is, without estimating the possibility of another army of settlers that may be settled upon the irrigation area at Barren Jack.

"Now, what is the result of all this empty boasting? The number of new settlers occupying Crown lands, settlement purchases, and areas at Yanco, number for the last two and a half years, only 4925, or an average of 1970 per annum. Our figures for three years were a total of 6744, or an average of 2248 per annum.

"The last unjustifiable statement is to the effect that, whereas the Wade Government only increased the area of land let for occupation by 100,000 acres per annum, or 600,000 in six years, they, by their policy, without spending £2,500,000, have increased the area of land available by upwards of a million acres each year. Why could not Mr. Holman tell the whole truth, without suppressing material facts. The records of the department show that the lands we made available, including Crown lands and settlement purchases for our three years of office, totalled 4,090,000 acres in round figures, or an average, per annum made available and taken up of 1,363,621 acres. The Labor-Socialist record for 2½ years is a total area taken up of 2,570,000 acres, or an average of 1,028,000 acres per annum.

"Had I made such inaccurate statements, there might have been some excuse, as I have not the same ready access to departmental documents as the Premier, but in view of those statements the public will ask why is it the whole of facts are not made available."

BILLIARDIST'S EARNINGS.

A CLAIM DISMISSED.

MELBOURNE, Tuesday.

In the Insolvency Court to-day Judge Moule dealt with a motion by the trustee in the insolvent estate of Joseph George Gray, the well-known billiardist.

The motion asked for a declaration that the agreement alleged to have been entered into between insolvent and his father, as set out in the depositions, was never entered into. Alternatively, if such agreement were entered into, that it was fraudulent, and was merely a device for delaying or embarrassing the proceedings of his creditors. If the agreement were held not to be fraudulent, then that insolvent be ordered to pay to the trustee the sum of £3 a week paid or to be paid to him by his father, under the agreement, or such other sums as the Court might deem just or reasonable.

Judge Moule said there was no evidence that the agreement between the father and the son was of fraudulent nature, and, therefore, that part of the motion failed. In regard to the rest, he was of opinion that he had no power to make an order under which the motion had been moved attaching property until that property came into existence. The motion would be dismissed without costs.

INTERSTATE COMMISSION.

To-day we are able to announce the personnel of the Interstate Commission. Mr. A. B. Piddington is to be chairman, and his colleagues are Mr. George Swinburne, M.L.A., of Victoria, and Mr. Nicholas Lockyer, who has been for some time Comptroller of Customs for the Commonwealth. Before dealing with these appointments it may be well to indicate briefly the duties and responsibilities which must now be fulfilled. The gentlemen mentioned are to fill posts which are as important in their way as those of the High Court itself. Indeed, in many respects the members of the Interstate Commission must show themselves more capable than the Judges in question. They must not only be able and dispassionate judges in law and equity, but they must be business men of the highest type. Their range of authority and investigation will cover practically the whole industrial and commercial activity of the Commonwealth, and they must be prepared to lay foundations in Australia for an edifice, and to construct machinery, which will serve the purpose of the elaborate body now at work in the United States. This means that not only must the members of the Interstate Commission understand experimentally the conditions under which our traffic, commerce, and industry are carried on in a sparsely-settled continent, but they must have studied the difficulties in the development of the American Commission, whose labours have been Herculean, and whose precedents and history are enough for many years' study. Essentially, however, the Australian Commission, like the American, must have a business basis. Business in the broadest sense is to be its function. Yet its legal powers have been made astonishingly wide. It can command evidence as a Supreme Court may do, and no appeal is to lie from its punishments and decisions. It may be made a gigantic engine of oppression, or in the hands of strong, sympathetic, and well-informed men, it can make history in the highest and best sense of the term. We cannot forget in this connection that the Act which has now rendered it possible for a Liberal Government in the Commonwealth to appoint an Interstate Commission, was passed by the Labour party with large majorities in both Houses of Parliament. Hence the greater need for a personnel so far above the suspicion of party bias, that powers extravagantly wide shall not be abused. We doubt whether any British community has ventured to risk so much in the way of authority and jurisdiction as will now lie in the hands of Messrs. Piddington, Swinburne, and Lockyer; and the responsibility of appointing them must be held to be as great in its way as that which they themselves are now called upon to sustain. As they succeed so will the present Federal Government reap laurels, but as they fail, in the same way will Ministers be judged.

Now, what of the personnel of the Interstate Commission as now announced? Does it really cover the needs of a very exacting body, and can it fairly be said that the Government has done its best? The best way of replying to these questions is to point to the Government's range of choice and to the limitations imposed in the way of salary. Moreover, the Prime Minister could not in justice use the Interstate Commission to strengthen the party or to give sops to followers for faithful service. Many of the men most desirable as outside of politics and specially qualified by reason of business experience, could not be tempted by any offer the Government might make, simply because they are fully occupied at scales of remuneration far beyond the salaries made available by Parliament. This at once limited the range of choice. It did not apply so much to the law, perhaps, and yet we can quite believe that men like Mr. Irvine and Mr. Glynn would not give up their present work for the chairmanship of the Interstate Commission. No reflection is intended upon Mr. Piddington's appointment by such a reminder. It only shows how seriously the Government has been handicapped, and how much it deserves sympathy in its search for the most suitable men to fill positions so important. Of Mr. Piddington it may be said that to choose him as chairman has made it impossible for the Labour party to object, since he has been considered worthy of appointment as a Judge of the High Court. Resigning that honour, however, has not prejudiced his range of work, for since then he has been making exhaustive inquiry into the operation of our own Industrial Arbitration Act. He has all the necessary legal qualifications for a seat on the Interstate Commission, and what he may lack in business knowledge will be well supplied by Mr. Swinburne. Next to Mr. Watt, in Victoria, Mr. Swinburne is credited with more business ability and political grip than any other member of the Liberal party. Then what neither Mr. Piddington nor Mr. Swinburne can give will be found in Mr. Lockyer, whose work in this State before Federation, whose experience under Dr. Wollaston after union, and whose control of the Customs Department since the latter gentleman disappeared from official life, have proved his calibre and established his capacity for responsibility and hard work. Considering, therefore, the difficulties with which the Government has been surrounded, it is only fair to congratulate it on its first appointments since coming to office—appointments which might so easily have been weak. It would have been fatal to give these important positions to nonentities or defeated politicians, but it would have been infinitely worse to make them the sport of party. The main thing now is that, at any rate, a good start has been made. It was necessary that the two principal States should have their chance, but not to exclude able men from other States. As it happens, New South Wales and Victoria have provided men whose appointment cannot well be challenged, and in Messrs. Piddington, Swinburne, and Lockyer the Commonwealth as a whole will find capable, honest, and hard-working administrators in a commission whose range will be wide, and whose work should prove singularly fruitful.

THE BERMUDAS.

The little group of islands and coral reefs "set in the silver sea" of the North Atlantic Ocean which are called by the name of the Spaniard Bermudes, who first sighted them nearly four hundred years ago, have acquired a world-wide publicity which it may be assumed the inhabitants never anticipated. The American press, which lives on sensations, real or manufactured, has, we presume, now discovered that the Bermudas have for a considerable period provided the British Navy with a naval station and a dockyard. The suggestion that the Admiralty was about to embark on some entirely new enterprise which would seriously affect the strategic position of the Atlantic Ocean and the two Americas was, therefore, absurd. What has happened is that the Admiralty now finds itself in a position, with the relief of the urgent pressure in Europe, to revert to the policy of maintaining an adequate naval force in close proximity to America. The further use of the Bermudas naval station and the stationing of four cruisers and other ships in the West Indies are, however, hailed as an infraction of the Monroe Doctrine, and a menace to the United States. We cannot help feeling that those who are responsible for this agitation have either completely lost their heads, or have spread false reports with some ulterior object. The Bermudas happen to be a British possession. If the Monroe or any other doctrine implies that the British Empire is not at liberty to make use of its own possessions and station its ships in any part of the seven seas according as it thinks fit, the sooner it is thrown on the scrap heap the better, if cordial international relations are to be preserved between the United Kingdom and the United States.

As a matter of fact, however, the utmost straining of the Monroe Doctrine could not place upon it such a monstrous interpretation. When the question of the Panama Canal tolls was first under discussion it was suggested that Americans had forgotten the history of the question, or they would not so readily have been willing to repudiate obligations solemnly granted by treaty. A section of American opinion appears in the same way to have failed to appreciate the origin of the Monroe Doctrine and its application in recent times. The principle which it embodies was assented to by Great Britain ninety years ago in order to prevent the Holy Alliance from carrying out its threatened attack on South America. Its interpretation by Mr. Roosevelt, Mr. Whitelaw Reid, and others in recent years has made it clear that the wider and more aggressive outlook which has been given to the doctrine in some quarters by no means represents the views of more responsible American statesmen. Quite apart from these questions, however, we welcome the announcement that the Admiralty is making preparations to safeguard Imperial interests more adequately in the Atlantic. The opening of the Panama Canal, and the suggestion of intervention by Germany in the affairs of more than one South American Republic, call for defensive action, not from the United States alone. But if there were no other justification for the Imperial Government's action, it would be found in the projected formation by the German Government of a special cruiser squadron with the view of protecting German interests outside Europe. If Germany finds it desirable to take such a step, how much more necessary must it not be for the British Empire, with territorial possessions in every ocean, and a commerce and mercantile marine still unrivalled throughout the world? We welcome this action as an earnest of the wider outlook in Imperial defence matters which we believe is being increasingly taken by the statesmen of the Empire, and we hope may before long find expression in some settled co-ordinated policy of naval defence of the Pacific, which is still one of the most insistent and urgent problems which the Empire has to face.

MEXICO AND JAPAN.

It is not probable that many Australians have followed closely the recent affairs in Mexico. But these affairs have a real interest for this country, and they illustrate the almost insuperable difficulties which any great Power will find in modern times in trying with all the sincerity in the world to avoid interfering with matters outside its borders. Ever since the revolution which deposed President Diaz, Mexico has been involved in risings and counter-risings so interminable and so irritating to the good citizens of America who have interests within those borders that some of these have seriously proposed that the neutrality laws should be suspended, and the Mexicans, supplied impartially with rifles from the United States, should be left to exterminate themselves. The banks in Mexico are said to be faced with ruin. An American official was recently arrested and threatened with murder. The English and American flags have been torn to bits by the crowd. And the Mexican Cabinet has now resigned. Yet up to the present President Woodrow Wilson has declined to intervene. The question is whether he will be able to help himself. The policy which he says he is formulating has not yet been disclosed. But there is one factor which he will have to consider in framing that policy, which is of the greatest interest to Australians.

The crowd which tore the British and American flags to shreds afterwards hoisted the Japanese flag and marched through the streets cheering for Japan. The next day the arrival of the new Japanese Minister to Mexico was made the occasion of an enthusiastic demonstration. President Huerta had issued orders to the police to suppress any further displays of anti-British and anti-American feeling, and he refused to receive the crowd when it marched to his palace during the demonstration of the day before. But if the latest American files are to be trusted the intentions of the Mexican Government with regard to Japan should be followed with great interest. It is definitely stated that the policy of buying arms from Germany has been abandoned by President Huerta, and that an order for 200,000 rifles has been placed by the Mexican Government in Japan. A rumour was afterwards spread in Mexico that these rifles would be found to be old weapons used in the Russian war. But the Government had precluded the possibility of this by sending three Mexican officers to Japan to supervise the manufacture. Another Mexican envoy has now been sent to Japan in the shape of General Felix Diaz, the son of President Diaz. His mission is said to be to request that President Huerta—whom Dr. Woodrow Wilson has refused to recognise as President of Mexico—should be recognised by Japan. Why recognition by Japan, on the other side of the Pacific, should be deemed by President Huerta a matter of first rate importance to the Mexican Government, the world at large is left to guess as best it may. The world has noticed that President Huerta's declaration that he will not tolerate outside interference in Mexico comes about the same time as the note from Japan intimating that she is not satisfied with the present position of the alien land question in California—and the world will probably infer that President Huerta is making a bold bid for Japanese help before the Panama Canal is opened. Whether Japan will dream of according that help is quite another question. If Japanese finances are in a weak position, those of Mexico are probably far worse—American opinion is that Huerta will have run through all his loan money by October. Huerta represents at best a divided Mexico. There is no reason at present for believing that Japan will listen very seriously to any overtures he makes.

GRAIN IN BULK.

A reform in the manner in which our wheat is handled from harvest to ship's hold is not a very spectacular business, but it is one which will produce more solid economic advantages than many that perhaps loom more largely in the popular vision. Not long ago Mr. Burrell, an expert in the modern methods of handling grain in bulk, visited this State; in due course his report appeared, which, by implication, condemned our present system as wasteful. The Government now proposes to act on his advice and establish elevators at Sydney and elsewhere, while storage accommodation is to be provided at the railway sidings in the wheat belt. The full details of the Government's proposal are not yet available, but certainly it is a step in the right direction. Indeed, this measure may prove to be the most useful of any for which this Parliament has been responsible, and although we have frequently had occasion to differ from Mr. Trefle, he will have deserved well of the community if he carries out this scheme to its logical conclusion. At present the method of dealing with our wheat is radically unsound. It acted well enough when wheat formed only a small part of our produce, but now, when we are adding every year to our area under cultivation, and are beginning to export in large quantities, it is terribly antiquated. Before ever a bag of wheat is put on board a vessel it passes through many vicissitudes, and it engages many unnecessary hands. For much of the time it lies in stacks, either on the field or at a station or on a wharf, and all the while it is at the mercy of pests and weather. If the wheat farmer had reckoned up what the intermediate processes of bagging and shifting and transhipment and wastage cost him, he would have agitated for a system of elevators more vigorously than he has hitherto done.

Without being unduly technical, it may be said that the elevator system reduces the manual processes to a minimum, and the mechanical processes to a maximum. Grain is handled in bulk throughout, from the farm to the station, from the station to the wharf, and from the wharf to the ship's hold. From an economic point of view the saving is immense. Bags of wheat do not rot because of a shortage of trucks, the elevator can store grain till transport is available. Profits are not eaten up by the continual necessity of paying for manual labour in handling the grain, for the elevator provides for this either by gravitation or by mechanical appliances. Every other country which exports wheat to any extent has adopted the elevator. Canada, the United States, the Argentine, even Russia and Roumania would regard our methods of handling the wheat traffic with a very superior eye. In Australia, however, our history as a wheat-growing country has been a short one, and we have scarcely had time to keep pace with its development. Now that is to be altered, and though there may be some objections to Mr. Trefle's scheme they weigh little when compared with the advantages to be gained by it. It may be expensive, but it is economically an admirable investment for New South Wales, provided that it is properly done. It is no good building elevators in Sydney and Newcastle unless they are supplemented by an adequate system of elevators in the wheat-producing centres. After all, the export end is only the last link in the chain, and if any purpose is to be served the chain must be strong all through. We hope that the "necessary storage accommodation" at railway sidings mentioned by the Minister will include elevators at wheat-producing centres.

The "Sydney Mail."—The "Mail" this week gives prominence to the game of baseball, which, it declares, will before long challenge cricket as a summer pastime in Australia, where at present it is played in the winter months. The growth of the game is interestingly sketched, and the prospects of the current season are discussed. A second article describes the game in detail, and explains clearly how it is played. Another sporting feature of value is "Milroy's" list of winning sires in Australia for the season ended on July 31. Ayr Laddie, by Ayrshire, heads the list with a total of £25,015, gained by 51 winners of 124 races. Maltster comes next with £22,973 (80 representatives in 173 races), and Positano third with £18,144. No fewer than 380 sires are represented. Some interesting pictures and particulars are published respecting the citrus industry in the Gosford district. Mr. Lister-Lister's prize picture of Canberra is reproduced with a key, which describes the various points of interest. The first of a series of articles on the Malay Peninsula is published, and there are many other attractive features, including an illustrated article on the Girl Aids movement, flood scenes at Bangalow, on the North Coast, "Outdoor Australia," and bright drama, music, and library pages. In the land section is a special article dealing with paw-paw cultivation in New South Wales, some parts of which, according to the writer, have produced finer fruit than is even raised in Queensland.

A Big Claim.—Mr. W. J. Denny, ex-Labour Attorney-General of Adelaide, is, we are informed, staying in Sydney for the purpose of prosecuting the claims of Messrs. Smith, Timms and Co., contractors, in connection with the North Coast railway. A writ was served upon the Minister for Works last week, claiming £90,000 damages.

A Living Wage.—Mr. Justice Heydon said yesterday that the determination of the cost of living and what constituted a fair living wage were problems which had proved vexatious to wages boards. He had, therefore, decided to invite employers and employees generally to assist the Court in arriving at a solution of the problems. "On Thursday evening I will state my views on these matters," he said, "before the employers and employees' representatives, in order that both sides of the industrial world may be able to consider the questions and see if something cannot be done to elucidate the problems. It may occupy some time and cost a good deal of money, but I think that, in view of the immense amount of time expended by wages boards in continual inquiries into the cost of living, this matter is of the utmost importance to the whole community."

Street Speakers.—Complaint was made by Alderman Meagher at yesterday's meeting of the health committee of the City Council of unfair discrimination in the administration of the bylaws with respect to obstructions to traffic caused by those addressing open-air meetings. Alderman Meagher said that for years certain places in the city had been used by street speakers, and lately summonses had been issued against some of them on the grounds that they had caused a nuisance. It was somewhat strange that the proceedings were taken against only one section—the socialists. No harm was done to anybody, provided that the meetings were conducted in an orderly fashion. In Bathurst, Liverpool, and Goulburn streets the traffic was a negligible quantity at nights. The Salvation Army was not interfered with, and why should the socialists be singled out? He suggested that the matter be referred to a conference, consisting of the Superintendent of Traffic, the chairman of the works committee (Alderman A. M'Elhone), the chairman of the health and bylaws committee (Alderman Evan Jones), and himself. It was decided to adopt the suggestion.

Better Off.—"Mr. Wade in his speech at Annandale on Monday," said the Premier (Mr. Holman) last night, "spoke of the two and a half years we have been in power, and asked who was better off as the result. Here Mr. Wade was on strong ground. Nobody could ask the same question about his term of office, for then several people were distinctly better off. In the first place, Mr. Hoskins was better off. He had a contract to sell the Government nearly 200,000 tons of steel rails at, roughly, £2 a ton more than they were worth. In the next place, a number of Mr. Wade's pastoralist friends, from whom he had bought estates at fancy prices, were better off. A number of his other pastoralist friends, whom he had left in undisturbed possession of millions of acres of settlement lands at improvement lease rates, were better off. A third lot of pastoralist friends of the Liberal Ministry, who were continuing to enjoy their annual leases of valuable reserve lands in undisturbed contentment, were better off. The brick ring of Sydney, who had the privilege of counting the Government as their customer, were better off. There were several other gentlemen whose obligations to the Liberal Government are more interesting than creditable who were better off as well, but there is no necessity to enumerate them. The list I have given is sufficient as a commencement. Unquestionably Mr. Wade's regime was one of great and vigorous beneficence. The only fault that we have to find is that the benefits were distributed over too narrow a circle."

City Health Officer.—The City Health Officer is paid and controlled by the Board of Health, and not, as would be supposed, by the City Council, which, as a matter of fact, has no voice at all in his appointment. The latter body is desirous of having a health officer of its own, who would give the whole of his time to the duties of the position, and be entirely under the Council's control. The acting city solicitor reported that the council could, if it chose, appoint a duly qualified medical practitioner as city health officer, pay his salary from the city fund, the officer to be wholly responsible to the council for the performance of the duties assigned to him. The appointment of this officer, however, would not in any way curtail the power given to the Board of Health to appoint a medical officer of health, also for the city of Sydney. It was decided to recommend to the council that the present arrangement with the Board of Health be terminated, and that the council appoint a medical officer of its own.

The Labour Movement.—"I don't want you to mix up the words 'Labour movement' with the Labour party," said the Rev. G. E. Curtis, in introducing his lecture entitled "Development of the Labour Movement," in the Chapter-house last night. "The Labour movement started generations before the Labour party existed," he continued. It began, he said, in the early part of the nineteenth century. Labour, although it had been many times exploited, had refused to yield to the oppression. Away back in 1350 legislation was enacted dealing with the regulation of wages. In 1381 organised labour revolted against the power wielded over it. In the 16th century those found begging a third time were hanged. "Those are the good old days some people refer to," observed Mr. Curtis. It was not until 1833 that the first really workable Factory Act was passed. The lecturer referred to the founding of the Australian political Labour party, and declared that the Australian wage-earner was better off and freer than any other workman in the world.

Skilled and Unskilled Labour.—"The question at issue," said Mr. R. Finlay, manager of the Vacuum Oil Company, Ltd., yesterday, referring to the dispute with the wharf-labourers, who have ceased work because the company has refused to grant them an increase of threepence an hour in wages, "is whether the men who work on our lighters shall receive for this open air work as high a wage as the men who are discharging a ship. If we have to pay 1s 9d per hour, why should the rate not apply to others than this company that are also operating on the harbour front? To give the public an idea of how absurd the present wage is, here is an extraordinary anomaly—a cooper, who has had to spend years learning his trade, and whose employment with us consists in reconditioning and tightening up the hoops of barrels, receives 1s 4½d per hour, while the unskilled labourer, with no previous experience, has to be paid 1s 6d per hour for rolling barrels along the wharf to the tradesman, and is now asking 1s 9d. Where is the justice of it?"

"Act of Courage."—"It is not always the good little boys and girls that are the bravest," said the Minister for Education (Mr. Carmichael) yesterday, "for occasionally in our reformatory schools we have evidences, not only for a desire for reform, but instances where boys and girls whose previous conduct has necessitated some degree of punishment or detention give striking proof of a high degree of courage. In the weekly report of the superintendent of the Girls' Industrial School at Parramatta there is just such an instance. The superintendent writes:—'A quiet little act of courage on the part of one of our girls requires to be brought under your official notice. Some time ago a sister of the girl referred to was very badly and extensively burnt at her home owing to her clothes catching alight from a copper fire. She has been for many weeks past in a hospital, and as the skin refused to grow over the parts affected by her accident, the medical officer in attendance found it would be necessary to graft skin on to her from someone else. The little girl I refer to promptly volunteered, although she was made to clearly understand the painful nature of the operation which she had to undergo. The skin for the purpose had to be removed without the use of an anesthetic, and it required some nerve and cool courage to face it. The operation gave her a severe shock, and she has since required special care, but has now practically recovered from its effects.'"

Opium Dens.—"I think if the Rev. S. D. Yarrington has any information in his possession with regard to opium dens in Sydney, he should give it to the police." This was what the Associate Chief Secretary, Mr. Flowers, M.L.C., said yesterday, in reply to Mr. Yarrington's address at the Y.M.C.A. Hall. "This is the attitude I have taken up all along. If he knows the law is being broken he should either hold his peace or acquaint the proper authorities. I have no wish to hinder Mr. Yarrington in his work, or to hurt the mission, which may be doing very good work; but as for an apology, I do not know that I owe him one. I do not want unduly to advertise Mr. Yarrington. He still persists in talking about these things, but I think the police are likely to do better service in ridding the city of any opium dens than Mr. Yarrington is. If he has knowledge of any, he certainly should acquaint the police."

Fear of Vaccination.—Two women who attended the offices of the Department of Public Health yesterday showed an extraordinary fear of vaccination. They accompanied a woman who, they had reason to believe, was suffering from smallpox. Dr. Paton, after a hasty glance at the woman, found that she had contracted the disease. "You two ladies will have to be vaccinated," he said, referring to the women who had accompanied the woman. But they thought otherwise evidently, for as soon as his back was turned they vanished through the front door.

NEW METHODS.

PROGRESS OF EDUCATION IN AMERICA.

THE CORRESPONDENCE SYSTEM.

WORK AT WISCONSIN.

It is little more than a decade ago that to greater academic sacrilege was known than a violation of university tradition, and the enormity of the offence was proportionate with the boldness with which the proposed innovation was suggested. Even America, which was always regarded as ultra-democratic in education, many of the principal seats of learning followed more or less slavishly the example and methods of the older English universities.

A few years has seen all this change, and a broader spirit has entered into the purpose of the University. Engineering or agricultural students are no longer extended a cold tolerance by the professional board, and looked upon askance by the followers of arts and medicine, but, in common with many other equally progressive developments, have become a unit in the great scheme of intellectual endeavour.

The existence of a general recognition of the liberal interpretation of the functions of a university would seem to be the keynote of Professor Irvine's experiences during his recent tour abroad, when he visited many of the chief seats of higher education. He found that the State University of Wisconsin had been one of the most daring in this respect, having completely broken away from the traditions of the past, not in one, but in a dozen ways. Among its many functions it had added one that shook the very foundations of university precedent, the carrying of knowledge, and its stimulus of thought to the people; no matter where they were, whether old or young, whether matriculated or not. The University established correspondent courses, sent out its lecturers far and wide, issued bulletins on all sorts of subjects, and in the large centres of the State regular college classes, which all might attend, were started.

The innovation met with failure. Enthusiasm soon flagged. Professors engaged in the work in a sceptical, half-hearted way. They did their best to interest and amuse their popular audiences, but they had no serious aim. At Wisconsin, as elsewhere, the extension movement became moribund. But in 1907 the University decided to attack the problem in a new way. It reviewed the situation, method, aims, and ascertained the sources of failure. It reorganised its extension department, by placing an energetic dean in charge of it, and by altering the entire system of work. It determined to draft its teaching to the common interests of the people. Detractors sneered at the programme of intentions, and viewed the movement as a degradation of the true functions of a University. The correspondence department was started, and in the first year there were 32 students. It proved popular, and four years later the enrolment had increased to over 4000. It has now 63 branches in various parts of the country, and a staff of 100 professors and instructors directly engaged in the work. About 250 courses of study are offered, representing every department of the University. Most of the subjects are "vocational," but there are classes for English literature history, Latin, Greek, French, German, and Italian; and, strangely enough, Higher Mathematics is one of the most popular courses. For business men there are courses in banking, corporations, insurance, monopolies, political economy; for manufacturers and technicians there are classes in power transmission, gas engines, mechanical engineering, electricity, and other similar subjects. Wherever groups of students are to be found with a definite purpose, the University takes them under its wing, and organises and superintends their studies, no matter how elementary the work may be.

It is significant that one-third of the students enrolled in 1911 were doing work of a University grade, and over 200 of them had secured "University credits," and their work would be counted towards a degree. The University, after much hesitation, has decided to permit the correspondent student to do one-half of his work in absentia. The success of the movement has been assured beyond all question, and the courses of all branches of study are growing very rapidly in popularity.

It was early found that the correspondence classes needed the stimulus of personal contact with the teacher. The University then sent out members of its regular staff to meet groups of students, and give them personal instruction and guidance. This plan did not work out well. The central staff had already too much to do, and, further, it soon became apparent that, for extension teaching, special qualities and a special training were needed. The University then determined to create and train a special staff of instructors and organisers. To further aid country students, it combined with other institutions to create the travelling library system, and collections of carefully selected books were sent to each of the student groups. In 1910 over 40,000 books did duty in this way. In America libraries are no longer jealously kept behind locked doors. They are intended for use. In 1912 the State appropriation for extension work amounted to £25,000.

The wholesome effect of the extension movement on the University is best illustrated by the history of the Department of Agriculture. During the eighties there was a four years' course in agriculture. It had few students, and was regarded as something of a joke by the farmers. The University itself was not particularly proud of it. It was then suggested that a short course in practical agriculture should be arranged for boys and young farmers. It grew slowly, largely because the University staff had not as yet learned to adapt their science to practical needs. They had also to learn a new method of teaching. After ten years of more or less experimental work, the scheme began to grow rapidly in popular favour, and every winter hundreds of students now come to study. As the short course grew new life was infused into the department. In 1905 there were 80 students, and in 19— the number had increased to 364, with 22 doing advanced graduate work. To-day the Wisconsin School of Agriculture has probably no equal in the world, whether for scientific research or for serviceableness to the farmer.

What has taken place in the Department of Agriculture is merely a replica of what has been, and is being, accomplished in other branches of study.

CRIME IN NEW ZEALAND.

INCREASED DRUNKENNESS.

LESS RATE THAN IN COMMONWEALTH.

WELLINGTON (N.Z.), Tuesday.

The report of the Commissioner of Police presented to Parliament, states that the offences reported last year show an aggregate net increase of 982 on the figures of last year.

The proportion of offences to the population was 2.35 per cent., against 2.32 per cent. for the previous year. Serious crimes increased from 580 to 617, forgery and uttering being chiefly responsible for the increase. There has been an increase of 185 in the number of persons prosecuted for drunkenness during the year; 38.12 per cent. of males and 43.— per cent. of females had previous convictions recorded against them; 5.97 per cent. of the males were not permanent residents in the Dominion. The number charged with drunkenness in 1911 was 11,699. In 1912 the number was 11,884. The number arrested for drunkenness on Sundays shows a decrease. The Commissioner of Police gives figures showing that the convictions for drunkenness per 10,000 of the population in 1911 in the Commonwealth were 133.2 per cent., and in New Zealand 112.3 per cent.

SERVIA FIRM.

MARS PEACE PROSPECTS.

THE ARMISTICE.

GREEKS MOVE SOUTHWARD.

LONDON, Aug. 5.

A more pessimistic feeling now prevails in regard to the prospects of a settlement in the Balkans.

The firmness of Servia makes the outcome of the peace conference now sitting at Bucharest unpromising for Bulgaria.

BUCHAREST, Aug. 5.

The armistice has been extended for three days, but the Premier has intimated that no further extension will be possible.

THE GREEKS RETREATING.

SOFIA, Aug. 5.

An official report states that the Greeks in the Struma Valley have been retreating since Saturday, leaving but weak contingents on the frontier.

The Greeks are quitting the Kresna Pass before the expiration of the armistice, in order to escape from the circle of fire with which the Bulgarians have surrounded them.

TURKEY AND BULGARIA.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Aug. 5.

The Grand Vizier has warned M. Matchevitz, the Bulgarian representative in Constantinople, that the atrocities being perpetrated on Turkish prisoners by the Bulgarians are exciting the troops, and unless they cease it will be impossible to prevent an advance across the Bulgarian frontier.

REPORTED ARREST OF DR. DANEFF.

LONDON, Aug. 5.

The "Daily Telegraph" publishes an unconfirmed report to the effect that Dr. Daneff, ex-Premier of Bulgaria, has been arrested on a charge of improperly using secret service funds.

ULSTER.

THE LEADER AT PORTRUSH.

REVIEW OF HIS "TROOPS."

LONDON, Aug. 5.

On Ramore Hill, outside Portrush, 30,000 people assembled and accorded an enthusiastic welcome to Sir Edward Carson, the leader of the Irish Unionists.

He inspected a force of 3000 drilled men, and the crowd sang the hymn, "O God, Our Help in Ages Past," with impressive effect.

Prior to the demonstration rumours had been circulated to the effect that a warrant had been issued for Sir Edward Carson's arrest, but these have since been officially denied.

Sir Edward Carson, in course of an address, declared that, if the Government interfered with the constitution which Ulster was about to establish, they would meet such interference with determined courage.

PANAMA EXHIBITION.

THE REFUSING NATIONS.

NEW YORK, Aug. 5.

Mr. Malone, Third Assistant Secretary in the State Department, yesterday discussed with Sir Cecil Spring Rice, the British Ambassador, the question of Britain's refusal to take part in the Panama Exhibition. It is understood that an effort is likely to be made to induce the British Board of Trade to reconsider its decision in the matter.

Mr. Malone also intends to visit the Russian and German Ambassadors, whose countries have intimated that they will not take part in the exhibition.

CAWNPORE RIOT.

WORK OF AGITATORS.

INCIDENT VIEWED WITH CONCERN.

DELHI, Aug. 4.

Reuter's Agency states that the riot at Cawnpore, due to the authorities demolishing portion of a mosque in connection with some street improvements, was the result of the work of outside Moslem agitators who carefully engineered a plan of playing on fanaticism and ignorance.

The original scheme of the authorities involved the demolition of the temple, but in response of an urgent prayer of the citizens only a small projecting wall was destroyed.

There was no excitment in Cawnpore until the outside agitators raised the cry of sacrilege.

A hundred arrests have been effected in connection with the riot. Many boys and some of the trustees of the mosque who convened the meeting and addressed the mob, are among those who have been apprehended.

It now appears that the fatalities in connection with the affair total 20.

The incident is being viewed with a good deal of concern, as the Mohammedans were already unduly excited over the Balkans crisis.

The police had much difficulty in controlling a meeting that was held at Lucknow, to protest against the action of the Cawnpore authorities.

COLLIERY DISASTER.

FIREMAN'S BRAVERY.

PATHETIC PITHEAD SCENES.

LONDON, Aug. 4.

Further news regarding the disaster at Cadder colliery, Makis Valley, Glasgow, indicate that the outbreak of fire was due to the fusing of an electric cable.

Three of the men who were saved owe their lives to the brave action of Reilly, a fireman, who descended the mine directly the alarm was given. Reilly afterwards seized a lamp, and ran into another part of the workings to warn the other miners, but he was not seen again alive.

Twenty-one bodies have been recovered.

Fifteen of them, including that of Reilly, were found together. They were not burned, and it seems certain that they died from the effects of after-damp.

The rescuers were often overcome, and had to be carried out into the open air.

A miner named Macdonald was the last man to be reached by the rescuers, and they found that he was alive, though he had been lying for 19 hours in the poisonous atmosphere. The doctors administered oxygen as the rescuers carried him to the shaft, and he is still alive, though his condition is critical.

Many pathetic scenes were witnessed at the pithead, where a large number of women, silent and emotionless, waited until dawn for news of husbands, sons, and sweethearts below. One woman lost three sons, and another two sons and a son-in-law. Thirteen of the victims of the disaster were married men.

STOLEN NECKLACE.

THE MYSTERY STILL UNSOLVED

FRENCH DETECTIVE METHODS.

LONDON, Aug. 4.

The Paris correspondent of the "Daily Telegraph" states that the examining magistrate and the police continue to cross-examine Mr. Salomon, the consignor of the valuable pearl necklace which recently disappeared while in transit through the post from Paris to Hatton Gardens, a packet containing the same weight of sugar being substituted.

Mr. Salomon was under examination for hours, and endeavours were made to trap him several times, the authorities refusing to admit that the registered letter department in Paris is at fault.

The "Matin" states that Mr. Prince, representing Lloyds with whom the necklace was insured, offered a Parisian barrister £60,000 if he could find the necklace. The barrister visited Mr Salomon and offered him £20,000, but Mr. Salomon indignantly informed the police.

Mr. Mayer, the owner of the necklace, states that he has known Mr. Salomon for 20 years, and suspicions as to his honesty are absolutely untenable.

The wholesale trade in Paris agree that Mr. Salomon is above suspicion.

English detectives are of opinion that the robbery was committed during two hours in which the parcel was lying in the Paris Post Office.

PARIS, Aug. 5.

The missing necklace had travelled three times between London and Paris, each time in the same box, until the last occasion, when its original box had been mislaid and was later on found by Mr. Salomon's son.

DEATH OF A PRIEST.

A FRENCH TRAGEDY.

PARIS, Aug. 5.

In January last the Rev. Father Chassaing was found shot dead in the house of Alice Crespy.

The two who had met in the confessional, had been intimate friends for some time, and it was said that just prior to the tragedy the Bishop of the diocese, in order to prevent a scandal, had transferred Father Chassaing.

The woman stated that the priest had committed suicide owing to his grief at their separation but she was subsequently arrested and charged with his murder.

The trial was commenced yesterday, the court-room being crowded.

The crowd hissed the accused woman, who entered the court in a state of collapse.

CHINA.

THE WANING REVOLT.

HONGKONG, Aug. 5.

Cantonese rebels fired on the Chinese steamer Samshui, and killed three and wounded five passengers. The vessel was disabled.

The Cantonese troops at Intong mutinied, killed their commander, and annulled the Proclamation of Independence. The rebel Tutuh (military governor) has fled to Hongkong.

H.M.S. NEW ZEALAND.

ARRIVAL AT VICTORIA.

VANCOUVER, Aug. 4.

Laden with an enormous quantity of flowers, the gift of the citizens, the battle cruiser New Zealand departed for Victoria.

On arriving at Victoria the warship was greeted by a United States battleship and three cruisers, the officers exchanging visits.

THE RAND.

NORMAL CONDITIONS PREVAIL.

JOHANNESBURG, Aug. 5.

All the troops are to be withdrawn from the Rand to-day, and the extra police that were brought in have been returned to their stations.

Normal conditions have been restored along the line of reef.

THE OUTER SEAS.

GERMAN FLYING SQUADRON.

BRITANNIA'S NEED.

BERLIN, Aug. 5.

The "Taglische Rundschau" states that the Government contemplates the creation of a special cruiser squadron to protect German interests abroad.

The cruiser Yorck will be the principal ship, and several small cruisers will serve with her, but later on a large cruiser will join the squadron.

LONDON, Aug. 5.

The "Daily Telegraph" states that if it is worth Germany's while to establish a flying squadron to patrol the distant seas, how much more insistent is the need for such a squadron to all the British peoples, who own half the shipping of the world and to whom open ocean highways are essential.

"The need for showing the flag in the outer seas," says the paper, "has never been denied, but the Motherland's resources have proved insufficient for the Empire's needs."

BERMUDA NAVAL BASE.

"TREMENDOUS PROBLEM."

LONDON, Aug. 4.

Reuter's correspondent in Washington states that there is keen interest in official circles in regard to a renewed report that Great Britain is going to establish a great naval base in the Bermudas.

Officials realise that the problem is tremendous, involving the very life of the Monroe Doctrine, and perhaps a complete revolution of naval policy, as other European Powers will probably follow the same course.

"MERE TWADDLE."

LONDON, Aug. 5.

The American statement that Great Britain contemplates establishing a great naval base in the Bermudas is an exaggeration.

During the recent naval pressure in Europe the number of vessels in the West Indies was temporarily reduced, but the Admiralty now proposes to station four cruisers of the County class there in the winter months. This, however, will represent a smaller force than that which was based there in earlier years.

Some New York correspondents declare that the American story is "mere twaddle." They point out that there was a naval station in Bermuda before the Monroe Doctrine came into existence.

The Bermudas are a group of small islands (of which the capital and seat of government is Hamilton), situated in the North Atlantic, 600 miles east of Cape Hatteras, and about 60 hours' journey from New York. The Bermudas have been a British naval station for several years, and according to the last return the military force numbered 1202, and the naval force 1130. There is also a capacious dockyard. The Monroe doctrine, which has apparently again been raised in connection with this matter, was formulated by President Monroe in 1823, in agreement with Great Britain, and in opposition to the designs of the Holy Alliance, which contemplated the partition of South America among the European Powers. It has been accepted ever since as laying down the principles which should guide the United States in respect to the relations of European Powers with the other countries upon the American continent. President Monroe said: "We owe it to candour and to the amicable relations existing between the United States and those Powers (the Allied Powers of Europe) to declare that we should consider any attempt on their part to extend their system to any portion of this hemisphere as dangerous to our peace and safety. With the existing colonies or dependencies of any European Power we have not interfered, and shall not interfere. But with the Governments who have declared their independence and maintained it, and whose independence we have on great consideration and on just principles acknowledged, we could not view any interposition for the purpose of oppressing them or controlling in any other manner their destiny by any unfriendly disposition towards the United States. It is impossible that the Allied Powers should extend their political system to any portion of either continent without endangering our peace and happines; nor can anyone believe that our Southern brethren, if left to themselves, would adopt it of their own accord. It is equally impossible, therefore, that we should behold such interposition in any form with indifference." Mr. Roosevelt pointed out in 1902 that the Doctrine was not a means of aggression, but defensive in purpose, and that it would be respected just so long as the United States possessed a first-class navy. In an address on the subject delivered in 1903, Mr. Whitelaw Reid, the late American Ambassador to Great Britain, said that neither of the two essential propositions in President Monroe's message, "objects to transfer of dominion to Europeans by cession, purchase, or the voluntary act of the inhabitants; and neither of them gives any pledge to any American State that we would interfere in its behalf against the use of force for the collection of debts or the redress of injuries, or, indeed, against any European attack." The "country" class of armoured cruisers mentioned in the cable are of two kinds. The one has a displacement of 9800 tons, with fourteen 6in and eight 3in guns; whilst the other has a displacement of 10,850 tons, and has four 7.5in and six 6in guns.

OFFICIAL SECRETS.

THE GERMAN TRIAL.

BERLIN, Aug. 5.

At yesterday's hearing in connection with the trial of several military officers on a charge of having communicated official secrets to the Krupp firm, all the accused admitted that they knew of the existence of orders forbidding the communication of prices quoted for War Office tenders to outsiders.

Herr Jung, a War Office expert, gave evidence in regard to a report of Herr Brandt, one of Krupp's agents, who recently gave evidence. He intimated that much of the matter in the report should have been kept secret.

BIG LINERS.

FOR AUSTRALIAN TRADE.

LONDON, Aug. 5.

Holt's Blue Funnel line has ordered two 20,000-ton steamers, each 680 feet long, of Workman, Clark, and Co., Belfast, for the Australian trade.

The two steamers mentioned in the above cable will be the largest vessels visiting Australia by 2000 tons. The White Star liner Ceramic, at present on her maiden voyage to Australia, is the largest vessel to visit this part of the world. Her gross tonnage is 18,000 tons, and her length 675ft. Mr. J. B. Milne, managing director of Messrs. Gilchrist, Watt, and Sanderson, agents in Sydney for the Blue Funnel line, stated last night that nothing was known locally of the two new mammoth liners mentioned above. Questioned with regard to the wharfage accommodation for the new steamers, Mr. Milne said that at the company's new wharf at Miller's Point one of the berths provided about 640ft or 650ft. The main consideration was to see that a vessel did not overhang the wharf to such an extent as to make it impossible to work the aft hatch. With their new Central Wharf he was of the opinion that a vessel of 680ft, similar to those mentioned in the cable, could be berthed so as to enable the aft-hatch to be worked. Steamers at this wharf always berthed bow in, leaving the propellers free, and, owing to the construction of the wharf, a steamer of greater length than the wharf itself could comfortably berth alongside. Whether or no the Harbour Trust would probably find no difficulty in lengthening the wharf. Mr. Milne also stated that, with the two steamers mentioned above, the Blue Funnel Line would have seven passenger steamers in the Australian trade. The Nestor (14,500 tons), which at the present moment is the largest vessel which has ever entered Sydney Harbour, is to be followed by her sister ship, the Ulysses. The fleet will therefore consist of three steamers of 10,000 tons, two of 14,500 tons, and two of 20,000 tons. Prior to the arrival of the Nestor a service of one steamer in two months was maintained. With the fleet of seven steamers, however, Mr. Milne was of the opinion that a fortnightly service would probably be maintained.

CENSURE DEBATE.

MINISTRY WINS.

MESSRS. HOSKINS' CONTRACT

MR. LEVY'S CHALLENGE.

There was no flagging of interest in the Legislative Assembly last night in the resumed debate on Mr. Wade's censure motion upon the Government. It had been arranged that the vote should be taken at midnight.

A spirited speech in support of the motion was made by Mr. Levy. The member for Darlinghurst raised a laugh in the House when, in reply to the Premier's complaint as to why the Opposition had not based the motion on some special ground, he said the reason why it had been made general in its terms was that "the sins of the Government were thick as autumnal leaves that strew the brooks in Vallombrosa."

Gratification was expressed by Mr. Levy that at last the members of the Liberal party were able to voice their opinions on the floor of the House without danger of being ejected into Macquarie-street, a reference which was feelingly cheered from the Opposition benches.

This was the same Ministry that had held office for the last three years, though there had been some miserable shuffle of portfolios. But the Premier had not thought it worth while to explain the change in Premiers to the House. The late Premier had said he was afraid that if he did not give up the Premiership he would get softening of the brain.

Mr. M'Gowen: Never! Never! Never!

THE SAME GOVERNMENT.

Mr. Levy: But the present Premier could not shuffle off his responsibility for all the actions of the Government since it took office in October, 1910. He was still responsible for the Nielsen business, the maladministration of the Public works, the Willis compact, the Yanco frauds, and the Government House scandal. The Premier's quickness and nimbleness of tongue might deceive some people, but an analysis of his speech showed that it was full of absolute misstatements of fact, and despite its eloquence, it left unanswered the arguments of the leader of the Opposition with regard to the mismanagement of the finances; while it left the Premier open to the charge of inventing his facts. Yet Mr. Holman had the temerity to charge the leader of the Opposition with political indecency, though at a critical time, when a great question affecting the future destiny of the State was being decided, the Premier was away in London, dining with dukes, motoring with marquises, and patting the pet poodles of princesses. (Opposition laughter.)

IRON WORKS LITIGATION.

Mr. Levy traversed Mr. Holman's statement of the Hoskins' litigation, and added that the Premier suggested Mr. Hoskins protracted the litigation because the Liberal party might come into office and that he would then be all right. This was a wicked insinuation. Those who knew Mr. Wade, knew that he was not the sort of man to interfere with litigation in such a way. The Royal Commission was a Star Chamber as far as Mr. Hoskins was concerned.

Mr. Cohen: The third degree.

Mr. Levy: I should think so.

Mr. Levy said that the Premier stated that Hoskins' counsel withdrew the case against the Government.

Mr. Fitzpatrick: And the Government paid their costs.

Mr. Levy: Why didn't the Government tell us the whole truth? Why didn't the Premier tell us the terms upon which the case was withdrawn? If he had done so, I venture to say that his remarks would have produced a very different impression upon this House to that which the hon. gentleman sought to convey. Then hon. gentleman listens to that in silence. I ask the hon. gentleman now, will he lay upon the table of the House during this debate or afterwards the full terms upon which this case was settled, so that the House and the country may know the whole truth.

Mr. J. Storey: We have had enough of Hoskins. (Opposition laughter.)

Mr. Levy: Exactly; the Premier used this Hoskins' case the other night for the purpose of trying to establish some association between Hoskins and the Liberal party. I want him to go further. At the present time has Mr. Hoskins any compact with the State Government?

"ARRANT HUMBUG."

The Premier, continued Mr. Levy, had brought down a scheme of legislation of a most comprehensive nature, embracing everything from smallpox down to white phosphorus in matches. (Opposition laughter.) He wanted to call attention to the arrant humbug and hypocrisy in presenting a Governor's speech of that kind. What, he asked, had become of the compact between the Premier and the hon. member for the Upper Hunter?

Mr. Fitzpatrick: Judas.

The Speaker: Order!

Mr. Levy: "I am not going to attack your predecessor, sir. He is not worthy of it." (Ministerial cries of "Shame.") He went on to recall that, on July 17, 1911, a compact was made between the Government and the late Speaker that after the Redistribution of Seats Bill was passed an appeal should be made to the constituencies at the earliest possible moment. The Premier had broken every clause of this compact. He had gone on with contentious legislation as if an agreement of this kind had never been entered into. Mr. Holman stated that he had entered into this arrangement with Mr. Willis without the slightest idea of introducing contentious legislation while the Government had no majority. (Loud Ministerial laughter, in which the Premier joined.)

Mr. Levy contended that the Premier had falsified the solemn assurance he had then given the House. The Premier had also been guilty of supporting certain tyrannical acts in this House which must excite the contempt and disgust of right-thinking people outside. (Opposition cheers.)

Mr. Willis followed, with a speech in which he made an attack upon the leader of the Opposition, questioning his qualifications for the position. He declared that Mr. Wade was only a third-rate politician. He said that the Labour party would sweep the country if they would only abolish the pledge required of candidates, and advised the Labour party not to adopt the short-sighted policy of opposing candidates in electorates which they could not win, and when there was a chance of what he called true Liberal—of whom he said he was one—being returned. Mr. Willis stated that he had, when he was a member of the Liberal party, been invited to a dinner in a club where some half-dozen members of the Liberal party had met for the purpose of displacing Mr. Wade from the leadership. The speech of the ex-Speaker was applauded by members of the Ministerial side, and he concluded by saying that he intended to vote against the motion of censure.

Before Mr. Willis closed he said that the Minister for Public Instruction (Mr. Carmichael) had done nothing to show that he was fit for his position. (Laughter.)

Mr. Crawford said he favoured the introduction of a Fair Rents Bill.

Mr. J. Perry combated the "unwarranted attack" made by Mr. Willis upon the leader of the Opposition. Here was a man who had sold and betrayed his party daring to criticise a man who had refused the highest position in the land for his party. (Hear, hear.)

Mr. Millard had dwelt on the fearful state of the roads of the State.

The closure was applied at 12.10 a.m.

The motion of censure was then negatived on the following division:—

AYES, 35.

Lee, Cohen, James, Onslow, Levy, Wade, Perry, Fitzpatrick, Fallick, M. Morton, Badgery, Price, Waddell, M'Laurin, Wood, Downes, Hunt, V. Parkes, Millard, M'Farlane, Robson, Bruntnell, Donaldson, Dr. Arthur, Brown, Levien, Major Nicholson, Hall, Henley, Thomas, Latimer, Moxham, Taylor, Ball, Miller.

NOES, 40.

Minahan, Meagher, Griffith, Edden, Holman, Hollis, Hickey, Keegan, Trefle, Dooley, Fern, Cann, Crawford, Scobie, Cassel, Gardiner, Mercer, Carmichael, Stuart Robertson, Peters, Corcoran, M'Girr, Hoyle, Morrish, Page, J. Storey, G. Miller, Thrower, Meehan, Kearsley, Black, Lynch, M'Gowen, Estell, Dunn, M'Donald, Ashford, Graham, M'Neill, Osborne.

PAIRS.

Ayes.—Cocks, Fell, Hindmarsh, Lonsdale, Nobbs, D. Storey.

Noes.—Beeby, M'Garry, Jones, Burgess, Kelly, J. B. Nicholson.

The only votes unrecorded were those of Mr. Willis and Mr. Briner, the former of whom spoke, but did not vote, while the member for Raleigh was absent through illness.

The Address-in-Reply was then carried on the voices.

A CANDID EMPLOYER

CONDEMNS WAGES BOARD.

HOW THE EMPLOYERS SUFFER.

Mr. P. Hart, president of the Caterers and Restaurant-keepers' Association, indulged in a strong condemnation of wages boards when giving evidence before the Industrial Commission yesterday.

"We were misrepresented by our representatives," he said. They acted in agreement with the employees' representatives to grant them certain concession which operated against the rest of the trade.

The Commissioner said he did not as a rule allow allegations of this character unless the people concerned could be heard in defence.

Mr. Hart replied that he had considered the responsibility, and the matter would be put before the Judge in the same manner to show there must have been agreement between these people to get certain things.

To Mr. Buchanan, representing the employers: I say they sacrificed the rest of the trade. I am not making any reckless statement without being able to convince the Court.

The Commissioner said the parties concerned could, if they wished, be heard in reply.

The Commissioner asked the witness did he suggest that the employers' representatives deliberately gave an extended definition of the shops in order to be able to get tea-shop waitresses for their own establishments at a lower rate than they would have had to pay if in competition with ordinary restaurants.

Mr. Hart: Yes, that is so. The same thing was done to smooth over the oystermen. Tea and oyster saloons were given a preference over the rest of the trade.

Witness went on to say that no evidence was offered because they knew nothing about it until the award was out. The chairman of the board, he said, did not hear any evidence.

"The award was fixed up before we knew anything about it," said Mr. Hart.

The Commissioner: Do you say you were not given an opportunity to give evidence?

Witness: The case was hurried on with indecent haste to allow Mr. Shaw to go to England.

The Commissioner: This is the first I have heard of a board being hurried. (Laughter.)

Mr. Hart said he only mentioned these things to show that they could not happen under a Judge, with independent assessors. The secretary of the Caterers and Restaurant-keepers' Association at a meeting gave them some idea of what the award would be, and he read out something entirely different to what the board decided on. For instance, he never mentioned tea-rooms. When they found from the draft award what was actually in it they made objections all round.

To Mr. Connington, representing the employees: We have appealed against the award.

The Commissioner: Did you tender no evidence before the award was gazetted?

Witness: No evidence was tendered excepting my own.

Mr. Hart said the Early Closing Act clashed with the award. Where there was an award, he contended, it should operate irrespective of the Early Closing Act.

Mr. Hart: My firm opinion is that the wages boards are carried on very much longer than there is occasion for them, on account of the fees. That is my own personal experience.

The Commissioner: I won't allow this evidence to go any further. When things come to an unprovable point it is only wasting time.

Witness said he favoured one award for the whole trade.

Andrew H. Moore, general manager of Harrison, Jones, and Devlin, Limited, and a member of the executive of the Employers' Federation of New South Wales, was the next witness. He thought wages boards were unwieldy. Too much time was taken up, and a great deal of ill-feeling imparted into the proceedings, through the fact that it seemed to be the desire of each side to get the extremist rather than the man who would give evidence on the normal conditions. Craft boards did a tremendous amount of overlapping. He considered that the taxpayer should not be called upon to contribute to settle a dispute between the parties interested.

ARBITRATION DELAYS.

JUDGE'S EXPLANATION.

PREPARED TO RESIGN PRESIDENCY.

PERTH, Tuesday.

The Attorney-General has received a communication from the President of the Arbitration Court, Mr. Justice Burnside, challenging certain allegations made in regard to delay in getting cases before the Court by members of a deputation which recently waited upon the hon. Minister, Mr. Dodd. The statements principally objected to by his Honor were: (1) That up to the present it had been impossible for any organisation to get before the Court; (2) that only one case had been heard since the passing of the new Act; (3) that there had been no attempt to issue an award under the new Act; and (4) that nothing definite could be learned as to when cases could be dealt with.

His Honor pointed out that between February 24 and May 15 11 different organisations had been before himself and the Court, and that many matters had been dealt with since the pasing of the new Act, including three compulsory conferences, one of the most important in the State being brought to a successful issue. There was no instance on record of any organisation being unable to get before the Court or the President during that period. His Honor further pointed out that all applications for the enforcement of awards had been disposed of up to April 19, and that since that date over 100 had been lodged. In the meantime he had been absent in Perth West, trying a murder case at Broome, and as he had been busily engaged since his return with public service appeals it was a physical impossibility for him to be in two places at one time. His Honor added that if the administration of the Court had been such as to warrant the [illegible] he would resign his position as President.

AN OCEAN FLYER.

THE BARQUE MARJORIE CRAIG.

The fine Auckland-owned barque Marjorie Craig has added a record to her already long list of smart sailing performances, having covered the journey from Melbourne to Auckland in the remarkably short period of seven days 16 hours.

The vessel left Melbourne Heads at 5 p.m. on Saturday, July 19, and was bowling along merrily under full sail past Wilson's Promontory at 3 a.m. next day. When this announcement was posted at the Sydney G.P.O. surprise was expressed at the speedy run from Port Phillip Heads, and those who knew of the barque's reputation as a flyer, predicted a fast passage.

Advices received from New Zealand show that the predictions were well founded, the Marjorie Craig's arrival at Auckland having caused quite a stir. When she was sighted from Mount Victoria early on the morning of July 27 it was thought in shipping circles that a mistake had been made, and that the vessel was the Thora from Fabre Island.

Captain Holmes, who was very proud of the vessel's achievement, stated, on arrival, that, after leaving Port Phillip Heads, they were favoured by strong south to south-south-east winds, and the vessel cut through the water at a great pace. Every possible inch of canvas was piled on, and kept on throughout the voyage.

The Marjorie Craig, together with her sister ship, the Louisa Craig, has performed some remarkable trips in the past. Included amongst the former's performances are the following:—Kaipara (N.Z.) to Melbourne in eight days, Warrnambool (Vic.) to Hokianga (N.Z.) in eight and a half days; Newcastle to Auckland in nine days, and Melbourne to Auckland in 12 days. At the beginning of the present year, while on a voyage from Adelaide to Auckland, the vessel was dismasted off Adelaide, and came on to Auckland with a 45ft cargo derrick rigged up as a jury topmast. In spite of this, she did the journey in the creditable time of 22 days. On that occasion the owners presented Captain Holmes with a gold watch and chain.

SMALLPOX.

FIVE NEW CASES IN SYDNEY

OUTBREAK AT KOSCIUSKO.

Five cases of smallpox were reported from the metropolitan area yesterday.

The patients resided at Glebe, Waterloo, Parramatta, Sydney Hospital, and Woolloomooloo.

A woman called at the offices of the Department of Public Health last evening, and asked to see Dr. Paton. A glance at the woman convinced him that she was suffering from smallpox. He had her removed to an ante-room and later in the evening to the quarantine depot at Woolloomooloo. The patient was accompanied by another woman, and she was also removed to quarantine as a contact.

One of yesterday's patients was a girl aged 12 years, who was found to be suffering from smallpox while lying in Sydney Hospital. It is thought the disease was communicated to her by a visitor, whose whereabouts have not been traced.

The vaccinations yesterday numbered 1247. Of this number 1007 were treated at the Town Hall and 240 at Randwick.

Newtown depot will be open to-day, Hornsby to-morrow, and Manly to-morrow and Friday. The Town Hall depot will be open as usual.

Mr. C. W. Reid, chief quarantine officer, announces that persons leaving New South Wales for other States must produce at the border station a vaccination certificate and surveillance form. The vaccination certificates will be returned to the holders when they present themselves for examination under surveillance.

The current issue of the "Australian Medical Gazette" contains the following comments on the statement made by Dr. Hamilton Tebbutt, and published in the "Herald" at the time:—

"The report was not intended to create alarm in the minds of the public and prejudice against vaccination, but rather to account for some of the severe reactions which were being experienced, and to caution the medical man to be careful in the use of it.

"There was absolutely no evidence that either local or New Zealand lymph is infectious in any other way than it was intended to be."

The patient discovered at Liverpool had been employed by the Water and Sewerage Board, Sydney.

IN THE COUNTRY.

ARMIDALE, Tuesday.

A suspected case of smallpox here has been diagnosed as chicken-pox.

COFF'S HARBOUR, Tuesday.

A case here is thought to be smallpox.

GOULBURN, Tuesday.

The smallpox patient is doing well. The vaccination of the other inmates of the house has reacted. A temporary hospital has been erected by the council. The public vaccination depot at the Town Hall will be closed after to-day, as the number of applicants shows a great falling off. The number treated there totals 2772. Doctors have also treated hundreds of private patients.

CASE AT KOSCIUSKO.

COOMA, Tuesday.

News has been received from Mount Kosciusko that a suspicious case of sickness proved to be a mild case of smallpox. The patient is a young man who has been engaged on the staff of servants.

PARRAMATTA.

The case at Parramatta, diagnosed on Monday, is that of a girl residing with her parents in Dixon-street, Parramatta South. The child was attending the Parramatta South Public School up to Friday last.

NEW ZEALAND.

AN OBSTINATE EPIDEMIC.

WELLINGTON, Tuesday.

Smallpox is becoming rather more serious in the North Island than was at first apparent. The cases seem to be generally distributed over Auckland province. Europeans and Maoris both are attacked by the disease, which is making obstinate resistance to the stringent measures being taken by the Health Department to stamp it out.

CITY COUNCIL ACTION.

The City Health Officer (Dr. Purdy) reported yesterday that six extra inspectors had been employed to ensure that no portion of the city might be overlooked in routine house to house inspection.

Alderman Lawrence said that the notifications of fresh cases in the press were not specific enough. In the interests of the public the names of the streets, at least, in which cases had occurred, should be given.

FITZROY DOCK.

WORK RESUMED.

Practically the whole of the men who were put off to allow of the inspection of the boilers at Fitzroy Dock, Cockatoo Island, resumed work yesterday. Work has been recommenced on the construction of the ships for the Australian navy—the Derwent and the Torrens, and the cruiser Brisbane. All the men who turned up at the works were put on again. Several did not put in an appearance.

Men who failed to find places yesterday will, Mr. Cutler, superintendent of Cockatoo Island, anticipates, be absorbed to-day or to-morrow, either in the day or the night shift. The supervision of the boilers is still going on. Two of the 14 have been passed, and others are expected to be made available shortly. In the course of a few days it is expected that the yard will resume its former activity.

BRICK COMBINE.

BUILDERS' COMPLAINT.

MELBOURNE, Tuesday.

The Commission appointed to inquire into the brickmaking industry, heard further evidence at State Parliament House to-day.

E. H. M. Ratcliffe, master builder, said that attempts had been made to prevent him from obtaining bricks for certain purposes.

The Chairman: "Do you think the combine has exercised too much power in regard to its customers?"

Witness: They have been very autocratic. We have been in the position of being dictated to, and we could not dictate.

Replying to Mr. Rees, M.L.C., witness said he could not give a specific instance of that dictation operating, and could only say that at times he had felt the curb.

FOOTBALLER KILLED.

MELBOURNE, Tuesday.

Chas. Howden Selleck died at Ballarat last night from injuries received on Saturday while playing for Golden Point Football Club against South Ballarat. When Selleck reached the dressing-room on Saturday he found that a place had not been kept for him in the team, as it was said that an ingrowing toenail would affect his play. As he seemed disappointed, a place was offered him by J. Clymo, who stood down. Selleck had kicked two goals, when he collided with another player, and fell, sustaining severe internal injuries.

SHIPBUILDING.

TWO NEW SOUTH COASTERS.

LOCAL INDUSTRY.

The fleet of Sydney built sailers and steamers is rapidly increasing, and with a little more encouragement from Australian companies, there is no reason why ship-building here should not in a few years be one of our most important industries. Local builders complain that there is a tendency on the part of some ship-owners to prefer the English or Continental yards. The announcement made some time ago that the Queensland Government had decided to place an order for a new pilot steamer with a Scottish firm is referred to as an instance of the prejudice against which local builders have to struggle.

However, there are in Australia a number of companies whose directors and managers show in a practical way that they believe the locally built steamer to be equally as good as the English one. The Port Jackson and Manly Steamship Company, Ltd.; the Sydney Ferries, Ltd., and some of the coastal steamship owners have proved this to be so.

The Illawarra and South Coast S.N. Company, Ltd., is also patronising the local industry, and has at present two new steamers in the course of construction at Messrs. Morrison and Sinclair's yards, at Balmain. This shipping company has enjoyed a steady flow of trade recently. Their two new steamers are to be named the Benandra and the Bodalla. They are to be sister ships of about 275 tons gross each, and are to be fitted up with all the latest appliances for handling cargo. They will be placed in the general cargo and passenger trade between Sydney, Shoalhaven, and Moruya, each having accommodation for about 20 passengers. The machinery is the only part of the vessels to be imported, and this will be brought from Scotland. Both steamers are being built to complete specifications, and Captain D. J. M. Sim, general manager of the company, when questioned yesterday regarding the vessels, said: "We are giving a good price and getting a good ship."

Electric light will be installed throughout, and there will also be steam steering gear, steam windlasses, and everything necessary for an up-to-date cargo and passenger steamer. The builders expect to have the first steamer ready before the end of the year. The second will probably be completed about June next year.

BAPTISTS IN RUSSIA.

GRANT OF LIBERTY.

HOW IT HAS OPERATED.

Yesterday a cable was published to the effect that owing to the refusal of the Baptists to take the military oath the Government of Russia was considering the advisableness of proclaiming them a sect harmful to the State. Mr. A. J. Packer, editor of the Baptist newspaper in Sydney, who recently attended the congress in St. Petersburg, to celebrate the granting of religious liberty to the people of Russia, said that in the absence of the actual nature of the oath, it was hardly possible to say what the real cause of the trouble was; but with the knowledge he had of the loyalty of the Baptists in Russia he was certain that it was not on civil grounds, but rather on religious grounds, that the Baptists had taken a stand in this matter.

He felt sure also that it was due to the attempt on the part of the reactionary party again to crush the people in their desire to enjoy religious liberty—a liberty that was granted to them in 1905, when the edict was issued giving the people the right to profess their own faith apart from that of the orthodox or Greek church.

"It was the granting of this liberty which led up to the holding of the congress which I attended a year or two ago," said Mr. Packer, "and I can assure you the liberty was only given in a halfhearted manner, and the congress was held under the supervision of Government officials, and in the presence of secret police, who tried to upset everything that was done. There was no freedom about the congress, and I and others who attended were not allowed to take any part whatever in the proceedings. The second day's sittings could not be held until the proceedings of the first day were reported and approved of by the Government officials.

"But, notwithstanding all this interference and attempt at crushing the religious liberty granted to the people, the movement grew very fast, and within five years after the issue of the edict the Baptists, to the number of 100,000, had declared themselves, and had built many large halls in which to assemble. Outdoor preaching was forbidden by law. There were as many more in favour of the new religion, but they were afraid to declare themselves, fearing that the edict might not turn out to be true. The Baptists of Russia are as loyal a body of men as are in that country. At the congress they sang the National Anthem, and passed resolutions of loyalty to the throne. The great trouble in Russia is that the Government is afraid to trust the people, and while the powers gave them religious liberty with one hand, they have been trying to take it away with the other. The edict had not been issued 12 months before the persecution started, and many Baptists were sent back to exile. Some allowance must also be made for the powerful influence exerted by the newspaper "Novoe Vremya," which is the most powerful organ in Russia, and notoriously the organ of the reactionary party, which represents the rich, and the leaders of the orthodox church, whose efforts are always "Down with the people." Another reason why the Baptists could not refuse military service is that military conscription in Russia provides that every male person between the ages of 18 and 43 must serve. Therefore, no Russian, Baptists or otherwise, can go against military conscription. I am certain that this is but an attempt to trap the Baptists and overthrow the religious liberty which they gained. It is quite possible also that this is some new kind of oath introduced to overthrow the religious liberty which was given to the people in 1905."

MISSING FARMER.

REMAINS IN A FIRE.

MATHINNA (Tas.), Tuesday.

The inquiry concerning the death of William James Mullins, a farmer, of Sunnyside, near Mathinna, who mysteriously disappeared on June 20, and whose charred remains were found a fortnight later in the ashes of a fire in the bush several miles from his home, was opened at Mathinna to-day before the coroner and a jury. The bones found in the ashes have been submitted to Professor Allen, Professor of Anatomy, of Melbourne University, whose report stated that they were undoubtedly human, and those of an adult. The bones were much broken up, and most of them very much calcined. One piece of thigh bone showed a mark which might possibly have been due to a cut with a sharp instrument, but may have been merely due to breakage.

Detective-Sergeant Gunner, who gathered the remains from the ashes of the fire, stated that the bones had been broken up with some blunt instrument.

William Barnes, one of the searchers, described how his pony followed up horse tracks leading towards the fire. He tried to make the pony jump a big log, but it refused to do so. He went round to its head, and it was then he noticed a number of flies. Afterwards his brother came on the remains of a fire, in which were bones, a button, and a trap setter, which Mullins had taken with him when he set out on a visit to his trap, from which he never returned.

The inquiry was adjourned.

THE INTER-STATE COMMISSION.

MEMBERS APPOINTED.

TARIFF ADJUSTMENT.

MELBOURNE, Tuesday.

The personnel of the Interstate Commission was announced to-day by the Prime Minister (Mr. Cook) at the conclusion of the Cabinet meeting. The gentlemen selected are:—

Mr. A. B. PIDDINGTON, K.C., Chairman.

Mr. GEORGE SWINBURNE, M.L.A., and

Mr. N. C LOCKYER.

In making the statement concerning the appointments, Mr Cook said that all the gentlemen concerned had accepted the positions, and the Commission would make a start with its work as soon as possible. Their first duty would be to inquire into the tariff, with a view to the adjustment of its incidence, as promised by the Government. The Commission would have to report to the Government on the question. The idea was that they should watch the various manufacturers' interests, and suggest adjustments that might be advisable from time to time.

THE CHAIRMAN'S CAREER.

The Chief Commissioner, Mr. Albert Bathurst Piddington, M.A., K.C., is a distinguished scholar, and one of the best-known men at the New South Wales Bar. When 17 years of age he passed his Senior University examination in 13 subjects. To-day he speaks four foreign languages fluently—French, German, Italian, and Spanish.

Mr. Piddington was born at Bathurst in 1862, and is the son of Archdeacon Piddington, of Tamworth. He received his primary education in Public schools, and the greater part of his secondary education at the Sydney Grammar School. For a little while he was at Newington College, and he graduated at the Sydney University. In 1882 he was second master at the Sydney Boys' High School. One of his pupils is now Professor Grafton Elliott Smith, of Manchester University, who has won renown as an Egyptologist. Among Mr. Piddington's other pupils were Mr. Eedy, general manager of the Citizens' Life Company, Dr. Ziolkowski, of Sydney, and Dr. Doak, of Mosman. Mr. Piddington was acting lecturer in German and other languages at the Sydney University at different times. He was also public examiner in English and European history. From 1889 to 1894 he held the post of evening lecturer at the University in English, and resigned it to contest the Tamworth seat in the New South Wales Assembly against Sir George Dibbs. He won the election, and sat for Tamworth for some years.

The other day Mr. Piddington was re-elected to the Senate of the Sydney University, of which he has been a member since 1909. He is also a member of the University Extension Board and Women's College Council. Generally speaking, it may be said that he has always taken a keen interest in the widest practical extension of higher education.

While studying at the Sydney University Mr. Piddington was a member of the boat club, and did a good deal of rowing, though he never raced. He also played football in his University days, but never distinguished himself as an athlete. Most of his time was given to study, the exercise he indulged in being mostly for the benefit of his health.

Mr. Piddington played a big part in the first and second campaigns for federation, devoting himself mainly to the Constitutional aspects of the case. His criticism was chiefly directed towards securing greater powers for the national Parliament and a basis of wider representation for the Senate. Among other things, he read a paper before the Australian Association for the Advancement of Science on "Responsible Government and Federation."

Mr. Piddington has contributed numerous articles to the press, chiefly on historical and constitutional subjects. He is also the author of several works, including an edition of "Sir Roger de Coverley," with an introduction on the life of Addison and Steele. Another of his publications was a part of "Paradise Lost," with an essay on Milton. This latter work was highly praised by the late Sir George Grey, of New Zealand, and the late Sir Henry Parkes.

The legal career of Mr. Piddington covers 23 years. He is generally recognised as a sound lawyer more particularly in matters relating to common law, and on questions involving constitutional difficulties. He frequently appeared in the High Court to argue constitutional questions for the Commonwealth Government, and recently, when in England, appeared before the Privy Council under commission from the State Government in an appeal from the judgment of the N.S.W. Supreme Court. He was one of the gentlemen selected by the Fisher Government for appointment to the High Court Bench, and received the King's commission to act. For private reasons, at the time stated, however, he refrained from being sworn in, and resigned. Shortly afterwards he took silk, and it was next announced that he had been appointed a Royal Commissioner to inquire into industrial questions. The work of the commission is now nearing completion.

Mr. Piddington was chairman of the Shortage of Labour Commission, which resulted in skilled hands being imported from England. His report on the factory life of the State is regarded as a very valuable document, and it will probably form the basis of future legislation. Mr. Piddington was also chairman of a large number of wages boards, under Mr. Wade's Act, which provided that the parties themselves should choose their chairmen jointly. Mr. Piddington's personal qualities are well known. He is an affable, courteous gentleman, kindly and considerate to those he comes into personal contact with. As a judicial chairman he is generally regarded by those competent to judge as having shaped well, and the appointment is likely to prove popular.

MR. SWINBURNE.

Mr. George Swinburne, M.L.A., will bring all that is best in commercial knowledge to the aid of the Commission. His connection with enterprises of varied and important interests in the city is well known; while, as a public man, he has devoted much time to the study of questions relating to water supply and irrigation. Mr. Swinburne was born at Newcastle-on-Tyne, England, in 1861, and came to Australia when he was 25 years of age. Since then he has continuously been engaged in engineering and commercial undertakings of widely-divergent character. He has, however, been most closely associated with water conservation. He has occupied the position of director in a large number of companies, and at the present time is chairman of the Broken Hill Water Supply Company, and is a director of the Melbourne Gas Company. He is chairman of directors of Johns and Waygood, engineers, of South Melbourne; a director of the Melbourne Hydraulic Company; a director of the Mount Lyell Mining and Railway Company; and chairman of the National Mutual Life Assurance Company. Altogether he is associated with undertakings involving the employment of 4000 men, and the ramifications of the different concerns in which he is interested extend to every State in Australia.

Mr. Swinburne entered Parliament in 1902 as member for Hawthorn in the Victorian Legislative Assembly, and became Minister for Agriculture and Water Supply two years later. He held that portfolio for nearly five years, and since that time he has taken an active part in the House as a private member. Mr. Swinburne's first intimation that his name had been mentioned in connection with the commission came to him just a week ago, when he was acting as chairman of the meeting of the State Liberal party, called to consider the situation which arose out of Mr. McLeod's no-confidence motion. During the course of that gathering he was called upon by Senator McColl, who stated that the Prime Minister (Mr. Cook) was anxious to see him, and desired that an appointment should be made. He rang the Prime Minister up on the telephone, and during the course of the evening talked matters over with him. He thought the matter over very seriously for a long time, and eventually decided to accept a position on the commission. Mr. Swinburne realised that if he took the post it meant a tremendous uprooting of his commercial and political interests. But after mature consideration he decided to take the step. He was influenced in arriving at his decision by the hope that his appointment to the commission would open up for him a new field of usefulness and public utility. That appealed very strongly to him from a national standpoint.

Mr. Swinburne stated to-day that he felt highly honoured at having been selected, but stated he had not the remotest idea up to the time Senator McColl spoke to him that his name had been mentioned in connection with the Interstate Commission.

As the newly-formed body is to take up work at the earliest possible moment, it is understood that Mr. Swinburne will resign his position as member for Hawthorn in the State Parliament almost immediately.

A DISTINGUISHED CIVIL SERVANT.

Mr. N. C. Lockyer is the only one of the many gentlemen who were "tipped" for the position to be selected, and his appointment will no doubt meet with approval in all circles. He has spent the whole of his professional career in the Civil Service. In every position that he has held he has been looked upon as one of the soundest officers in the department. He was born at Woolloomooloo on October 6, 1855. Where his father's house stood then there are now huge bonds and warehouses, and the little sandy beach where Mr. Lockyer says he learned to swim has for many years been reclaimed for wharfage purposes. His father was a major in the Imperial Army, and was one of the pioneers of Australia. He was the man who hoisted the British flag for the first time on the western coast of Australia, being in charge of an expedition which landed on the site of the present city of Albany. Mr. Lockyer received his education from a Presbyterian minister, but at the early age of 12½ years he started out on his career as a Public servant, taking up a humble appointment in the New South Wales Treasury, when Mr. Geoffrey Eagar was the political head of the department. In 1883 he got his first big position, being made Treasury Inspector. The duties attaching to this post took him all over the State, and he spent the best part of 11 years in travelling from point to point. Later on he took up the position of Receiver of Revenue in the Treasury, and was subsequently appointed to the post of Chief Accountant. At the end of 1895, when direct taxation was first introduced in New South Wales, he was asked by Mr. (now Sir) George Reid to act as sole Commissioner for Taxation. He declined the honour, but at the end of 1896 he was appointed by Mr. Reid to reorganise the whole of the Taxation Department. Subsequently he was made Chief Commissioner of Taxation and Collector of Customs of New South Wales. After federation had been accomplished both Sir George Reid and the late Sir William Lyne invited him to accept the position of Commonwealth Statistician, but he declined. While Collector in New South Wales he took an active part in the framing of Mr. Kingston's first Federal tariff being with that Minister the whole time the tariff was under consideration. He was appointed by the late Sir William Lyne as Assistant Comptroller-General of Customs and on the retirement of Dr. Wollaston at the beginning of 1910 he was promoted to the vacant post of Comptroller-General. In private Mr. Lockyer is a keen fisherman, if a man who devoted the whole of his skill to the destruction of sharks can be classed in that category. He is also an amateur joiner of no mean ability, and devoted much of his time to the manufacture of miniature suites of household furniture, which he had from time to time distributed amongst the inmates of the children's hospitals. Amongst his most recent official duties were the preparation of reports with reference to the meat and butter industries, and he also looked into the pearling question at the request of the Fisher Government.

"SUITABLE APPOINTMENT."

"In every possible way a suitable appointment," was the Premier's (Mr. Holman) comment last night when informed that Mr. Piddington had been appointed Chairman of the Interstate Commission.

FUNCTIONS OF THE COMMISSION

WIDE SCOPE OF POWERS.

The appointment of the Interstate Commission is provided for by the Constitution, and by an Act passed in the concluding stages of the last Federal Parliament, the chief function proposed being the maintenance of the provisions of the Constitution as to trade and commerce. It was not until last year that the developments of Commonwealth affairs were thought to justify the measure that called it into existence. The appointments are for a period of seven years, and the chairman's salary is fixed at £2500, and that of the other two at £2000 annually.

The position of chairman of the commission is one of great responsibility, for that body will not only have a wide field of investigation, but also powers of administration and adjudication. The commission's judical functions will be to decide on questions arising out of the following matters:—

(a) Any preference, advantage, prejudice, disadvantage, or discrimination given or made by any State, or by a common carrier.

(b) The justice or reasonableness of any request in respect of interstate commerce or affecting such commerce, and

(c) Anything done or omitted to be done by any State authority, or any common carrier, or by any person in contravention of the Act, or of the trade and commerce power of the Constitution, or any law made under it.

Any complaint or difference relating to external or interstate commerce may be referred to the commission with the latter's consent, and the commission will have power to give relief, award damages, or grant injunctions. It may declare void any regulations that contravene the provisions of the Constitution, and may impose penalties as high as £200 a day for disobedience of its decisions. It can fix both a maximum and minimum rate for any service, and can fix a maximum or minimum of difference between rates in order to prevent unlawful preferences or discrimination. There will be no appeal from the commission's findings as to facts, but the High Court may be appealed to on points of law only. The High Court has discretion as to costs in connection with appeals, but in no case will the commissioners individually be held liable for costs in favour of appellants. The commissioners will have power to state a case for appeal, and except as mentioned their decisions cannot be questioned or reviewed. The Act gives each of them the protection and immunity accorded to a High Court Judge. A penalty of £500 is provided for witnesses who refuse to be sworn or give evidence. Any witness knowingly giving false testimony may be imprisoned for five years. Severe penalties are provided in the case of an employee being dismissed for having given evidence before the commission.

The Commission is charged with the duty of investigating from time to time all matters which it considers ought, in the public interest, to be inquired into, affecting:—

(a) The production of, and trade in, commodities:

(b) The encouragement, improvement, and extension of Australian industries and manufactures;

(c) Markets outside Australia, and the opening up of any external trade generally;

(d) The effect and operation of any tariff Act or other legislation of the Commonwealth with regard to revenue, Australian manufactures, and industry and trade generally;

(e) Prices of commodities;

(f) Profits and trade and manufacture;

(g) Wages, and social and industrial conditions;

(h) Labour, employment, and unemployment;

(i) Bounties paid by foreign countries to encourage shipping or export trade;

(j) Population;

(k) Immigration; and

(l) Other matters referred to the Commission by either House by resolution for investigation.

The last sub-clause gives it the broadest possible scope, and the new Federal Government has, as a matter of fact, decided that the Commission shall inquire into the important question of tariff revision. That it may also deal with questions of irrigation, and matters such as the use of the Murray waters by New South Wales, Victoria, and South Australia, is shown by the provision that it may investigate all matters affecting:—

(a) Diversions or proposed diversions from any river and its tributaries, and their effect on the navigability of rivers that by themselves or by their connection with other waters constitute highways for interstate trade and commerce;

(b) The maintenance and the improvement of the navigability of such rivers;

(c) The abridgement by the Commonwealth by any law or regulation of trade and commerce of the rights of a State or its residents to the reasonable use of the waters of rivers for conservation and irrigation; and

(d) Violations of the rights of any State with respect to the waters of rivers.

Once every year the Commission is to make a report to the Minister containing a summary of the work done, and recommendations as to further legislation the Commission thinks expedient.

A COLD SNAP.

EXTENSIVE FROSTS.

FINE WEATHER INDICATED.

Since 9 a.m. on Monday very light rain has been recorded at a few places on the SW slopes and central tableland. Taralga had the largest which only amounted to 5 points.

Due to the presence over SE Queensland and north-eastern districts of New South Wales, of the centre of a high pressure system, the temperature there has declined generally, and many frosts resulted, which also affected coastal parts.

At Sydney yesterday morning the lowest reading on the grass at the Weather Bureau was 31.9 deg. The lowest in the shade was 46.0 deg., or the lowest since July 22 last, when it was 44.4 deg.

The temperature at most places on the southern tableland and in western division was higher than on Monday. The lowest registration advised yesterday from various parts of the State were:—Marilda 2 deg., Bundarra 22, Rockley and Bombala each 23, Inverell and Glen Innes, each 24, and Nimitybelle and Mudgee each 25 deg. In coastal districts, the lowest readings were:—Bega 27 degrees, Picton 28, Jerry's Plains 28, Bodalla 30, Moss Vale 31, and Scone 32 deg. The minimum at Parramatta was 37 degrees, and frosty conditions were experienced there, as also at Penrith, in the metropolitan area.

At 9 a.m. yesterday it was cloudy to overcast at places in the southern districts, but chiefly on the south-western slopes and tablelands; otherwise, fine and clear.

Present indications favour fine and cool to cold weather, for the most part but a shower or two likely on the SW slopes.

THE WHEAT TRAFFIC

BULK HANDLING.

GOVERNMENT TAKES ACTION.

"The Cabinet," said the Minister for Lands (Mr. Trefle) yesterday, "has given consideration to the report furnished by Mr. Burrell regarding the bulk handling of wheat. The report will be laid upon the table of the House on Wednesday."

Mr. Trefle stated that he had had a lengthy interview with the Chief Commissioner for Railways, and Cabinet had approved of the following recommendations:—

(1) That the Chief Commissioner be asked to prepare plans and estimates for the necessary track sheds, galleries, silos, etc., in connection with a terminal elevator, to be erected at the point of export in Sydney.

(2) That all the necessary data and information be obtained in connection with the erection of terminal elevators at Jervis Bay in the south and Newcastle in the north.

(3) That the alleged objection of wheat exporters and buyers to dealing with northern and north-western wheats separate from the southern wheats be looked into, with a view to ascertaining whether it is necessary to continue bringing those wheats to Sydney for mixing with the southern or drier wheats.

(4) That the Chief Commissioner be asked whether he can design a truck suitable to our Australian conditions, which will serve the dual purpose of carrying wheat in bulk besides carrying coal, coke, and other goods to the country on the return journey, and thus avoid the objection which the Chief Commissioner holds to the American box car, which is most favoured for the bulk handling of wheat in that country.

The Minister added that he was pleased to say that the Chief Commissioner for Railways had considerable available data of a technical nature in his possession bearing upon the construction of elevators, etc., which obviates the necessity of introducing outside engineers to undertake this work. This will considerably facilitate the introduction of bulk handling, owing to the ease with which the new system can be dove-tailed into the old by the Chief Commissioner and his officers, without the confusion to railway management that would result from outside engineers being engaged to do the work.

"I have no doubt," Mr. Trefle went on, "that the steps taken by the Government will result in a large quantity of wheat being handled in bulk in the near future. It has now resolved itself into merely a question of putting the scheme into practice, and this must be done with the least possible dislocation to our existing railway facilities. There is at present ample shipping accommodation for handling a large quantity of wheat in bulk, but in this connection, too, caution must be shown at every step that we do not develop the bulk handling system more rapidly than shipping facilities are provided. I have every hope that as the system is developed the farmers will realise the wisdom of erecting co-operative elevators in country centres, which will be most essential to a complete scheme. To put the position briefly, it is the Government's intention to go on as rapidly with the development of bulk handling as sound business principles will permit. To attempt to suddenly change from an existing system to a new would cause losses in several directions. Such a course would seriously interfere with our existing railway facilities, and would bring about a change too sudden for shipowners to meet the altered necessities of what is entirely a new idea for Australia."

CHINAMAN'S DEATH.

FACE EATEN BY A DOG.

TEMORA, Tuesday.

THE WHALES.

LOOKING FOR THEIR HAUNTS

THE YEARLY MIGRATION.

The whaling gun-boat Lionel slipped quietly into port on Monday last prior to setting forth on an extended cruise to the islands, in search of the haunts of whales. She will leave Sydney to-day for New Caledonia and the Chesterfield Islands, on her novel mission.

It is now just about a year since the Norwegian whaling fleet, consisting of the factory ship Loch Tay, and the gun-boats Campbell, Sorrel and Lionel, commenced whaling operations off our coast. The company chose Jervis Bay as its headquarters, and for a time met with a fair amount of success. Before long, however, it was found that the whales merely passed our coast at certain periods of the year, proceeding north to some unknown haunt, and returning again later on. It was soon decided that the industry off the New South Wales coast offered no prospects of permanency, and the fleet, finding the slack period setting in, weighed anchors and proceeded to test the New Zealand waters.

After a few months spent in New Zealand it was found that the industry here was also only of a temporary nature, and the fleet again returned to Jervis Bay. During the last month the whalers are reported to have met with a fair amount of success, but it is stated that the results have not been of a nature to warrant the permanent employment of such a large and expensive fleet as the Loch Tay and her gun-boats.

The regular migration and return of the whales along the New South Wales coast has been occupying the minds of those concerned in the venture at Jervis Bay, and it is confidently believed that there is some favourite haunt away to the north where the whales foregather. A perusal of some old records on whaling in Australian waters, revealed the fact that, many years ago, whalers had met with considerable success off New Caledonia and in the Chesterfield Isles. After studying these records, those concerned have arrived at the conclusion that the haunt which draws the whales north from the Antarctic every year is probably situated in the vicinity of the Chesterfield Isles.

It is on the strength of this opinion that the Lionel is being despatched on her present mission. She is in charge of Captain Larsen, who will be given a free hand to cruise round and find out as much as possible on this head. The grounds in the vicinity of New Caledonia will also be tested, and, if these are found to be satisfactory, negotiations will probably be entered into with the French Government with a view to the fleet operating there.

If the Chesterfield Islands prove to be all that was hoped from them, some difficulty would be experienced in carrying on the industry there, as the group consists of 13 small islets, offering no suitable harbour or shelter for a vessel of the Loch Tay type. The Lionel will, however, make a full investigation of the group, and the results of her search should be highly interesting and should throw considerable light on the habits of the whales and their strange annual migration.

LATE SIR WILLIAM LYNE.

A PRIVATE FUNERAL.

REPRESENTATIVE GATHERING.

The remains of the late Sir William Lyne were interred in the Church of England section of the South Head Cemetery yesterday afternoon.

In accordance with family wishes, there was as little ceremony as possible, the friends of Sir William following him to the grave as a private citizen. There was a gathering of near relations and a few warm personal friends of the deceased at Chaceley, Double Bay, but the majority of those paying their last respects waited outside for the cortege to move, or joined it near the cemetery. The body was encased in a coffin of polished oak, with silver handles and mountings. The chief mourners were Lady Lyne, Mrs. M'Causland, Mrs. H. H. Carey, and Mrs. Fetherstonhaugh (daughters of deceased), and Mr. Carey (son-in-law). Senator Sir Albert Gould represented the Federal Ministry, and Mr. McGowen (Minister for Labour), and Mr. Edden (Minister for Mines), two of the deceased's oldest political friends, represented the State Ministry. Mr. Wade attended to pay the respects for the State Opposition.

The funeral was comparatively small, but very representative. All political parties, among whom the late gentlemen had many warm personal friends, were represented. In addition, there were representatives of the trades unions, the Chambers of Manufactures, Commonwealth and State departments, and prominent commercial houses. The officiating clergymen were Canon Willoughby Flower, of St. Mark's, Darling Point, and the Rev. G. North Ash, of Neutral Bay.

When the coffin was carried from the house and placed in the hearse, four troopers, who were present in charge of Sergeant Hale, to officially represent the police, headed the funeral procession to South Head, and as the cortege moved away, various motor-cars, cabs, and other vehicles, including a four-horse drag, joined in the procession to the graveside. The funeral moved by way of South Head-road, passing on its route Lyne Park, which was out of reclaimed land by the late Mr. E. W. O'Sullivan, when Works Minister, and named after his chief.

There were two little incidents of note on the way to the cemetery. When passing the naval training house on Old South Head-road, the cadets were drawn up in two files, and standing to attention with their officer. As the procession turned into New South Head-road towards the cemetery, the cadets cut across the grounds quickly, and were again standing to attention as the funeral passed through the gates. The other little incident was provided by a gang of overhead line repairers, who formed up on the approach of the hearse, and stood respectfully by bare-headed till the procession passed by.

Among others present were:—Mr. C. Oliver, C.M.G., and Senator Oakes, representing the trustees of the Sydney Cricket Ground; Mr. Nesbitt, representing the Lord Mayor; Mr. H. Richardson (Tramway Commissioner), Mr. H. E. Pratten (chairman of the Chamber of Manufactures), Sir Normand MacLaurin; the following members of the New South Wales Assembly: Mr. Cohen, Dr. Donaldson, Mr. M'Laurin, Mr. Bell, Mr. Fitzpatrick, Mr. Perry, and Mr. Willis. The following members of the Legislative Council:—Mr. W. C. Hill, Mr. G. Farn, Mr. J. Hepher, Mr. E. Farrer, Mr. F. Bryant, Dr. Nash, Sir Charles Mackellar; the following members of the House of Representatives: Mr. R. Howe, Mr. G. Burns, Mr. R. Orchard, and Mr. D. Watkins; also Mr. Charles Lyne (brother), Mr. B. The following, among others, sent wreaths:—Messrs. G. and C. AUSTRALIAN WEATHER.

THE "HERALD" MAP.

The high pressure which on Monday covered the greater part of the continent has moved about 800 miles eastward, while the centre shows a slight south-easterly movement. It is now centrally situated between Bourke and Brisbane.

The extensive and energetic Antarctic disturbance is still over the Southern Ocean. It has surged slightly northwards, however, its most northern isobar in Western Australia reaching as far north as Geraldton and Port Augusta in South Australia.

The high pressure to the north of New Zealand has made very little movement since Monday.

Fine weather with cold, frosty nights should rule over the greater part of New South Wales, with the exception of a few showers on the south-west slopes, with westerly to north-westerly winds.

Ocean Forecast.—North-west gales and rough seas over the southern ocean and west coast of Western Australia.

NORTHERN MINERS.

NEWCASTLE, Tuesday.

A special meeting of the Miners' Delegate Board is to be held to-morrow to consider the grievances which have broken out at Pelaw-Main colliery, and other matters which have cropped up since the last meeting of the board in Maitland. The trouble at Pelaw-Main is regarded as serious by the miners' president. The manager of the Pelaw-Main colliery has refused to make up the wages to 12s 4d per shift of machine men who are engaged in what is termed "deficient places." Mr. D. Watson has expressed the position as intolerable, and has hinted that it might suggest action similar to that taken in 1910. He, however, would not advise that course.

Mr. Watson has also had an interview with the manager of the Dudley colliery. A three year agreement was drawn up, and was ready to be signed by both parties, when a hitch occurred. The signing has consequently been delayed.

MARKET-STREET CROSSING.

More trouble is brewing over the Market-street crossing. Ever since the first batch of prosecutions, the Railway Department has been taking the names of persons who have walked over the crossing. Quite recently a well-known member of Parliament used the crossing. His name was taken, and he and several others have been summoned to appear at the court next Monday week.

BAD ROADS.

For some time past the main streets of Newcastle and the roads leading to Maitland and Wallsend have been in a bad state for traffic. Motorists bound from Newcastle to Maitland prefer to travel through Cardiff and Minmi, which is a distance twice as long as the direct route. From the time the traveller passes Mayfield, on the Maitland road, he meets bad parts for several miles. On the Wallsend road the worst part is at Jesmond Hill, where in wet weather it is almost impossible to come through without the vehicle sinking to the axles in the ruts and mud. The condition of the road on that hill after a fall of rain is deplorable. As soon as one passes into the Lake Macquarie Shire the difference is noticed. The roads there are a credit to the council.

MINERS' WAGES BOARD.

The second sitting of the Miners' Wages Board was held to-day, with Judge Edmunds as chairman, and Messrs. N. J. Clarke and E. Peters sitting as representatives of the proprietors and miners respectively. Mr. Kelynack, instructed by Mr. Millard, of Sparke and Millard, appeared on behalf of the proprietors; and Mr. A. Lewis for the Colliery Employees' Federation.

A number of witnesses were examined on the small coal question.

GERMAN HUMOUR.

The second of the series of German lectures inaugurated by the French and German lectures committee was delivered in the Royal Society's rooms the other evening by Pastor Schenk. Mr. E. G. Waterhouse presided over a large attendance. The subject of the lecture was "Der Humor des Volkes," and Pastor Schenk related many amusing incidents in illustration of his points. Humour, as revealed in the customs of the people, and as revealed in their folk-lore, was fully dealt with. Humour, said the pastor, had centred in the little towns. Some of the people had journeyed to other parts of the world, and returned with all sorts of fables, which took the form of exaggerated accounts of adventures. These were often collected in book form, and one of the most famous was that relating to Baron Munchausen.

The widening of Macquarie-street from Government House gates to Circular Quay, the cost of which is estimated at £15,000, was discussed by the works committee of the City Council yesterday. The Lord Mayor recommended that the officers be instructed to prepare plans and specifications, so that tenders might be invited. The suggestion was adopted.

FINANCIAL.

BRITISH EMPIRE TRADE MARK.

The proposal for a British Empire trade-mark is being vigorously opposed by British manufacturers. They do not question the patriotic motives of the promoters, but submit that their proposals are impracticable and dangerous—most especially the proposal that the association's inspectors are to visit works and manufactories in order to ascertain the proportion of purely British ingredients contained in any goods intended to bear the trade-mark. The protest is signed by the following companies, among others:—J. and P. Coats, Ltd.; Horrockses, Crewdson and Co., Ltd.; the Calico Printers' Association, Ltd.; the Fine Cotton Spinners' and Doublers' Association, Ltd.; Rylands and Sons, Ltd.; Bleachers' Association, Ltd.; the Bradford Dyers' Association, Ltd.; Joshua Hoyle and Sons, Ltd.; The Birmingham Steel Arms Company, Ltd.; Guest, Keen, and Nettlefolds, Ltd.; Kynoch, Ltd; Tanges, Ltd.; Arth. Guinness, Son, and Co., Ltd.; Bass, Ratcliff, and Gretton, Ltd.; James Buchanan and Co., Ltd.; John Jameson and Son, Ltd.; Schweppes, Ltd.; Cadbury Brothers, Ltd.; J. S. Fry and Sons, Ltd.; Rowntree and Co., Ltd.; Brunner, Mond, and Co., Ltd.; Lever Brothers, Ltd.; Joseph Crosfield and Sons, Ltd.; the United Alkali Company, Ltd.; William Gossage and Sons, Ltd.; Bryant and May, Ltd.; Huntley and Palmers, Ltd.; Peek, Frean, and Co., Ltd.; W. and R. Jacob and Co., Ltd.; Cross and Blackwell, Ltd.; J. and J. Colman, Ltd., Docker Brothers, Ltd., and others.

CASE AGAINST THE TRADE MARK.

The following is a resume of the case against the Trade Mark:—

1. The proposed mark "is a Word Trade Mark;" "the design," as the promoters say, "is insignificant." But the words themselves are words in which the association can claim no monopoly; they can be used by any person, just as if the British Empire trade mark did not exist. The Empire trade mark, therefore, would not be distinctive, and its use on goods would make it easier and safer for foreign manufacturers to imitate them.

2. At the present time there is, in most countries, no legislation to authorise or protect the registration or use of a common mark of this character. In such countries, therefore (including, at the present time, some of the most important countries of the world), the identical British Empire mark could be used with impunity by foreign manufacturers.

3. Even in cases where the genuine Empire mark was used on genuine Empire products, the addition of such a common mark to similar goods of different makers would facilitate fraudulent "passing off" of one British maker's goods for those of another, and would seriously diminish the value of the private trade marks of those who used it.

4. Many of the most important British manufacturers have already stated that they will not use the Empire trade mark for the reasons given above. It would probably be used principally by the less-known manufacturers in England and the Colonies. As it is not intended by its promoters that there shall be any test of quality, it would doubtless, in many cases, be used upon very bad goods indeed. The result would be that the Empire trade mark would acquire the reputation of indicating inferior goods, and cause grave injury to the reputation of the British Empire as a manufacturing community.

5. At the same time, manufacturers who decided not to use the mark upon their goods would be open to all kinds of misrepresentation by unscrupulous competitors, foreign and British, who would endeavour to establish the belief that such goods were not, as a matter of fact, of British origin.

6. The difficulty of controlling the use of the mark on produce or on small articles in the retail trade is insuperable. As was said by the Produce Commissioner of New Zealand, "You can perhaps control the marking of a case of butter, but how are you going to control the marking of half-a-pound?" The suggestion to issue labels or showcards to retailers or to allow the use of the mark on invoices is so impracticable as to demonstrate the futility of the whole proposal.

7. It is difficult to decide what constitutes "British origin;" what proportion of the component parts or ingredients of the article must be wholly or partly made in the Empire. It is proposed that for each branch of industry in each portion of the Empire shall be appointed a "committee of standards," who shall lay down regulations as to what constitutes "British origin," and that all users of the Empire Trade Mark shall allow periodical visits of "inspectors from the association," who will examine the goods in course of manufacture, investigate the provenance of the raw materials and partly manufactured components, verify the proportions employed, and certify the right to use the Empire Mark. It is obvious that this machinery would be costly and give rise to much friction, and it is doubtful whether manufacturers would long consent to the visits of the inspectors.

8. The cost of working the association would be enormous. It is proposed to advertise the mark in all the markets of the world, to promote special legislation in the Colonies and in foreign countries, to register the trade mark for all classes of goods in every country, to detect and take proceedings against all imitators and infringers, to have committees of standards, and large numbers of inspectors. The fees for the use of the mark would inevitably be very high if all these necessary branches of activity were to be adequately maintained.

9. The whole object of the Empire Mark can be obtained by those manufacturers who desire it by marking their goods "Made in England," "Made in Canada," etc.

It would certainly seem that the manufacturers' view, that the case against the trade mark is unanswerable, is the correct one.

DOUBLE TAXATION.

"Victim" writes:—

Sir,—Can you tell whether it is possible to recover income tax paid by me in 1911 on the shares of a company which had already paid income tax on its profits? At the income tax office I was told that recovery could only be effected by the company. I then forwarded my claim to its manager, who replied that he would send it on to the Taxation Commissioners, as he had sent on the claims of other shareholders. But he had not been able to get the satisfaction even of a reply. The press is usually potent when it exposes the shortcomings of authorities. At least the Government might have the courtesy to reply, even if they had only to say that they had no money, and that they are leaving it to their successors to pay up, it may be with the court costs of recovery added; or to give some other equally candid answer. The amount of a similar claim I recovered from the English taxation officers with much less delay.

The Taxation Commissioners were yesterday approached for information on the subject matter of our correspondent's complaint. "In this instance," said Mr. Spiller, "there is obviously some mistake. It is true that the Commissioners cannot make a refund to the individual; they can make a refund only to the company. "Victim" states that the manager of the company in question forwarded the claim to the department, as he had done previously with others, but that in this particular case no reply was vouchsafed. Does it not occur to "Victim" that the communication from the company might have been mislaid? We are not infallible." We would suggest that application be again made to the Commissioners through the company, when, no doubt, a prompt reply will be received.

SARGENTS, LIMITED.

The report of the above company covers the six months ended June 30. It shows a net profit of £9027, which, with £653 brought forward, made £9680 available. The directors recommend the payment of a 10 per cent. dividend—free of income tax—absorbing £4850, adding £3000 to the reserve fund, £1000 to dividend equalisation account, leaving £831 to be carried forward.

ORMIS METAL MANUFACTURING COMPANY, LIMITED.

Mr. F. A. Henriques, chairman of directors of the Ormiston Metal Company, Ltd., the vendor company, writes:—

In reply re patents, I beg to state that our application for Commonwealth patents was [illegible] on December 21, 1912. We have received notice that the application has been accepted, and any further information under this head will be supplied by our patent attorney, Mr. William J. Spruson.

But let us be quite clear on this matter. Mr. Henriques says, "that the application has been accepted." Are we right in interpreting this to mean that the application has merely been lodged and received by the Commissioner for Patents, and that no actual patent has yet been granted? If this be so, what is the vendor company selling? The prospectus, which is the contract between the vendors and the investing public, would indicate that the Commonwealth patent rights are to be transferred to the new company in consideration of 25,000 fully paid up shares, and £2500 in cash. Do these rights exist, or is the company merely offering to sell a chance of getting them—a sort of a ticket in a lottery? We would be glad if Mr. Henriques would make himself absolutely clear in this matter, for it is vital to the success of the flotation.

NEWCASTLE COALMINING COMPANY, LIMITED.

The report of the above company covers the six months ended June 30. It shows a profit of £5088, against £6730 for the previous half-year, and £6481 for the half-year ended June 30, 1912. The reduction in profits is to be accounted for by various causes, one of which is the extra cost at Whitburn, consequent upon the seam not having reached normal conditions; and another factor being the reduced output from the "A" pit. To the profit of £5088 is added balance brought forward, £3476, making together £8546. Dividend of 5s per share absorbs £2500, and, after adding £500 to renewal account, and writing off £3000 from mining property, the balance, £2564, is carried forward. The capital is £100,000, and, adding renewal account £1754, profit and loss balance £8564, bank £5278, sundry creditors £5198, and Whitburn land sales account £714, the balance-sheet total is £121,509. The mining property stands at £103,003, against £104,905 six months ago.

COMMERCIAL.

THE MARKETS.

Grocery lines reported a fair turnover in distributing business yesterday, but market business was dull. Sardines were firm for all brands, and were selling at full rates. Prices of salmon were rather uncertain, because the new prices were expected. Nothing definite was known, and it may be said that up to the present the quotations which have been made have been purely of a speculative character. Prices of Gillard's pickles advanced /3, to 15/ per dozen. The reduction in the prices of some brands of condensed milk was causing anxious inquiries whether there would be any movement in other brands, and it was felt that the position should be at once made known.

The samples of tea by the mail showed a little higher cost than those of the previous week, thus confirming cables, but the teas showing the big rise will not arrive till next mail.

Metal lines were quiet. There was still a demand for No. 10 black wire at £9/5/ to £9/7/6. No. 8 was very plentiful, and sales were made at £7/17/6. There was free buying of Kelly's flint-edge axes between town houses. Small axes, 3½lb to 4½lb, though they had been replenished, had been quickly bought up, and stocks were still low. Letters by the mail advised that the Continental markets were weak, and the English markets were suffering considerably through Continental firms offering manufactured and semi-manufactured lines of iron and steel at a price very much below those current in Great Britain. British manufacturers, according to their custom, were reluctant to show their hand, and make right away the rates necessary to secure and retain their business. When quotations are requested from manufacturers it only means the beginning of bargaining, and as a rule the orders are placed at a very much lower figure than what was first quoted. Hence, with markets so sensitive and fiery, it was almost impossible to forecast even the possibilities for any time ahead. Some firms were looking forward to a revival and a better state of trade in the autumn. Cables show that there was keen competition among the British and Continental houses for new business, although very little was offering. As to English wire netting, the Norwich manufacturers, judging by their quotations, were not well placed with business, but with regard to Warrington the position was somewhat different, as the firms there still had orders on hand, and prices were not as low as those of the Norwich men. Ryland's 42 x 1¼ x 17, A grade, was quoted at £28/2/6, c.i.f. and e.

The chief item of interest to the sellers of whitelead was the cable news that the Convention in Europe had put up the prices by 10/, quoting £28 per ton f.o.b. Locally prices firmed, and the price of Champion's went up to 37/6 and 38/ per cwt according to quantity. Other brands were practically a negligible factor. Linseed oil was in fair demand, principally from the country. Town business was dull. For distributing lots of Blundell's occasionally 3/6 and 3/8 were paid, but generally the price was 3/6½ and 3/8½. Meggitt's oil had sales reported amounting to 6000 gallons of raw and boiled. Distributing rates in drums being, raw 3/5, boiled 3/7. Turpentine was slow at 3/ for Pinetree, and 3/3 for Pratt's.

Branbags did not advance any futher yesterday. What had happened was that last week some strong holders bought up everything offering from weak holders. Stocks, on spot, being thus concentrated, the holders felt themselves able to advance prices, and were the more inclined to do so as they were loaded with many bales bought at considerably above yesterday's prices. But they were not able to force them at all the way they desired. In some quarters 6/3 was asked for spot lots, but 6/ was also on offer. The fact was that there was a disinclination to buy. The country was not operating, and, in fact, there will be no considerable demand from that quarter till October. In the meantime something approaching 2300 bales of branbags have to be carried, in addition to those which are on the water. Calcutta quoted 5/11½ c.i.f. and e for shipments October to December, and for these shipments merchants here asked 6/ slings. Further away—shipments January to June—with a Calcutta price of 5/9¾ c.i.f. and e., speculative sellers offered to quit at 5/8¼. Cornsacks were firm. A sale was made on spot at 7/1. For season's delivery 6/8 net on rails, or 6/10½ usual terms, was the price at which many sales were made. Calcutta quoted, as lowest, 6/5¼ c.i.f. and e for season's shipment. Woolpacks were slow at 2/7 ex ship, and 2/7½ ex store.

There has been a firmer tendency noticeable in the hop market, consequent on reports that the English yield will be affected by aphis. The yield is expected to be so much below that of last year that English factors have made inquiries on the prospects of obtaining some stocks thence. German hops are also affected by the pest. The American market, influenced by the same reports, has moved upwards. Tasmanian advices state that the quotations remain about the same, but growers are showing very little inclination to offer their hops. The exceptionally dry weather in the island State is causing concern and growers do not speak hopefully of the prospects of the yield for next season. Malt is without alteration, with the usual trade demand.

AVERAGE METAL PRICES.

Cables received by the Australian Metal Company and Elders Metal and Mercantile Proprietary, Ltd., give the following average metal prices for July, the prices for July, of 1912, being also stated for comparison:—

THE CORNSACK PROCLAMATION.

Jute merchants desire to know what the withdrawal of the proclamation of January, 1911, relating to the 200lb cornsack exactly means. Does it mean that the old standard sack will be allowed to be imported, provided that, when filled, it does not contain a weight greater than 200lb. The old standard, 44in x 26½in, weighing 2¼lb when filled with maize, oats, onions, potatoes, and some kinds of manure, would not weigh beyond the prohibited weight, and could thus be carried on the back. But at present the importation of this sack is prohibited, the new standard being 41in x 23in, weighing 2¼lb. But while the importation of the old standard sack is prohibited by the Commonwealth the State does not prohibit its manufacture locally. Manufacturers simply buy the material in Calcutta, bring it to Australia, and cut it and sew it here. This is a form of protection, which the Legislature, when it refrained from dissenting from the regulation, never intended should be its effect. What importers ask is that there should be no favouritism. Either prohibit the manufacture of the old standard sack in the Commonwealth, or if that is not possible, then allow its importation, providing by a further regulation that it must not contain more than 200lb when carried on the back.

The amount of wool manifested to arrive at Darling Harbour yesterday totalled 516 bales.

EXPORT MARKET.

AUSTRALASIAN WOOL EXPORTS.

The exports of wool from Australasian ports during July of the current and past season, according to Dalgety and Co., Ltd., may be compared as follow:—

	1913. Bales.	1912. Bales.	Inc. Bales.	Dec. Bales.
New South Wales	16,001	15,496	1,505	—
Victoria	3,404	9,532	—	6,128
South Australia	663	1,222	—	559
Queensland	43,904	9,028	34,976	—
Western Australia	1,250	1,843	—	593
Tasmania	—	—	—	—
Commonwealth	66,212	37,011	36,481	7,280
New Zealand	17,913	14,927	2,986	—
Australasia	84,125	51,938	39,467	7,280

There has thus been a net increase for the Commonwealth of 29,201 bales, and for New Zealand of 2986 bales, or a total of 32,187 bales.

BREADSTUFFS.

STRONG OPENING—WEAK CLOSING.

The wheat market opened strong yesterday, with very free buying of parcels at a farthing advance on the rates of the previous day. Up to 3/7¾ alongside was paid, and at this price about 32,000 bags were bought, mostly in parcels of 5000 and 6000 bags. Towards the close of the day the buying fell away to nothing, and buyers eased their prices. The day closed with buyers 3/7½, and sellers 3/8. The country sold also more freely, and a large amount of stored wheat was taken in, principally western, for which 3/7½ ex trucks Sydney was paid. Generally speaking country lots were bought at 3/6¾ to 3/7½ ex trucks Sydney, according to district.

Flour was quiet, the association quoting £8/15/ per ton.

LIVE STOCK MARKETS.

MELBOURNE, Tuesday.

In the Live Stock Market to-day 24,000 fat sheep were yarded, consisting chiefly of good and prime qualities, crossbreds largely predominating. The market opened brisk, when prices were fully maintained, and in view of the additional competition of a couple of buyers for shipment to Tasmania and Western Australia, prices gradually hardened to fully 6d per head higher. Later in the day, however, biddings were not sustained, and prices receded to about equal to late rate, closing dull and weaker. Quotations:—Prime crossbred wethers, from 22/ to 25/, extra 25/6 to 28/, good 19/ to 21/, second 16/6 to 18/; prime crossbred ewes, 19/ to 22/, extra 23/ to 27/3, good 16/6 to 18/, second and inferior from 12/; prime merino wethers, 21/ to 22/6, good 18/ to 20/, useful light weights 15/ to 17/, second and inferior from 13/; prime merino ewes 17/ to 19/, a few higher; good 14/ to 16/, others from 10/6.

PRODUCE.

DAIRY.

The dairy section of the Sussex-street market was almost featureless yesterday. The demand was quiet, and prices generally unchanged.

Eggs commanded a fair amount of attention. New-laid suburban varieties sold briskly at from 1/ to 1/1 per dozen. Case eggs were weak at from /10½ to /11½ per dozen.

Holders of cheese were uncertain as to the position of the market. Some were of the opinion that quotations should be reduced to /6½ per lb, in order that some of the surplus stocks might be cleared. Others, however, pointed out that it would make no difference to the sales if prices were lowered to /6 per lb. It was not, according to these merchants, a question of price, but simply one of the public taste. The Brisbane and Melbourne markets were said to be glutted.

There was a good inquiry for bacon. Sides moved out at from /8¼ to /9¼, and middles at from /9 to /11¼ per lb.

Butter was in strong hands at 118/ per cwt., delivered in boxes.

PUNTING REFUSE.

It is likely that the City Council will solve the problem of the disposal of the refuse not dealt with by incineration by punting it out to sea. In a minute submitted to the health committee of the council yesterday the Lord Mayor stated that, owing to the conditions prevailing at the destructor and the Moore Park tip, the only satisfactory method of dealing with the question of refuse removal was to enlarge the sphere of operations as regarded punting. The point was whether the council should maintain its own fleet of punts or let the work by contract. The system of letting by contract seemed to be the most satisfactory, but in order to secure the best results the contract would have to be let for a longer period than had hitherto been the case. He recommended that comprehensive specifications be prepared, as a preliminary to calling for tenders, and this course was adopted.

MANUFACTURER'S DEATH.

On Thursday morning Mr. Percy Carter Freeman, a director of S. Freeman and Sons, Harris-street, Ultimo, was burnt about the face through an explosion, and died at Manly on Sunday. The deceased was examining an acetylene whitewash spray in the office of the Ultimo factory. He struck a match, and the gas in the holder exploded. He was 45 years of age, and unmarried.

A LISTLESS MARKET.

ALL SECTIONS AFFECTED.

WAITING FOR LONDON.

An extremely listless market ruled yesterday morning. That was only to be expected. The London Stock Exchange being closed on Saturday and Monday, there was no information to hand by cable, and operators, consequently, had nothing to guide them. The result was a stagnant market. That is clearly seen by the very few transactions recorded—one stock each being dealt in in the case of copper and silver, whilst only two Ardlethan stocks were dealt in.

In the copper division, the special report of the general manager of the Mount Oxide mine, published in the "Herald," brought the shares into notice, and several transactions were recorded. Barriers were dull, whilst gold stocks were very quiet. In Ardlethan stocks, Carpathia and Wild Cherry commanded fairly steady support.

The market livened up somewhat in the afternoon, especially in the case of Ardlethan tin stocks, and a considerable amount of business was recorded. This was particularly the case with Carpathia, which hardened from 20/6 on six weeks' terms at noon to 22/6 cash, finishing up with sales on prompt delivery at sellers' risk at 22/10½.

The marked recovery in the value of the shares is believed to be due to the fact that telegrams from Ardlethan stated that the copper carbonates that appeared last week in one of the shafts has disappeared, having been passed through. Last week the shares were "bumped" down when the appearance of the carbonates was reported. Firm business was recorded in Wild Cherry, whilst Ardlethan Options were in better request.

In the case of copper stocks, Mount Oxide Options again changed hands at a slightly improved rate. Barriers were represented by solid business in British (old), B.H. North, and B.H. Block 10.

MINING NOTES.

The No. 1 plant of the Turon River Gold Dredging Company, in a run of 136 hours, obtained 14oz.

The week's output of tin oxide by the Tongkah Harbour Company, was 32 tons.

The manager of the Black Range West mine reports breaking down the reef 4ft wide, showing gold.

In his fortnightly report, dated July 18, the manager of the Mungana Mining Company states that 428 tons of ore were despatched. The ore from the south-east pillar (410ft level) is of much better grade, and its value is compensating for the small supply.

The manager of the Golden Springs mine reports under date of 2nd inst:—"Water lowered in main shaft to 111ft, and in No. 2 shaft to 175ft. Have diverted portion of creek to prevent flood water flowing into mine. Since this was done, and baling started at lime shaft, water has lowered in main shaft at the rate of 6ft per day."

The crosscut from the Marvel shaft (Mount David gold mine) was last week extended a further 11ft, making the total distance 43ft. The driving was through very hard felsite, and the face is still in the same. The country is underlying at a steeper angle than was allowed for when calculating the distance to be driven from the shaft; hence the length of crosscut being greater than at first expected. The No. 2 main shaft was sunk 6ft to 521ft, and is down to what will be the top of the No. 2 plat.

The manager of the New Burragorang Silver-mining Company reports for the fortnight ended August 2, having sunk the Clark shaft a further 40ft, total 691ft. During the fortnight the lode pinched to nine inches, but is widening again in the bottom, and shows a little ore through it. Preparations are now being made for the installation of the new winding engine. He is also getting the shaft ready for the heavy rails.

The mine manager of the Great Peak Silver-mining Company (Yerranderrie) has forwarded his weekly report to the legal manager as follows:—"Shaft sunk 6ft for the week, total depth 666ft, lode 2ft, formation showing ore, and looks more promising since last report. The footwall is still going off very steep, and underlying more westerly. It appears as though there is a roll in the footwall, thereby altering its course, which probably will be only for a few feet. Present indications point to a change for the better. The country is very hard, but breaks well. Sample of ore being forwarded."

The Chillagoe, Ltd., reports for the week ended August 2:—Einasleigh Stoping No. 4 level, ore raised 750 tons, averaging 6¾ per cent.; No. 5 level, opening out drives north and south off crosscut, south drive driven 12ft, average 6¼ per cent.; north drive driven 11ft, average 5¼ per cent. Lode here appears to be faulted. Now boring in country rock. Will continue drives. Muldiva:—Eclipse: Winze No. 4 down 140ft from top level. Pump keeping water out easily. Paisley—Linedale: Tunnel extended to 48ft, ground a little softer on right side, and small soakage of water in bottom on that side. Ly-ee-Moon: Prospecting shaft down 31ft in lode formation, with bunches of good ore through it."

The Bourke's Hill Tin-sluicing Company has declared a dividend of 6d per share, payable on August 26.

MINING IN THE STATE.

GLEN INNES, Tuesday.

Mr. A. P. Moline, manager of the Y—Water Tin-mining Company, Emmaville, has been appointed manager of the Cock's Pioneer gold mines, near Wangaratta, Victoria. He is succeeded at Emmaville by Mr. H. Warlow Davies, of Broken Hill.

THE BARRIER MINES.

BROKEN HILL, Tuesday.

At the B.H. South mine, though the diamond drilling at the 1070ft level has proved more ore in section H.I., the hole has gone out west of the crosscut to test the country west of the footwall. The bore has been put in 155ft, and most of the way shows good ore for at least 52ft, with most of the other ground in mineralised country of fair grade. Twenty feet of ore from 24ft went 18.4 p.c. lead and 3.3oz silver, and from 138ft to 150ft the core assayed 10.6 p.c. lead, 4oz silver, and 12.1 p.c. zinc.

On the South Blocks mine last week (Zinc Corporation), the plat at the 1180ft level was further prepared in the main lode; the north level at 1050ft was taken to 161ft in 10.5 per cent. ore. The new winze from the 900ft level, at 10ft showed 15 per cent. sulphides. Low-grade ore showed at the 525ft level in the main south drive at 531ft. Driving in the zinc lode (522ft and 635ft levels) showed improved results. Diamond drilling west, at the 763ft level, was carried to 16ft, and showed country rock, with splashes of sulphides.

On the British mine, for the past fortnight the lead mill treated 8591 tons crude ore, and produced 1145 tons lead concentrate, containing 26,106oz silver, 716 tons lead, and 86 tons zinc; also 5986 tons zinc tailings were produced, and 593 tons slime.

WESTERN AUSTRALIAN MINES.

KALGOORLIE, Tuesday.

The management of Chaffer's has cabled to London:—"No. 16 level, main west crosscut extended to total distance of 468ft on No. 3 lode. North drive extended to 33ft, assay value 31/ per ton. South drive on No. 3 lode driven 53ft, assay value 120/ per ton, over a width of 60in. No. 15 level, main west crosscut extended to 158ft."

AMALGAMATED ZINC.

MELBOURNE, Tuesday.

Amalgamated Zinc (de Bavays), Ltd., return for the four weeks ended July 26:—Tailings treated, 48,780 tons; zinc concentrates produced 12,192 tons, lead concentrates produced 133 tons. Estimated income from all sources (taking spelter at £22 per ton), £35,474; total working expenditure (including cost of tailings treated), £17,234; estimated profit (taking spelter at £22 per ton), £12,498.

HAMPDEN-CLONCURRY COPPER MINE.

SMELTING RESUMED.

MELBOURNE, Tuesday.

Hampden-Cloncurry Copper Mine's smelting return for July: Ore treated 1418 tons, blister copper produced 171 tons, containing 169 tons fine copper, 46oz gold, and 543oz silver. The reduced tonnage due to cessation of operations owing to labour troubles. Everything now running smoothly.

SOUTHERN CROSS TIN MINE.

The mine manager of the Southern Cross Tin Mining Company has forwarded his weekly report as follows:—

"No. 1 shaft: South drive advanced 7ft, total distance 20ft. There is no change to report. The drive is still being driven in slate country.

No. 2 shaft: Sunk 3ft, total depth 24ft. The lode is still the full width of the shaft, neither wall showing.

Eastern outcrop: Have started to sink a new shaft 20ft south of outcrop, which is now down 12ft. The shoot of ore worked on to this outcrop is dipping south, so expect to strike the lode at 20ft with this shaft.

Good progress is being made with the excavation for the battery and concentrating plant. The first consignment of the battery plant has arrived at Ardlethan. Good progress is also being made with the dam excavation, which is now down 4ft perpendicular.

CARPATHIA TIN MINE.

The mine manager reports for the week ended August 1:—

"No. 1 Shaft.—Crosscut: Since last report extended crosscut 8ft to 27ft. The face is mixed, and comprises ore and porphyry.

"North Drive.—During week started driving north off the 100ft chamber, and am now in 7ft. From the chamber this drive (which is 7 x 4) is in solid ore of milling values. I am carrying the footwall on the eastern side of this drive.

"No. 3 Shaft.—For the week this shaft has been sunk 7ft to 56ft. The lode is the full size of the shaft (8 x 4), with ore remaining on each side. This ore, being high grade, enables me to class selected ore from the milling grade.

"No. 4 Shaft.—Having sunk 8¼ft here for the week, this shaft is now 109¼ft. Since last report I have met with rich green and blue carbonates of copper. This ore covered half of the shaft, and was surrounded by kaolin, and carried tin values up to 62.5 per cent. tin oxide. Indications at present show copper ore decreasing and milling ore increasing, from which I am picking selected ore. The lode is the full size of the shaft, with kaolin on both sides. Since last report I have despatched a 10-ton parcel of selected ore to Sydney."

The mine manager telegraphs:—"New find east of assay office, specimen from which 64 per cent."

AMALGAMATED HILL END.

The managing director reports:—"North level, from the main tunnel, driven 121ft, total distance 357ft, carrying two veins, one showing gold now and then, but no regular values. Now altering the course of the level, so as to strike the Star of Peace vein some distance south of the Star of Peace shaft. As the level has reached the centre of the old gold zone of country, the site of the shaft, towards the sinking of which a Government subsidy has been granted, might now be fixed, and the shaft can go down below the main tunnel level, while the main drive is making for the Star of Peace shaft. When this shaft is reached connection between three shafts and two tunnels will be thereby made, and the work of crosscutting and otherwise exploring all the veins from the main tunnel, as well as from the new shaft below it, can then be proceeded with. By these means the country between Carrol and Board's and the Star of Peace shafts will be proved for 400ft to 800ft below the level from which the famous gold was obtained in the early 70's."

BROKEN HILL MILL RETURNS.

Junction North Broken Hill Mine.—Weekly report: Treated, crude ore 2031 tons, purchased ore 893 tons, slimes 880 tons, and sandy tailings 258 tons; produced, lead concentrates 675 tons, assaying 52.0 per cent. lead, 32.2oz silver, and 14.6 per cent. zinc; also 310 tons zinc concentrates, assaying 8.1 per cent. lead, 15.1oz silver, and 42 per cent. zinc; 365 tons second-grade concentrates produced included in above; also produced 230 tons. Mill ran 140 hours.

PARRAMATTA.

A MAN'S THROAT CUT.

On Tuesday morning John Stein, an old resident of Parramatta, walked into A. E. Marsden's saddler's shop and cut his throat while sitting in a chair there.

Stein went into the shop and asked for the proprietor, and on being told that Mr. Marsden had not yet arrived he sat in a chair. Shortly after a shop boy noticed that he was cutting his throat with a razor. Two of Mr. Marsden's sons succeeded in preventing the old man doing further mischief to himself. He was removed to the hospital, and it was found that a wound about 3½in across the neck had been inflicted.

THE HORSE SALES.

SLUGGISH BIDDING.

PREMIUM WINNER SOLD FOR 375 GUINEAS.

The annual horse sales were continued yesterday at the Royal Agricultural Grounds. Messrs. William Inglis and Son continued selling, and offered a long list of draught stallions. Throughout the morning bidding was slack, but fair average prices were secured all round. The best price obtained during the day was got by Mr. Edward Taylor, of Sunnyside, who placed the show champion Laird of Craigieburn under the hammer. The horse has proved himself a splendid sire, and at the horse show last week was awarded the premium of 100 guineas for the best stallion in the show. The price secured—375 guineas—is somewhat disappointing, more especially as the buyer takes the premium. If the conditions attaching to premiums are carried out, and the prize lifted at the end of the season, the puchase money will be reduced thereby to 275 guineas. The buyer was Mr. W. H. Tubman, of New Zealand. Competition for the stallion was rather limited. Bidding started at 200gns., and then proceeded slackly until the price at which he was knocked down was reached.

The demand for colts was indifferent. Some well-bred and stylish-looking youngsters were offered, but the prices obtained were below the average. Messrs. Mitchell and O'Brien, of New Zealand, came forward with a good string, by some of the best sires in New Zealand. The best price secured by them was 147½gns. for Prince Sandy, a four-year-old, by Prince Alexander out of Blossom. Freeman Bros., of South Canterbury, fared a trifle better. Bold Patrick, a big two-year-old, by Baron Bold, was secured by Mr. T. Christian, of Bathurst, for 105 gns.; Knight Errant, a fine, upstanding bay, brought 160gns., the buyer being Mr. G. Stringfellow, of New Zealand.

Mr. Small, of New Zealand, came forward with three fine colts. Defiance II. was easily the pick of the bunch, and as far as appearances went he was one of the best horses in the show. His owner, however, got a severe set-back when he failed to pass the veterinary, and get his certificate. The colt is by Baron Carlton out of Blossom, and is only four years old. He is remarkably well set up and is a very stylish mover. Bidding for him was not at all brisk, and he was knocked down to Mr. A. Grimm, of Grenfell for 75 guineas. Garthland Chief, another of Mr. Small's string, went to Mr. A. E. Wilcox, of Ulmarra, for 97½ guineas. Mr. J. D. Mitchell, also of New Zealand, topped the century with Shepherd Boy, by McCormicks Pride—Highland Queen. Mr. W. Sinclair, of Bathurst, was the purchaser, the price paid being 107 guineas.

Throughout the day the market was dull, and prices, generally, were below the mark. Buyers again showed no disposition to bid for any animal which had a suspicion of a blemish or to deal in youngsters of doubtful pedigree.

During the day W. Inglis and Son cleared 46 horses for £3084 7s 6d, being an average of about £67 per head. The same firm was very successful on the opening day, as practically all the sales recorded were made by them. For the two days, horses valued at £7177 10s were sold, the average price obtained being in the vicinity of £75.

The sales will be continued to-day at 10.30, when W. Inglis and Son will commence to clear their catalogue of draught mares.

SCHOOL INSPECTION.

SEVEN DOCTORS APPOINTED.

The Minister for Education (Mr. Carmichael) announced yesterday that seven additional doctors—four men and three women—had been appointed to the medical staff of the Department of Education. They are:—Dr. W. G. Dalsh, Dr. C. K. Smith, Dr. K. A. Colledge, and Dr. C. P. Stewart, Dr. M. E. Edelsten, Dr. G. C. Buzzard, and Dr. A. S. Robertson. With Dr. Willis, principal medical officer, Dr. Grace Boelke, and Dr. Sibyl Bevan, this brings the school medical staff up to ten.

"It will now be possible," said Mr. Carmichael, "to expedite school vaccination. Twenty-seven schools will be vaccinated in three days, and at this rate it will not take long to go through the whole of the metropolitan schools."

GREATER SYDNEY.

The Greater Sydney Commission continued the taking of evidence at Parliament House last evening, Professor Peden being in the chair.

Mr. R. Rose, representing the Drummoyne Progress Association, gave evidence. He considered that the area of Greater Sydney should comprise a radius of 12 miles from the General Post Office, on the southern side of the harbour only.

LATE SPORTING.

THE TURF.

Pony and galloway racing will be the attraction at Ascot this afternoon, when an interesting programme will be played out. The going is first-class, and, owing to the large number of entries, several of the events will have to be run in divisions. The customary transit service will be provided, specials landing visitors at the racecourse gates, while the ordinary traffic to Botany will also be available. The first race is timed to start at 1 p.m., and the results may be anticipated as under:—Maiden Handicap: First division, Odd Mark or Abstain; second division, Colayr or Mazurka. Flying Handicap: First division, Resolved or Noble Guard; second division, Master Famous or Auson. Fourteen-two Handicap: Sinfield, Edna, Lady Alicia. Approved Stakes: Half Moon, Elliana, Piumella. Fourteen Hands Handicap: Sinderby, Joy, Sir Moorefield. Fourteen-one Handicap: Hauriant, Phil, Speedy Meg. Ascot Handicap: Prince Lack, Horace, Bonester.

Messrs. Wm. Inglis and Son announce that, under instructions from the executors of the estate of the late Indian sportsman Sir A. A. Apcar, they will offer for sale, at their bazaar, Pitt-street, at noon on Monday next (11th inst.), the brood mare Martinique (1900), by Wallace or Bill of Portland (imp.) from Hortense, by Gang Forward (imp.), stinted to imported Petrillo, and due to foal next month; also three of her progeny, two of whom are colts by Petrillo and Linacre (imp.) respectively, and the other a gelding by Royal Artillery.

Ostea and the Acorn filly were yesterday struck out of the V.R.C. Oaks, 1913, at the office of the A.J.C.

The declaration of first forfeit yesterday for the Caulfield and Melbourne Cups leaves 145 in the former and 153 in the latter. The most notable withdrawals from the Caulfield Cup are Desire, Ladies' Man, Jacamar, Midnight Sun, Swagger, Antoinette, Conge d'Eslire, Valido, Wool, Rathlea, Woolerina, Ptah, True Spec, Graftolene, and Coolahburragundy; while the defections from the Melbourne Cup include Midnight Sun, Jacamar, Desire, Swagger, Antoinette, Bridge, The Lintie, Rathlea, True Spec, and Buneewa.

The withdrawals notified yesterday in connection with the Rosehill First August meeting were Barley Water, Rymerhild, and Equal out of all engagements: Loughrea and Lewis Rand out of the Hurdle Race; Comedietta out of the Maiden Handicap; Wirrilla out of the Auburn Handicap and Parramatta Handicap; and Rubecula and Wool out of the Rosehill Handicap.

Leaneena and Breowan have been struck out of the Rosehill Guineas, 1913.

A. Anderson, a well-known lightweight jockey was (telegraphs our Adelaide correspondent) thrown at Victoria Park on Monday morning from a two-year-old, and sustained a broken collar-bone and a smashed nose. He was taken to a private hospital in a serious condition. Anderson is one of the oldest jockeys riding, and, originally, came from Victoria.

The annual balance-sheet of the South Broken Hill Jockey Club to June 30 (wires our local correspondent) has been issued. The figures disclosed are very interesting, and show clearly the progress the club is making. The receipts for the two years compare thus: —1912, £3698, as against 1913, £5134, showing an increase of £1436. These figures do not include those of the recent Cup meeting, at which a profit of £400 was made. The expenditure for year ended June 30, 1912, left a profit on the working expenses of £781. The stakes were £1520. The profit for the year just over is shown as £1520; the stakes for the period has risen to £1772; and the assets of the club, at the end of the financial year, were valued at £4448, including £1784 spent in improvements.

At a meeting of the Wollongong racecourse trustees, at which some important matters were discussed (wires our local correspondent), a motion was placed on the minutes as a record of the great help the late Mr. John Richards had given to sport generally in the district. The vacancy on the trust was filled by the nomination of Mr. M. A. O'Donnell for the position. Improvements necessary to the buildings and the track were favourably considered, and will be taken in hand at an early date, when funds are available. The works of improving and widening the home turn of the course, and improving the crossing into the course, are now in progress.

The declaration of final forfeit yesterday for the V.A.T.C. Australian Steeplechase leaves 13 acceptors, and should all go to the post, the field will be three less than for last year's race. New South Wales is not represented in the four miles' race. Among the acceptors are Bullawarra, Leah Kleshna, United Kingdom, Big Bob, and Rogue's March, who took part in last year's contest, won by Scrutineer.

THE MORNING GALLOPS.

SOME USEFUL WORK.

The outer portion of the course proper at Randwick, was in good galloping order yesterday morning, and was well patronised. A heavy frost was on the ground, and did not clear away until well after breakfast time. Beragoon and Golden Hop were associated over a mile gallop, and they had no trouble in running that journey in 1m 51s, and this is about the first time this season that they have been extended. Matouree did long, steady work, and Burri and Embracer easily negotiated seven furlongs in 1m 38½s. Sir Vive covered a mile in 1m 49s, and, over the same distance, Symmetris did strong work only. Belove put in a slow once round, while Marcellus and Radnor went well over seven furlongs, the last half-mile taking 57s. Gigandra merely spurted, and, over five furlongs, Athenic went strongly. Harpist and Cagou were sent out to make time over a mile and a quarter, and Elystan took 1m 36½s for a seven furlongs spin. Alured did useful work over a mile, and Zilnes was let off with long, steady work. Hallowmas and Emperador got over ten furlongs takingly, the last four being run in 52s. Radnor did serviceable work over six furlongs, and Perdita and Multifoil easily ran a circle in 2m [illegible]. Mordkin spurted half a mile in 51½s, while Sandbath put in a strong mile gallop. Cisco was not asked to make time over seven furlongs, while Kildonan and Fugue traversed six furlongs in 1m 25s, Blast going strongly over a like trip. Limelight and Royal Time recorded 1m [illegible] for a five furlongs gallop, while Sweet Malt spurted half a mile in 52½s, and Sequarious took 1m 51s for a mile trip, and First Toy spurted half a mile in 54s. Neozilla went usefully over five furlongs, and Border King went strongly over seven furlongs. Minuo shaped well over five furlongs, while Royal Laddie and Coradil went similarly over a mile.

On the tan Cynosure easily ran nine furlongs in 2m 14s, and Multus did strong work only. Leta put in a useful task, and several others were restricted to serviceable work.

MOTOR CYCLING.

"F.N." SUCCESSES.

Bennett and Wood, Ltd., have received news of the meritorious performance of the "F.N." team in the Johannesburg—Durban motor-cycle race. Five "F.N." machines started, and all successfully completed the journey, and were awarded medals. This they accomplished, in spite of having the smallest engines of any machines entered for the race, and in spite of a handicap from engines exactly twice as large, in only 48 minutes over a 420-mile course. The team, which arrived in perfect order and condition, was the only team to finish. The next best landed seven riders out of 13 starters.

ZENITH CUP COMPETITION.

The first competition for the Zenith Cup, a silver trophy valued at twelve guineas, was held by the Motor Cycle Club of New South Wales over the Hornsby Valley-Bobbin Head course, on Saturday afternoon. Forty-nine riders started, and the officials met with considerable difficulty in controlling such a large body. The competitors had to ride to a schedule. There was one secret check (Mr. Stan Crow)—where the majority of the competitors lost points—and controls were established at Granville (Mr. P. J. Murphy), Castle Hill (Mr. J. Frazer), Hornsby Valley (Messrs. F. Ross and R. Willard), Bobbin Head (Mr. Fred Martin), and Turramurra (Mr. F. Millar). The times were taken from the riders' own watches, which were sealed, and were checked to the nearest minute. The point score to date is as follows:—F. Mellor (2¾-h.p. Douglas), E. Rigg (3½-h.p. Triumph), E. Fletcher (3½-h.p. B.S.A.), A. Brown (3½-h.p. N.S.U.), have not lost any points. F. Holmes (6-h.p. Matchless), J. A. Fair (6-h.p. Speedwell), K. Bennett (3½-h.p. Speedwell), J. Durst (3½-h.p. Zenith), C. White (2¾-h.p. Douglas), J. Melkor (6-h.p. Iris), P. Weatherill (2¾-h.p. Douglas), lost 1 point; F. Delandro (2¾-h.p. Douglas), A. Levi (3½-h.p. Metrop), lost 2 points; F. A. Rose, W. Bunting (3½-h.p. Saroles), lost 3 points; A. Ferguson (3½-h.p. Triumph), lost 4 points; R. Rayley (2¾-h.p. Douglas), L. Palmer (5-h.p. Roma), lost 5 points; A. Hargreaves (3½-h.p. The next competition will take the form of a speed declaration trial, to be held over the main Western-road course to Hartley, on Saturday, August 16. Although the entries for the Zenith cup are now closed, nominations will be accepted for this trial, for which a special prize has been offered—until Saturday.

MOTOR CYCLE CLUB.

A "secret" club run has been arranged for the week-end. Members will meet at the clubrooms at 9.30 o'clock.

AT THE WOMEN PAINTERS' EXHIBITION.

"THE BOY WITH THE PALETTE."
BY VIOLET TEAGUE, OF MELBOURNE.

MOTORING.

AUTOMOBILE CLUB OF AUSTRALIA.

Over the main Western-road to Medlow Bath, on Saturday afternoon, the members of the Automobile Club of Australia will hold a petrol consumption contest. The competitors will start from the [illegible] Sussex-street, after having their weights and fuel supplies measured by the club officials. The route to Parramatta will be by way of the bridges, so as to avoid the main Parramatta-road, which is in a particularly bad state at the present time. Each car will carry an observer, who will see that the regulations governing the traffic and trial are adhered to. On arrival at Medlow Bath the quantity of fuel used will be measured, and the competitor who shows the best ton-mileage figures will be declared the winner. A number of club members who are not actually taking part in the contest will accompany the competitors on the trip, and an entertainment has been provided for the party—which, it is expected, will number about 100—at the conclusion of the run. The official entries are as follow:—

THE ULMARRA HUNDRED.

ULMARRA, Monday.

Mr. J. Retallick presided over the annual meeting of the Ulmarra Rowing Club, when a highly satisfactory report was submitted. The balance-sheet shows a credit on the year's working of £42. £40 was set aside as a nucleus for this year's "Ulmarra Hundred" regatta. The membership is 70. Reference was made to the wonderful progress made by the club since its formation a little over two years ago. Since then several hundred pounds have been spent on the purchase of boats, erection of sheds, wharf, etc., all of which have been paid for.

Reference was also made to the "Ulmarra Hundred," and it was decided to take steps towards organising this popular annual fixture. The regatta will probably be held in October. A large number of prominent scullers have signified their intention to assist at the regatta.

BOXING.

MEHEGAN v WELLS.

DEADLOCK AS TO REFEREE.

A hitch has arisen in connection with the refereeing of next Saturday's contest between the Australian lightweight champion, Hughie Mehegan, and the English boxer, Matt. Wells. The latter expressed a desire to have Mr. Baker (the promoter) handle the contest, instead of the Stadium's official referee, Mr. Arthur Scott, and a conference of the parties and others interested in boxing was held yesterday morning, with a view to settling the question.

Mr. Dave Levy, on behalf of Matt. Wells, said that in view of a recent decision of Mr. Scott's, that had proved unpopular, and was generally considered wrong, he would rather that official did not referee this match, and would like to see Mr. Baker act in that capacity. Mr. Duke Mullins, who represented Mehegan, referred to Mr. Scott as one of the best referees he had known, and pointed out that there was not a single referee of note who had not, at one time or another, been considered to have made mistakes. When Mehegan was in England he had had to give way as to weight, and as to who acted as referee, and now that Wells was in Australia the latter could not expect to have everything his own way.

A suggestion that two judges should act with Mr. Scott was not favourably received by Mr. Levy, and a subsequent discussion between the two sides resulted in no agreement being arrived at. An effort will be made to settle the matter this morning.

BOMBARDIER WELLS DEFEATS O'KEEFE.

LONDON, Aug. 4.

Bombardier Wells defeated O'Keefe in the fifteenth round at the National Sporting Club to-night, with a well-delivered punch on the jaw.

Wells fulfilled what had been expected of him, but, all the same, he had to fight for victory. Early in the third round Wells went weak from repeated body blows. When O'Keefe got to close quarters Wells's height and reach enabled him to punch his opponent's face almost when he liked, but he did not make the most of his advantage, and fought timidly at times.

Wells was at his best in the thirteenth round, and brought his right across splendidly.

O'Keefe took a lot of punishment, but luckily did not go down until the knockout.

NATURALISTS' SOCIETY.

The annual meeting of the Naturalists' Society of New South Wales took place at the Royal Society's House, Elizabeth-street, last evening, the retiring president (Mr. E. S. Edwards, M.A.) being in the chair.

Mr. Edwards, in an address on "The Naturalist, Past and Present," traced the history of nature study from the earliest times.

The report stated that in many ways the influence of the society was increasing, and a real want was being supplied by bringing into closer relation the various members interested in nature study. Since the fusion of the Naturalists' Club with the Australian Flora Society, arrangements had been made for the inclusion of the Aquarium Society, so that they now had three societies combined into one, for the purpose of promoting the advancement of nature study, and for imparting a greater impetus to scientific research generally. The membership of the society was increasing satisfactorily, 65 having been elected during the year.

POLO.

QUIRINDI CARNIVAL.

SYDNEY DEFEATS DINDEMAH.

OHIO BEATEN BY MUSWELLBROOK A.

(FROM OUR SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT.)

QUIRINDI, Tuesday.

The weather was perfect on the second day of the Quirindi polo carnival, and a large assemblage witnessed exciting polo. The feature of the day was the grand display given by the Sydney team in the defeat of the cup holders—Dindemah—by 6 goals to 2. This victory was mainly due to the exceptionally fine play of Mr. Clem. Withycombe and Mr. Frank Osborne, who both were in splendid form. The first five periods were remarkably even, each side having scored two goals; in the next period Sydney added three goals amid great excitement, and another in the final period. Muswellbrook A qualified for the final by defeating the hard-riding Ohio team, which was without the services of "Towser" Nivison, his place being taken by J. S. Nivison, who played splendidly, being the best of the four.

MUSWELLBROOK A v OHIO.

Muswellbrook played their usual team: Mr. D. M. Bell (back), Mr. Harold White (captain, 3), Mr. Bruce White (2), Mr. A. Pearse (1). Ohio was represented by Mr. J. S. Nivison (back), Mr. A. T. Nivison (3), Mr. A. S. Nivison (captain, 2), Mr. N. M. Nivison (1).

Ohio dashed away from the throw-in, but A. S. Nivison failed to put the finishing touch to a couple of good efforts. Muswellbrook then had a turn, Bell leading the charge, but a powerful shot by Bruce White went behind. They came again, and a good shot by Bruce White found Ohio out of position; Harold White made a splendid effort from 50 yards out, but just missed the posts. Play was even up to the bell.

Starting the second period, Harold White had a splendid opportunity of scoring, but his pony jumped over the ball, and the chance was lost. Almost immediately, however, he made amends by scoring with a splendid backhander from the ruck. Muswellbrook attacked again, Bell centring with a backhander to Bruce White, who scored with a powerful hit. The Hunter River men were now doing all the attacking, but eventually A. S. Nivison broke away with a great run, hitting splendidly, but his final shot just went outside. A little later J. S. Nivison scored with a fine hit, amid great applause.

After the bell went, Bruce White scored a behind, and from the hit-off in the third period J. S. Nivison forwarded with a solid hit to N. M. Nivison, and the latter carried right down, but Bell relieved. An attack by Muswellbrook followed, but J. S. Nivison came through, and carried past half-way, but was blocked by a hard return from Harold White, the ball going to Pearse, who, with Ohio's back out of position, had no trouble in scoring a goal. Muswellbrook attacked to the end of the period, a fine individual effort by Bruce White finding the goal just as the bell went.

A. S. Nivison opened the fourth period with a splendid run along the side line, and by a fine backhander he played right in front of goal, but his supports were not handy, and Harold White carried to halfway. Pearse then made a good dash, and left a fine opening for Harold White, who made no mistake. Play continued fast and even until half-time, when the scores stood: Muswellbrook, 5 goals 7 behinds; Ohio, 1 goal 4 behinds.

In play again, Muswellbrook made an onslaught, and a backhander by Bell left good position for Harold White, but J. S. Nivison blocked his shot. Muswellbrook were not to be denied, and a fine piece of work by Harold White ended in a goal. The Walcha men now livened up, and A. S. Nivison led a great charge, but his final hit, although an excellent effort, just missed. A. T. Nivison then put in a fine run, and left good position for N. M. Nivison, who missed a good chance.

Although Muswellbrook scored 2 goals in the sixth period, play was very even, but the Ohio men always failed to put on the finishing touches when within striking distance. The first score was credited to Bruce White, with a particularly fine hit, and the same player had a hand in the second goal; a splendid stroke, forwarding to Pearse, who scored.

The final period opened quietly, play remaining in the centre for a time, and then Bell made a good run, but was hooked when right at the goal. Ohio then had a turn, but once more they failed at goal-hitting, and Bell relieved well. A run by Pearse looked dangerous, but A. S. Nivison saved well. The Royal Blues came again, and Bruce White registered his fourth goal with a fine hit. The final scores were:—Muswellbrook, 9 goals 12 behinds; Ohio, 1 goal 7 behinds.

SYDNEY v DINDEMAH.

After lunch Sydney and Dindemah took the field, the teams being:—Sydney: Mr. F. Osborne (back), Mr. C. Withycombe (capt. 3), Mr. "Dick" Garvan (2), Mr. K. G. Richards (1). Dindemah: Mr. P. Willsallen (back), Mr. L. Willsallen (capt. 3), Mr. Jack Davies (2), Mr. Bert Willsallen (1).

Mr. Frank Shepherd and Mr. Jim Allison were the umpires.

No goals were scored in the first period, but Dindemah hit 5 behinds, and were attacking most of the time. Once a score looked imminent, when Withycombe put in a splendid run, and a great hit by him from the side line at half-way stopped near the posts. Dindemah had the better of this period, and were unlucky in not scoring.

In the second period Sydney warmed up, and Garvan, after a splendid run, put the ball through, after covering three-parts of the field. Dindemah soon equalised the score; a fine back-hander by Bert Willsallen giving Davies a chance, he put in a good run, his final shot hitting the posts and rolling through. Play continued fast and even, when Withycombe worked well down, and looked sure to score, but Bert Willsallen made a good save. Osborne was hitting splendidly, and continually set the forward division going by solid strokes. Davies was unlucky, a shot by him missing by about a foot.

Dindemah attacked at the opening of the third period, but Osborne and Withycombe were splendid defence, and drove their opponents back repeatedly. Sydney then raced goalwards, Withycombe being in the van, but a good effort was blocked by Bert. Willsallen. Sydney had their opponents penned in for a couple of minutes, making great efforts to score, but the defence was very sound. At last Les. Willsallen drove them back with a clean hit, but Sydney soon returned, Richards starting a rush, and a powerful hit by Osborne just missed. Sydney crowded their opponents right to the end of the period, but could only score behinds.

The fourth period was quite the reverse, Dindemah keeping up a prolonged attack, and, although Sydney failed to score even a minor point, the greens registered three behinds in quick succession. Dindemah were not striking in their usual form, but at last Bert. Willsallen came with a great rush, and placed well for Les. Willsallen, who slipped the ball through, and put his side in the lead.

Dindemah maintained a strong attack until halftime, and only the sound defence of Osborne kept them out. At the interval the scores were: Dindemah, 2 goals 11 behinds; Sydney, 1 goal 5 behinds.

The second half of the game was a triumph for Sydney, who added 5 goals 8 behinds, while their opponents could only score 2 minor points. Sydney started off with a great rush, Withycombe leading the way, and he left in good position for Richards, who dribbled straight in front, but his attempt at goal was blocked by Bert. Wills-Allen. Two more good efforts to Richards promised well, but Les. and Percy Willsallen were both defending soundly. Sydney kept up the attack, and a great backhander by Withycombe from a good way out struck the post and rolled inside, amid excitement and applause. From the throw-in Sydney made another dash, Withycombe, who was playing splendid polo, just missing. The first free hit of the tournament was then awarded against Dindemah for crossing, but Richards' effort went wide. Almost immediately a cross was awarded against Sydney, and Bert. Willsallen had a shot which only raised the white flag.

In the sixth period Sydney team made a determined effort, and took charge of the game, Richards and Withycombe, showing out with brilliant runs, from which behinds resulted. Richards then came with another rattle, and put his side in the lead with a grand goal which again roused excitement. From the throw-in Sydney put in another fierce rush, and Garvan looked sure to score, but overran the ball, and Bert Willsallen blocked Withycombe's attempt. The latter came again, however, and after fierce play on both sides he secured another fine goal. Dindemah could not pull themselves together, and from the throw-in Sydney dashed away, and Richards made their position secure by scoring an excellent goal.

The final period opened with a clever shot by Withycombe to Osborne and Richards, who were well clear, but the former missed, and Les Willsallen hit to safety. Sydney still kept pressing, and Garvan made two excellent shots, but neither brought goals. Richards was the next to show out, taking the ball from the side line, and handling it well raised the red flag with a fine hit. Sydney kept up the attack almost to the end, when Davies and Bert Willsallen made a great burst, but only a behind resulted, the game closing with the scores:—Sydney, 6 goals 13 behinds; Dindemah, 2 goals 13 behinds.

The winners thoroughly deserved their victory, after playing a fine game all through the second half, and the final between them and Muswellbrook should provide a great contest. The Dindemah men were hardly up to their usual form, Les Willsallen in particular being right off his game.

MUSWELLBROOK B v CASTLEREAGH.

Great interest was taken in the meeting of Muswellbrook B and Castlereagh, on account of so many young players taking part, and they acquitted themselves well, Mr. Ned White in particular playing a dashing game, hitting no fewer than 5 goals. He played well, riding his own well, and not making the mistake of looking for the ball too much when it did not come his way; but he always made good use of it, and his goal hitting was very accurate. Much praise is also due to Reg. Watt for the fine game he played on both days, his hitting being excellent, but he is rather light for the riding-off hustling. Bowman was the mainstay of Castlereagh, both in attack and defence, and he is undoubtedly a fine player. The teams were the same as took the field on Monday.

Muswellbrook B scored two goals in the first period, Ned White hitting the first out of the ruck, and Reg. White also raised the red flag by a great backhander. Fred. Bell looked sure to score once, but Bowman executed a great save right at the mouth of the goal. Castlereagh got to work quickly in the second period, and soon drew level, Bowman hitting two excellent goals; but Muswellbrook regained the lead as, after Fred Bell with a great run had taken right to the goal, Ned White got in and scored. A little later he again raised the red flag, after breaking away from centre, and completely outpacing the others, an effort that was heartily applauded.

Fred. Bell opened the third period with a dashing run, which ended in a goal, and then Ned White put in another long-distance run, which also closed with a score. The Castlereagh defence kept getting out of position, and Fred. Bell again broke through, scoring with a splendid hit. Castlereagh then worked to ward goal, but New White broke clear and galloped right away from the others, hitting another fine goal.

In the fourth period, Castlereagh brightened up, and prevented their opponents from scoring for two periods, while they added three goals themselves. The first of these came from a fine run by Reg. Watt, the ball being clipped in from an acute angle; and another beautiful goal from a sharp angle went to his credit a little later, after M'Master had carried well up the field. Muswellbrook made several strong attempts, but Bowman executed some wonderful saves. At the end of the period Castlereagh compelled Muswellbrook to force, the free hit being taken in the fifth. Bowman forwarding to M'Master, who put through.

Previous to this Keys had a nasty fall when making a good run, and though a bit shaken, resumed playing. Reg. Watt also got a fall, but no damage was done.

The sixth period opened with fast, even play, but then Muswellbrook showed a fine piece of combined work, New White making a good run down the ground, and was well supported by Keys, who went to Reg. White, on [illegible] the latter dropped through under the posts' Bink. Muswellbrook came again, but M'Master put in a great run nearly the full length of the ground, and scored a splendid goal. Muswellbrook retaliated by adding another goal, Bell raising the red flag after a good run. They kept up the attack in the final period, but could only score one goal from a good centring-shot by Ned White, leaving an opening for Fred Bell, who made no mistake, and the game ended:—Muswellbrook B, 11 goals 11 behinds; Castlereagh, 6 goals 2 behinds.

FUEL OIL BONUS.

Mr. O. Rogers, president of the Newcastle Trades and Labour Council, who has been addressing meetings at Adelaide and Melbourne in favour of a continuance of the bonus offered by the Federal Government for the production of oil as fuel, returned to Sydney yesterday. He has been explaining how the closing down of the oil industry in New South Wales has resulted in a very big wages loss per annum, divided amongst 1100 men. The £50,000, which extended over a period of three years, terminated on June 30. Oil was produced, he says, sufficient only for a claim to be made for £3000, the balance of the £50,000 being left with the Government. The fields are at Murrurundi, Tobainne, Hartley Vale, and Newnes. Mr. Rogers mentioned that he would probably address in Sydney the Chambers of Commerce and Manufactures and the Labour Council.

Fowler, who has been postmaster at Inverell for the last three and a half years, has been transferred to Narrandera, and was on Thursday entertained at a smoke social by the Mayor and prominent citizens, and presented with an illuminated address. On Saturday he was presented with an emblem by the members of the Masonic lodge, and on Wednesday the post-office staff presented him with a cathedral chime marble clock.

The Glen Innes-Inverell Railway League has received an intimation from the Public Works Committee stating that it is not possible to open inquiries into the proposed construction of a railway from either Glen Innes to Inverell or from Guyra to Inverell until certain official information is placed before them, and this is not yet available. It is proposed that both inquiries will be dealt with in connection with their bearing on the construction of a line in the future to Byron Bay, Grafton, or Coff's Harbour.

PARLIAMENTARY BUSINESS.

In the Legislative Assembly last night Mr. Cann gave notice of a motion that the House at its next sitting consider the expediency of introducing a bill to amend the Railway Act with regard to appeals.

Notice of motion was given by Mr. Holman for the restoration to the business paper at the stage it reached at the end of last session of the Public Trustee Bill.

Mr. Holman gave notice of a bill to consolidate the land laws.

CLASSIFICATION.

Mr. G. C. Bodkin, an organiser for the Railway Workers and General Labourers' Association, expresses the opinion in a report to his union that the Public Works Department is very unreasonable in taking advantage of omissions in the award, and classing material men as labourers entitled to 9s per day. He suggests that the association should use every endeavour to see that these men are paid according to the class of work they are doing.

SUNDAY SPORT.

ACTION BY NORTH SYDNEY COUNCIL.

A ratepayer of North Sydney wrote to the local council complaining of the football and golf matches that are played in Cammeray Park on Sundays. He hoped the council would put a stop to it.

At the council meeting last night Alderman Clarke said that if they stopped the football they must also stop the golf.

The Mayor (Alderman Walker) said that the golfers did no harm. One or two men walking about with sticks did not attract so much attention as a crowd of footballers.

Alderman Smoothey moved that all sport be stopped in Cammeray Park on Sundays. The motion was carried.

VACUUM OIL DISPUTE.

The wharf labourers who ceased work at Pulpit Point last week have so far shown no disposition to return to the employ of the Vacuum Oil Company, Ltd. The 3d per hour extra which they are claiming should not, in the company's opinion, be applied to all work, such as the handling of barrels and general cargo, even if insisted upon for the handling of kerosene. "The question at issue," said the manager, Mr. R. Finlay, "is whether the men who work on our lighters shall receive for this open air work as high a wage as the men who are discharging a ship. If we have to pay 1s 9d per hour, why should the rate not apply to others than this company, who are also operating on the harbour front? To give the public an idea of how absurd the present wage is, here is one most extraordinary anomaly—a master cooper who has had to spend years learning his trade, and whose employment with us consists in re-conditioning and tightening up the hoops of barrels, receives 1s 4½d per hour, while the unskilled labourer, with no previous experience has to be paid 1s 9d per hour for rolling barrels along the wharf to the tradesman, and is now asking 1s 9d. Where is the justice of it?"

POLICE COURTS.

THEFT OF FLOUR.

Before Mr. Clark, S.M., at the Water Police Court yesterday, Sydney Watson, 28, was charged with stealing, on August 1, a 50lb bag of flour, valued at 4s 6, the property of the Union Steamship Company, Ltd., from their wharf at Darling Harbour. His Worship, in sentencing accused to four months' hard labour, said that a stop must be put to this sort of offence. It happened time and time again. Men had been sentenced to three and six months' imprisonment, and fined £20, and it had not had the slightest effect. In sentencing the accused to four months' hard labour he had taken into consideration his previous good character.

FARMER FROM WINDSOR ROBBED.

George Davis, alias Harry Thompson, met a farmer from near Windsor, named John Owen, in the bar of an hotel on Monday afternoon, when Davis asked Owen if he would oblige him with the change of £2. Owen replied that he could not, when Davis asked him to buy half a sovereign for 5s.

"I don't want you to worry me at all," said Owen, moving towards the bar, where he took a purse from his pocket, which Davis snatched, and then ran away. The manager of the hotel chased him, and afterwards gave him in charge.

Davis appeared before Mr. Smithers, S.M., at the Central Police Court, charged with stealing the purse and its contents, which consisted of money to the value of 23s and a railway ticket, and, on pleading guilty to the charge, was sentenced to one month's hard labour.

ALLEGED THEFT OF A CHEQUE.

A hairdresser, named John Wholohan, sold a business in Erskineville recently to Barnard and Company, and when Mr. Herbert Barnard called on Wholohan to settle up he left his pocket-book containing a cheque for £2 in one of the rooms.

A salesman at the Bon Marche, George-street, city, sold some goods to Wholohan, and in payment was tendered a cheque drawn in favour of Barnard and Company. He asked Wholohan if he were Mr. Barnard, and being told that he was not, the manager refused to take the cheque, and the police were informed. [illegible] Wholohan, at the Central Police Court, where he was charged with stealing the cheque, said the cheque was found [illegible]. "I foolishly attempted to cash it, but I did not steal it," said Wholohan, and Mr. Smithers, S.M., found the accused guilty, and fined him £5, with the alternative of three months' hard labour.

Mr. A. M'C. Lakban has been appointed a commissioner for taking affidavits of the Supreme Court of New Zealand and Tasmania.

A GREAT DISTRICT.

It may seem strange to you that so many of our properties in the Clyde-Granville district bear such similar names as Longlawn, Greenlawn, Longview. It is not that we are lacking in originality or stuck for a name, but simply because the outward appearance of the properties is so enticing that the names instinctively suggest themselves. Fine level stretches of green land, splendid home sites, and a grand outlook over the adjoining country.

The properties have more than this to recommend them, as, in addition to these advantages, they have the more solid one of a big commercial value ever on the increase.

LONGLAWN ESTATE, AUBURN, CLYDE, is one of the most desirable properties in this rapidly-growing district. It is close handy to Clyde Station, within easy walk of Auburn, and convenient to the principal factories and manufacturing concerns. It is a park-like subdivision, level, and nicely grassed. The blocks average 40 x 120 ft, and every one has the qualities for the making of a fine home, besides offering chances for small investors. Lots from 9/ per foot. Terms from £1 down and 10/ month. Torrens Title.

HEART OF AUBURN ESTATE.

This property is in four sections, surrounding our well-known Dudley Estate, and adjoining Homeville Estate, both of which properties were sold clean out during the early part of the year.

We can safely say that it occupies the very best residential part of the suburb, and is an investment that will show the very best returns possible. Under ten minutes from the station, in a select locality, and consisting for the greater part of fine level building blocks, this is an Estate that must arrest the attention of the judicious buyer. City water and gas are available. Splendid views can be obtained right out over the flat plains of the Granville and Clyde district.

The lots average 40 x 120 to 130 ft, and every one fronts well-made roads, and are offered at from 15/ a foot. Terms, from £1 down and 10/ monthly.

LONGVIEW ESTATE, MERRYLANDS, is only some ten minutes from Harris Park or Parramatta Stations, and is just 13 miles from Sydney. Goodlet and Smith's big works are just a short distance away, and other large manufactories are close by. They are not near enough to interfere in any way with the desirability of LONGVIEW for residential purposes, but afford plenty of opportunity for work, and are an assurance as to the prosperity of the locality.

Longview commands a fine outlook, including picturesque views of the Parramatta River and the orchard slopes of the Hill District.

The Lots are level, roomy, and well drained, mostly 50 x 126 ft, and are all ready to build on. Prices from 5/ a foot. Terms from 10/ deposit, 5/ monthly. Torrens Title.

YOU'VE SEEN IT GROW.

You don't need to be the "oldest inhabitant," either. You don't even need to be an old resident. If you have lived in Sydney for the past four or five years and read your daily paper fairly regularly, you cannot have overlooked the wonderful growth of the Bankstown district.

Just a few years ago Bankstown was "the bush," so far as the average Sydney man knew or cared, and then—we say it with becoming modesty—we took it in hand. It started to grow —gradually at first—then it became a railway terminus, and it stopped growing. It didn't grow—it just shot up, and in a few years has become a proposition in which homeseekers have put over £70,000—that is in Rickard properties alone. Now, listen to this proposition:—

is situated almost right at the station just at the end of the present railway line. It is the kind of property our clients have been demanding for some time past—something closer to the rail than those we have offered of late.

It is a property of enormous possibilities, one that, when the line is extended to Liverpool, and Bankstown becomes the first stop for the Melbourne express—will be worth many times its present value; and you will not have to wait very long. Now we are offering these splendid Home Sites, 50 x 150 feet, from 18/6 PER FOOT.

There are only a limited number of them, and every one will go before long. The terms we are offering are easy enough for everyone—for every £50 purchased, and the Title is Torrens. Write to us now for plan.

£1 DOWN, AND 10/ PER MONTH

POULTRY RAISING AND FRUIT GROWING GO WELL TOGETHER.

As a means of adding to your present income, or for making a straight-out living, these two industries take a lot of beating. An orchard makes a fine run for poultry, and both the fowl and the fruit benefit thereby. Numbers of our buyers are making very snug incomes by these means. Try it Yourself.

BLACKTOWN.

Bungarribee Farms is a very convenient property on which to make a start, being under an hour from Sydney, and ten minutes from two stations. The soil is most suitable for the above purposes, or for mixed farming and vine-growing. The blocks are handy sized ones, from 8 to 10 acres in extent, and the water supply is good. Prices from £12/10/ per acre. Torrens Title. Terms from £3 down and 10/ monthly.

FAIRFIELD.

Prairiewood Park is also most conveniently situated, although 3 miles from the station is only 18 miles from Sydney. The blocks are fine and level, and right in the midst of a big fruit-growing district. A creek runs through the estate. Blocks for everyone from 4 to 15 acres. Price from £9/10/ per acre. This district is rapidly advancing, and good land is very scarce. Torrens Title. Terms from £1 down and 10/ monthly.

CARLINGFORD.

Tumah Estate is a fine property for a man who wishes to add fruit-growing to his ordinary income. It is 10 minutes from the station, in a healthful position, and has an altitude of over 300ft. The soil is excellent for citrus fruits, and on all sides of the property are prosperous orchard homes. Blocks vary in size. Acres from £50 per acre. Terms from £2 down, 20/ per month. Torrens Title.

HABERFIELD

"Sydney's Garden Suburb."

All the elements essential to a pleasant home are to be found at Haberfield. The design and execution of this true suburb are in complete conformity with the best features of the best garden suburbs of the world. And in Sydney's Only Garden Suburb you are getting the full benefits of world-wide experience in suburb-planning. You are profiting by the experiments which have marked the rise and progress of Garden Suburbs; in Haberfield you are getting the "finished article."
A small deposit of, say, £25, puts you in immediate possession and occupation of a Haberfield Cottage. The balance of the purchase money is payable as rental. The progress is so gradual that you never feel the strain of payment in the least. You arrive at the stage of absolute ownership in a surprisingly easy and rapid way.
We design and build cottages to order. THE HABERFIELD METHOD OF CONSTRUCTION, by eliminating many usual building and attendant charges, makes the prices cheaper than they could otherwise possibly be. There are now over 750 villas and cottages in this charming suburb, sheltering upwards of 3000 happy Haberfield dwellers.
There are villas available at Haberfield, varying in price from £525 to £1375. The charm of these Cottages will impress you instantly—the design of each being distinctive and artistic.
The whole design of "Sydney's Garden Suburb" has always sought to produce healthy, pleasant conditions. The streets are wide, and lined with ornamental shade trees. Large open spaces and the gardens surrounding the homes add to the beautifying and purifying of the suburb. Each house is of artistic exterior design—each differing from the others. They are all sound, well ventilated and weather-proof. The interiors are embellished with appropriate regard to the individual designs. Many areas and institutions for recreation and amusement exist within the precincts of this charming suburb.
Investigate Haberfield at once. It is conveniently situated, being but 20 minutes by tram from G.P.O. or 10 minutes by "through" train to Summer Hill. Take Abbotsford or Haberfield tram in George-street, and alight at O'Connor-street.

THOUSANDS HAVE PROVED

the splendid merits of JOHN STRANGE WINTER'S HAIR FOOD. In even the most stubborn of cases the use of this wonder-working preparation is attended by uniformly high results.

The uniform excellence of J.S.W. Hair Food is largely due to the fact that it SUITS EVERY HEAD. The possessor of a dry scalp should use J.S.W. Oily Hair Food. The owner of a head which is not naturally dry will find that J.S.W. Non-oily Hair Food completely meets his case.

The consistent use of J.S.W. Hair Food cleanses and cools the scalp, and rids it of unsightly dandruff. And it renders the hair soft, vigorous, and glossy.

TALKS ON CORSETS;

No. 2.

In selecting a Corset for your particular style of figure you should carefully study the various points which combine to improve every anatomic line and curve.

Accuracy of design and construction to meet the varying types of the female figure can only be accomplished when SPECIAL MEDICAL SUPERVISION controls every stage of making.

FRENCH CORSETIERES have, for the past 30 years, made this one of the most important features in the designing of their Corsets, thus rendering their productions permanent throughout the fashionable world for BEAUTY, HYGIENE, and REFINEMENT. Particularly popular everywhere are the famous French

ROYAL "P.D." RUSTLESS CORSETS.

DON'T SUFFER PAIN!

If you are enduring the present agony of an aching tooth, or the slow discomfort and injury of a decaying tooth, and the ultimate loss of it, you're not wise. And you will not be wise if you suffer any pain in the filling of the tooth, or the extraction of it—if that be necessary.

YOU NEEDN'T! I can drill and fill the most tender tooth without causing any pain. I have an apparatus—the only one in Sydney—which enables me to do this splendid humane work. So you are secure from pain in filling or extraction.

MY SPECIAL METHOD OF EXTRACTION is absolutely painless! There is always £5 of my money waiting as forfeit to anyone who feels the least pain. No matter how difficult the extraction—even of an abscessed tooth—there will be no pain. Never once has my offer to forfeit the £5 been claimed.

OPEN TILL 6 P.M. DAILY (Sats. included), UNTIL 9 P.M. FRIDAY.
